TOMMY KERNAN IS BOW CREEK C.C. PRO

Thomas Francis (Tommy) Kernan, for the past 13 years as assistant golf professional at the Princess Anne Country Club here, has been named head professional of the new Bow Creek Golf and Country Club, according to an announcement by Fred A. Haycox, president of the new club.

Kernan's appointment as head professional at Bow Creek followed a meeting of the club's board of directors at which time the greens committee, headed by Richard G. Brydges, offered the names of two applicants for the position. Kernan's selection came on a unanimous vote of the board.

The new Bow Creek professional is the son of Leo Kernan, veteran professional at the Princess Anne Country Club since 1943. Tommy has served as assistant to his father for the past 13 years.

Bow Creek is expected to open about October 1 and young Kernan has indicated his resignation to accept the new position. He will work closely with Fred Sappenfeld, a former professional at Portsmouth's Elizabeth Minor Country Club, who is supervising the construction of the 18-hole course.

"I've been looking forward to the day when I could become head professional," said Kernan. "This is a great opportunity and challenge for me." The popular golf teacher added:

Young Kernan is recognized as an excellent teacher and, along with father, Leo, has helped develop many fine young players in the area. His experience under Leo Kernan should fit him well for his new position.

Young Kernan served his apprenticeship at the Green Spring Valley Hunt Club and Forest Park, both in Baltimore.

The new Bow Creek golf professional is married to the former Betty Thomas, daughter of the late Dr. Thomas, who lived in Virginia Beach. They have two daughters.

Bow Creek is nearing completion of construction of the 18-hole course. The new club is located on a 100-acre tract in the former area that has been cleared for fairways and greens.

Walter B. Wilson, engineer for Frank Tarrant Associates, says the finished plans for the course.

Ralph J. Hewitt, veteran hotel and club executive, has been appointed the club's managing director.

A valuation of $1.5 million has been placed on the land and improvements when the club is opened.

State Names Holmquist New Gov.'s Development Consultant

Virginia took an important step today to accelerate and strengthen its industrial and economic development services.

Richard C. Holmquist, long associated with the General Electric Company, was named to the new position of Industrial Development Consultant to the Governor and the Virginia Department of Conservation and Economic Development.

Holmquist who is 46, has served General Electric in several related positions — merchandising, employee and plant community relations, public relations and plant location. His current position with the company is Consultant—Government Relations with offices in New York City.

The announcement of this appointment was made jointly by Governor Almond and Stuart T. Saunders, Chairman of the Virginia Industrialization Group, which is providing the salary for Holmquist. Saunders is President of the Norfolk and Western Railway.

Holmquist will begin his duties on September 1, will have an office within the Virginia Division of Industrial Development and Planning in Richmond and will work with the Commissioner, C. M. Nicholson, Jr.

Martin M. Sutherland, Director, said today the Department extends a hearty welcome to Holmquist and pledged him the full support of the Department and its staff.

The Virginia Industrialization Group is composed of more than 80 representatives of industries and businesses located in all parts of Virginia, who organized for the purpose of accelerating and strengthening the industrial and economic growth of Virginia.

Holmquist's principal duties will be to work closely with the Division of Industrial Development and Planning as well as with all other organizations and agencies in the state which are engaged in

GRAPHIC ARTS TO HEAR BERT ZAHN

A graphic arts clinic is scheduled to be held next Thursday at the Superior Silk Screen plant, located at 827 W. 46th Street in Norfolk, according to a joint announcement by the Norfolk firm and the Graphic Arts Company.

The clinic will feature a talk by Bert Zahn, noted authority in the graphic arts world. Zahn is manager of the graphic arts division of the Graphic Arts Company. He is the author of several books on reproductive arts.

The talk and demonstration will center on the various methods used in the sign and screen process. A motion picture on screen process will be shown and a buffet supper and refreshments will be served.

ASC COMMITTEE TEACHES FARMERS

The ASCA Office wishes to remind all the farmers in Princess Anne County that the first 2 weeks in August is the time to sign up for the Agricultural Conservation Program.

All farmers are eligible for A.C.P. Those who participated in the 1961 Feed Grain Program will especially want to sign up to put a cover crop on their diverted acreage.

A soil analysis taken within the past year is needed for timing, or a soil sample brought into our office, will be sent off to be analyzed. For permanent pasture and rotation cover a soil report is required.

The ASCA Office has plans to visit each and every farm to see what the land can do while it rests. The government will pay him costs on seeds, fertilizer and lime.

Also, if you wish to plant rice or improve woodland, contact Mr. Norman T. Best at the ASCA Office for information on cost-share on rice.

HARDIN CONDUCTING RICHMOND WORKSHOP

Mr. and Mrs. Bratton Hardin have left for Richmond, Va., where Mr. Hardin will conduct a Workshop on performing piano at the Richmond Music Club.

Mr. Hardin, who is associated with the Bratton Hardin School of Music at Virginia Beach, will assist his father in the lectures.

Five students of the Hardin School will participate in the Workshop by performing piano solos to illustrate various pedagogical points developed in the lectures.

Those students are: Hyatt Hardin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bratton Hardin, Jr., of Norfolk; Mary Dekker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Dekker of Virginia Beach; Leighann Meredith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh S. Meredith of Virginia Beach; Mary Keyes Furebe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O. B. Furebe, of Norfolk; and Beverly Babcock, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Babcock of Newport News.

More than fifty piano teachers from these areas attended a similar Workshop conducted by Mr. Hardin in Richmond in the summer of 1960.

District Civitans In Meeting Here Starting Friday Night

Clubs of the Chesapeake District of Civitan International will send strong delegations to the summer council meeting and outing of the district at Virginia Beach, Va., next Friday, Saturday and Sunday, planning to augment their business program with unusual entertainment features, including singing, dancing and special amusements.

The visiting groups will include Civitan families of clubs from Virginia, Maryland, Pennsylvania, New Jersey and the District of Columbia. Dr. John N. Pate of the Washington club will direct the three-day session and the Virginia Beach club will be open meeting host.

Friday will open with initial registration and see and pool bathing, a golf tournament and other sports on the famed Cavalier club's broad facilities. The quarterly meeting of the district's Foundation for Mentally Retarded and Handicapped Children will take place in the early evening and the club's South Porch has been set aside for an informal hospitality tent.

Business sessions will open Saturday morning, with Mayor Frank Dusch welcoming the Civitans to Virginia Beach and International Vice Pres. G. Wesley Williams of Raleigh, N.C., speaking. Others besides Dr. Pate participating in the morning session will include Dr.

A Proud Wife of A Famous Husband

Mrs. Alan Shepard Unveils Plaque; Webb Reviews History of Space

Mrs. Alan B. Shepard, Jr., wife of this country's first man in space, unveiled a magnificent plaque Friday afternoon in appropriate ceremonies designating Virginia Beach's famous aluminum-domed convention building "The Alan B. Shepard Convention Center."

While Mrs. Shepard's brief unveiling task was the highlight of the colorful ceremony, the more than 1,000 persons present also heard James E. Webb, administrator of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, deliver the principal address.

Webb reviewed the history of the U. S. space program, but he also said "I think the Russians should make the same disclosure of the method in which their flight was conducted and the results—the same disclosures we have made in our space program."

Mrs. Shepard, as is customary, won the hearts of the audience with her captivating smile and her generally poised manner. She spoke briefly.

"I thank you all on behalf of my husband and I can assure you that he is deeply touched and honored by this tribute."

Mrs. Shepard's elder daughter, Laura, 14, set beside her. A daughter, Juliana, 11, is at summer camp in Maine. Shepard, a Virginia Beach resident, was in St. Louis Friday.

A full-size replica of the space capsule in which Shepard made his flight will be placed outside the center. A bronze plaque commemorating her husband's achievement was unveiled by Mrs. Shepard.

Before the ceremonies began a concert was given by the 90th Army Band of Roanoke, led by CWO Andrew W. Hull, and the Navy band from the cruiser New Beach — Princess Anne County area — a new Community Services office was recently opened. This office is as broad as the describing services now available through Travelers' Aid Society.

Travelers Aid Society, one of the agencies to make use of the Community Services office, is the only national organized social agency devoted to meeting the problems of moving people. Since people move for many reasons—for vacations, to make new homes, and for health, to take better jobs, to run away from difficult situations—the variety of problems handled by Travelers Aid is as broad as the cross section of the population they serve. Some problems are solved fairly easily — finding appropriate housing in a new town, learning directions and bus lines and streets, locating relatives or friends whose addresses have been lost. This is the information Travelers Aid Service offers by supervision at change points for young, or handicapped or elderly travelers who need that extra little assurance that someone who cares is in between. Take the situation of Mr. Garrett (name and places fictitious—but the facts are true). Mr. Garrett had lived in South Carolina, worked steadily for a produce distributor and made a moderate income. He married a girl whose family was not overly fond of him or of anyone who married one of its girls. As they had the first two or three children his wife's family began to take hold. The combination was too much for him to face—he ran away and, going north, lost himself in a big city. At first he told himself he was going to get re-established, make a new start for his family. For several months he let himself absorb the mass of humanity, but no one asked questions, living day by day, severing all ties with home and family—a lonely man tortured by thoughts of his children and wife. But, as time went on he began to think more of himself; of all the reasons he had for leaving home until, in his mind, it almost began to make sense. Suddenly he realized that he was only one step from never going home and with only enough money to get out of town he started back. When he came to Travelers Aid he was about half way home both physically and mentally. Mr. Garrett had lived in South Carolina, worked steadily for

"Caine Mutiny" Opens Tonight

"Caine Mutiny," the successful drama adapted by Herman Wouk from his Pulitzer Prize winning novel opens tonight at Sandpiper Playhouse. Directed by Wade Williams, the cast includes Joseph Friedman, B. F. Clymer, Jerry Walker, Charles Oliver, Anthony LaGola, Ross McCance, Charles Fuller, Lavonne Watson, and Ed Donovan.

"Caine Mutiny" is the second in the new series of plays to open in August. The first was "Period of Adjustment," the latest play by Tennessee Williams, which opened to an enthusiastic crowd on Tuesday night. Williams described this play as a serious comedy. In 2 he is attempting to show another side of life other than the familiar brutal one, "But," says W. P. Covington, the Director, "audiences will still find enough of the old Williams here to generate that peculiar thrill which only Williams seems able to inspire."

On Saturday night "The Little Hut" will have its premiere performance. This excellent comedy concerns the adventures of three not-so-proper Britishers who are shipwrecked on a tropical island. It will run in repertory with "Caine Mutiny" and "Period of Adjustment."

By popular demand "Teahouse of the August Moon" will be shown on Monday nights during August. Reservations for the new plays may be made by calling the box office at GA 8-7844.

JULY BUSINESS WAS BRISK ENTIRE MONTH

By all standards Virginia Beach experienced the busiest post World War II month in history as July bowed out last Monday. It was the one fact that most everyone was in agreement.

Veterans and newcomers to the resort business reported strong business during the month of July and all of the credit for this sharp upturn in the community's economy is not attributable to the popularity of Virginia Beach.

Much credit must go to a full month of perfect beach weather with the latter half of the month finding a variable but warm that continued day after day. The temperature climbed into the 80's far more than 15 consecutive days.

As one motel operator, comparatively new in the field, put it "everyday has been like the Fourth of July this month. We call places each evening trying to find room for people who come to Virginia Beach without reservations."

Another operator remarked that July was the first month we have had since 1957 and the last month we have had since we have been open. "This is the eighth season for this particular place."

Still another stated that "June was a little slow but if there is anyway of making up for that then this past July did it. Business has never been better."

It would seem that the highly successful July business could be attributed to a combination of factors. One not to be overlooked is the city's extensive advertising program. Still another is the general popularity of Virginia Beach and third, but certainly not the least, was the wonderful weather during July.

Now, the hope is that August can provide the same hot, sun-drenched that prevailed during July.

Local Officer In Seattle Celebration

Scheduled to help Seattle, Wash., celebrate the 40th Anniversary of the city's founding is a local officer, a graduate of the city's first high school, Mr. William D. Kane, son of Mr. William R. Kane of 119 St. John Lane, Virginia Beach.

The two scenes above are in complete contrast. The top photo shows again a flagrant violation of the Virginia Beach sanitary code in the disposal of trash from a business establishment on Atlantic Avenue. The bottom photo shows another step in the beautification of the city. It shows a bed of petunias planted at the south end of Atlantic Avenue which transforms another wide trash roadside area into a veritable paradise of colorful petunias. The map above shows the 200-odd acres offered by the W and F Corporation to the Princess Anne County Board of Supervisors recently as a site for the proposed Virginia Wesleyan College. Last week a joint Virginia Beach-Princess Anne College Site Committee viewed this property with the present owners. The committee plans to view other possible locations in Princess Anne County and near Virginia Beach. Harold B. Kellam serves as chairman of the city-county group. The Virginia Methodist Conference voted in June to establish a college in this area provided land were furnished free and provided the community or area raised a certain amount of funds to match those that the conference would supply.

EDITORIAL SPEAKING

One Month Out of Twelve

Every year the month of August is set aside by the Virginia Beach-Princess Anne Rescue Squad for the one month in twelve that this fine volunteer organization asks to be on the receiving end instead of the customary giving that it does throughout the year.

August is the one month in the year that the Rescue Squad seeks to obtain funds for its operation throughout the year. It is their regular time to raise enough money to provide the splendid service it renders the citizens of Virginia Beach and Princess Anne County.

It is difficult to express in words the fine work of this organization. The Virginia Beach-Princess Anne Rescue Squad is made up of 42 men who volunteer their services for any emergency that may occur in Virginia Beach or Princess Anne County.

This week the Rescue Squad makes its annual report in asking for donations and contributions, or better still, investments in its organization. The report of its activities for the past year is startling. For instance, the Rescue Squad answered 1,191 calls of all descriptions during the past year. The members put in 11,702 man hours and the squad's vehicles traveled a total of 35,480 miles.

The Virginia Beach - Princess Anne Rescue Squad has performed a valuable service to the residents of this area. Their annual budget for this work is a modest $20,000. It is now our turn to give to the Rescue Squad. We trust that everyone will give generously to this fine organization.

REMEMBER, THIS IS RESCUE SQUAD MONTH... GIVE NOW.

WHAT OTHERS ARE SAYING

Will Congress Measure Up?

Four Presidents — Roosevelt, Truman, Eisenhower, Kennedy — have expressed themselves as favoring liberalization of depreciation allowances for industry, but Congress refuses to act, thereby retarding our economic progress.

H. Eugene Dickhut, an economic consultant, describes the results of a grossly inadequate depreciation tax allowance. It has made one-third of our industrial plant and equipment obsolete. It has retarded the adoption of the latest technological improvements. It has handicapped U. S. manufacturers in trying to compete with products from foreign countries which have far more liberal depreciation allowances. It has blocked the creation of job opportunities for America's new workers who are increasing by 1.3 million a year. All in all, present allowances fall short $8 billion to $10 billion a year of meeting the needs of industry to replace plant and equipment.

There is an immediacy about the problems created by existing depreciation policies that calls for action now, without delay.

Ultimate In Authoritarianism

Few have heard about it—but legislation is being considered by Congress which can have a profound effect on the public health.

One of the bill's major provisions would prohibit the patenting of many pharmaceutical products unless the newly discovered compound could be proven significantly more effective than all chemically related drugs already on the market. In other words, proving that a drug is safe and good—matters which are covered by long-established law — would no longer be enough. A government agency would have to agree that it was better.

If this sounds plausible to you, think again. A preparation which is effective with one patient may fail entirely with another. Only the practicing physician is competent to decide which particular drug is best in any given case. Patients, after all, are individuals, with individual idiosyncrasies. And, as the old saying has it, one man's meat may be another man's poison.

Moreover, authoritarian bodies — and any government agency with the power to decide which of a group of related drugs is best must be authoritarian—have often been guardians of orthodoxy rather than champions of progress. In the past, medical "experts" rejected Jenner's smallpox vaccine, Pasteur's anthrax vaccine, Lister's theory of antiseptics, and Semmelweis's discovery of the cause of childbed fever. All of these innovations have proven to be milestones in medical history.

American medicine is the best in the world, and the pharmaceutical industry has made an important contribution to that end. The proposed legislation would amount to a roadblock in the way of further progress—the ultimate in rule by decree.

A Needed "Export"

It has been suggested, in high official quarters: that lessons learned by the Tennessee Valley Authority could profitably be exported to other nations to which we provide aid of one kind or another. And that proposal produced an interesting comment from The Saturday Evening Post.

"While few dispute the accomplishments of TVA as an engineering achievement," says The Post, "it would be less than accurate to send abroad the impression that only by tax-consuming, semi-socialistic projects have we taken 'long leaps forward'."

"Actually the most striking progress in this industry, as in most others, have been made by private-investor companies. Despite taxes and interest rates which favor public power... at least 80 per cent of our electric power is produced by private-enterprise companies. The Idaho Power Company's Hell's Canyon dams add enormously to the power resources of the area and, incidentally, pay $10 million in Federal, state and local taxes...."

"Obviously a vast publicly financed and virtually tax-exempt enterprise like TVA can produce electricity, but the message which one might expect an American Government to send abroad is the fact that the most significant American economic progress, including that in the electric-power industry, has been made by private corporations and individuals. Sometimes one is tempted to believe that many American politicians have forgotten this fact."

This country should not attempt to force the American economic system or any other American innovation or tradition down any country's throat. But we are engaged, at a cost approaching $50 billion a year, in a no-holds-barred struggle with communism, which is simply an extension of socialism with a maximum of ruthlessness added. Self-preservation: if nothing else, should lead us to "export" the ideals and philosophies from which our strength stems—and one of the most important of these is a free enterprise system which helps maintain all the other freedoms.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Editor, Sun-News:

Dear Sir,

Weekly newspapers have been among the strongest and most effective supporters of the U. S. Savings Bonds program throughout the 20 years of its existence. Originally, of course, the reason was pure patriotism. Editors knew America needed Bond dollars to help finance the costliest war in history.

Later, other reasons emerged to win the strong peace-time support the program has enjoyed. Focused primarily on community people and events, the weekly newspaper comes close to the lives of its readers—and its editor is in a position to observe at first hand the benefits that come to Bond buyers. Having seen the houses Bond savings built, the educators they financed, the businesses they helped start, weekly editors threw their weight behind the Bond Program—and became a major factor in its success.

For the Treasury, and for the Council, may I express my great appreciation for this generous support, and offer an advance "thank you" for what you are continuing to do in bringing the Savings Bonds story to your readers. We hope the material in this latest edition of the Savings Bonds Mat Service will be helpful in this effort.

Sincerely,
ROBERT R. MATTHEWS,

ally and emotionally—he was ill with Flu, hungry and run down, he was scared of the reception he would get at home—supposing his wife didn't love him enough to take him home, had she listened now all the more to the in-laws, "I told you so?" How would his children feel about him? For a man who had run away once in the face of what seemed overwhelming problems, the idea of going back into the same situation now, made worse by his own actions, was almost immobilizing. When he first came to the Travelers Aid office he was almost dazed and not even close to what he wanted.

A caseworker, trained and experienced in helping people in difficulty, recognized his immediate needs—food, a room, an interested and concerned fellow human. Then began several days of intensive work during which Mr. Garrett first became aware that the world, through Travelers Aid, could accept him back, that he was "worth the effort" as he said, and as he was able to express his fears and his hopes he began to take a new and deeper look at himself. With the careful guidance of the caseworker, Mr. Garrett saw that he couldn't just go back as if he'd never been away, that the factors which led to his running away were still there but that he could do something about them. He began to see other people's point of view, not just his own and took a hard look at things he'd done and not done. With assured support and acceptance of the caseworker he could face unpleasant things he'd not been able to face before.

Mr. Garrett realized that the beginnings made in the office of a social agency four hundred miles from home could be continued with an agency at home he was ready for the final lap of his journey back from nowhere. One thing remained — through the Travelers Aid, in his home town his wife was interviewed, her worries and feelings were discussed with a sympathetic case worker and Mrs. Garrett made it clear she was still very much in love with her husband and with an increased understanding of him and herself she wanted him home. He went home. Later word from the Garretts says that the family is together, he is working, all is not perfect but as problems come up they work them out together, with professional help if necessary, and the little problems are caught while they are still little.

Travelers Aid has served moving people in the Norfolk area since 1917. The agency had extended service to the Virginia Beach, Princess Anne area long ago, recognizing as probably no other agency, the improbability of boundaries, for a population that moves from place to place as does the American people. But it still meant helping the client come to the Norfolk office, by arranging bus transportation if necessary. With the Communities Service office the Travelers Aid will have an extra base of operations to better serve those who need to help the travelers, the newcomer, the runaway, the migrant, the troubled person away from home.

The Communities Service office of the United Communities Fund is located at 211-19th Street. Appointments may be arranged by telephoning GA 8-1802. The third story in this series will be on the Catholic Family and Children's Service.

COUNTY, CITY SCOUTS TOPS IN CAMP ATTENDANCE IN COUNCIL

The Princess Anne-Virginia Beach District, Boy Scouts of America, topped all Districts in the Tidewater Council in Camp Kiwanis attendance this year. Under the district "Can Do" program, Harold S. Whitehurst, Princess Anne County Youth Director, broke all previous Tidewater Council Camping records. At a recent District Dinner Meeting at the Pine Tree Inn, Mr. Whitehurst received the Championship Camping promotion trophy for his work towards Camp Kiwanis. Capt. J. R. Horn, District Activities Chairman, stated upon presenting this trophy "Can Do" is a curt and confident reply given to orders by Navy men. It is also symbolic of the spirit and inspiration found in the Princess Anne-Virginia Beach District of the Boy Scouts of America. The district is proud of your good work. Mr. Whitehurst and his Camping Committee succeeded in giving to the Boy Scouts of PAVAB District the greatest camping season in the Tidewater Council's history. Mr. Whitehurst's Camping Team was called "The Suppliers" and they really supplied the GOODS this year.

Deaths

DON JENKINS

Don Jenkins, 63-year-old director of a crippled children's camp near Huntington, W. Va., died last Thursday of a heart attack while in nearby Hurricane to brief a crippled youngster on a trip to Virginia Beach.

Jenkins, who directed Camp Limp-a-Little, was planning to take a group of crippled youngsters on a summer outing to Virginia Beach. He was a former state representative for the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis. He was a native of Pomeroy, Ohio, and a graduate of Marshall University.

William Peter Davis, 76, died in a Virginia Beach hospital Sunday at 6:30 a.m. He was the widower of Elsie Barnes Davis and son of William T. and Lizzie Carroll Davis. He was a lifelong resident of Princess Anne County.

Surviving are two daughters, Mrs. Mabel Bounch of Hampton and Mrs. Alice M. Ware of Newport News; four sons, Sherman Davis of Memphis, Miss P. Davis of Back Bay, Harold D. Davis of Gloucester and Floyd R. Davis of Hampton; four sisters, Mrs. Percy Hantley of North Carolina, Mrs. Beulah Stearn of Norfolk, Mrs. Ellen Murphy of Princess Anne and Mrs. Elsie Ewell of Back Bay; three brothers, Bill Davis of Back Bay, Cecil Davis of Norfolk and London Davis of Greedy; 9 grandchildren; and 10 great-grandchildren.

A funeral service will be held in Christ Methodist Church Cemetery Tuesday at 2 p.m.

Small Business

plan has been offered continuously since 1941.

In a statement acknowledging the Treasury's action, Daniel J. Silver, St. Paul, Minn., jewelry executive and vice chairman of the National Small Business Advisory Committee, said that "big achievements come in small packages."

"Small companies account for a large percentage of the 8 million Payroll Savings who buy a million dollars' worth of U. S. Savings Bonds every hour of every working day. We are proud to help our employees save for security — part of our part in helping keep America strong and free."

Savings Bond officials said that a special Payroll Savings brochure is being sent to 11 million business firms this month, under the auspices of state governors, chambers of commerce, state and local trade associations, and other volunteer groups.

LEGAL NOTICES

VIRGINIA: In the Circuit Court of Princess Anne County on the 2nd day of August, 1961.

IN THE MATTER OF THE ESTATE OF ANNIE B. MYERS, DECEASED

It appearing to the Court that a report of the accounts of the Administrator of Annie B. Myers, deceased land of the debts and demands against the said estate, have been filed in the Clerk's Office of this Court and that more than six months have elapsed since the qualification of Frank L. Miller, Jr., Administrator of the said estate, on motion of the said Administrator, it is ordered that the creditors of Annie B. Myers and of her estate, do appear in the Court on the 28th day of August, 1961, and show cause against the payment and delivery of the estate, without refunding bonds, to those entitled thereto.

It is further ordered that a copy of this order be published once a week for four consecutive weeks in the Virginia Beach Sun-News, a newspaper having general circulation in the City of Virginia Beach, Virginia.

AUTO DEALERSHIP TO PLACE OPERATION IN ONE LOCATION

Kinnach Ford of South Norfolk is moving its entire dealership operation to Virginia Beach Boulevard where it has been maintaining a partial operation since May 1960.

The move will bring to three the number of authorized Ford dealers in the city of Norfolk.

Charles Kinnach, president of the firm, said today he hopes the move will be completed by this October.

Kinnach said that it is being made with the approval of the Ford Motor Company, which is authorizing the same type of move in other cities in order to eliminate "bunching up" of dealers in industrial areas.

"It shouldn't interfere with other Ford dealers in Norfolk since we've been selling all over the city anyway," he said.

The South Norfolk property, which includes 32,000 square feet under one roof at Potomac and Belvidere Boulevard, will be leased. Goodman-Segar-Hogan is handling the property.

The new location at 6120 Virginia Beach Boulevard (adjacent to the Norfolk Drive-In Theater) will have seven acres available for the Ford business, Kinnach said. It will feature a building in excess of 20,000 square feet under one roof primarily designed to give quick service. This includes the modern concept of "drive-in status."

"We feel that the new location will be more convenient for our customers," Kinnach said. "It is in an area of great home development."

July Heat Big Attraction For Seaside Park

Attendance at Seaside Park, Virginia Beach's popular amusement spot, has broken all records for the last 17 years during the recent Tidewater heat wave, officials announced Saturday.

The bathing beach, offering the exhilarating experience of Atlantic surf bathing on a clean, safe, constantly patrolled beachfront, is the major attraction. The boardwalk with its variety of thrill rides, skill games and shows, not to mention the delights of kidland for the junior persons, is almost equally popular, however.

And the ballrooms are another big attraction for the rock 'n' roll enthusiasts. Three orchestras — A. G. McDaniel's Saints, the Specks of RPI and the Harmonists — provide the music on a rotating basis.

On the Outdoor Stage the current attraction is Corinne Deane, who manages to keep cool and make audiences forget the heat with her dainty cloud swing high lift. The show is free, and Miss Corinne performs every day at 2:30 and 4:00 P.M. through Sunday.

An added free attraction, each Sunday afternoon, is Tracery and its trained TV dogs.

Admission to Seaside Park is free.

Richard P. Cook Paratroop Grad

Army Pvt. Richard P. Cook, son of Mr. and Mrs. Pinkney S. Cook, 103 Kanfield Ct., Virginia Beach, recently was graduated from the 101st Airborne Division Jump School at Fort Campbell, Ky. Cook received his paratrooper wings after completing three weeks of intensive ground and aerial training which included five parachute jumps. The 101st, a major Strategic Army Corps (STRAC) unit, maintains a constant state of readiness to move anytime, anywhere, in case of national emergency. Cook entered the Army's November 1960 and received basic combat training at Fort Benning, Ga. A 1956 graduate of Princess Anne High School, Lynnhaven, he attended Wake Forest College, Winston-Salem, N.C.

Entries Coming In For Famous Darlington "500"

Two Pontiacs, a Chevrolet and a Mercury became the first cars to arrive in for Darlington Raceway's 12th annual Labor Day Southern "500" stock car classic.

Signing as drivers for the $80,000 event were Junior Johnson, Wilkesboro, N.C. and Woodie Wilson, Mobile, Ala., in the Pontiacs, Eddiuel Zerkakis, Richmond, Va., the Chevrolet and Curtis Crider, N. Charleston, S.C., the Mercury.

All are 1961 models. Johnson, the veteran of the group, first drove in stock car's annual world series during the 1953 race. The portly Carolinian's best finish was 11th in 1958.

One of stock car racing's twelve classic winners, Johnson won the Daytona 500 in 1960, the Pontiac (adroit served notice he would be a serious contender for stock cars oldest crown by shattering the Darlington Southern 500 one-lap mark last week during time trials. The record, 128.630 mph set last year by Cotton Owens in a Ford, fell to Johnson at 127.577 mph. Zerkakis was fourth last year in a Chevrolet with Crider 20th in the same race, his first in the Southern 500.

Wilson, a rookie at Darlington, faces a drivers test prior to time trials. With starting field limited, this year, to forty-four fastest cars in time trials all established records are expected to fall in the competition for the money spots. An entry list of sixty cars are expected by filing deadline, August 23.

Marine Officer Secures Excellent Position

Nationwide Executive Survey
219 Flatiron Bldg.
Norfolk, Virginia

Dear Mr. Morecock: I wish to thank you and the Nationwide Executive Survey for the outstanding work which led to the procurement of the fine position I now have.

The personal interest in my case and the hard work done by you and your staff is greatly appreciated by me and my wife.

I have received many compliments on the outstanding appearance of my resume and I now realize just how important a first class resume is since it is the first impression that the company has of an individual as a potential employee. Our Personnel Manager told me that this is what brought me into his organization. In other words, the resume was the key to the many interviews I had.

George please feel free to use my name as a reference in the future. I will be more than happy to recommend you.

Thanks again and I will keep you posted on my progress with my company.

Very Sincerely Yours,

VEPCO Revenue Shows Increase

The Virginia Electric and Power Company today reported operating revenues for June of $15,426,000 and a net income for the month of $2,810,000, according to A. H. McDowell, Jr., Vepco President.

For the first six months of this year, operating revenues totaled $84,967,000 and net income amounted to $16,179,000, compared with operating revenues of $79,877,000 and a net income of $15,086,000 during the same period in 1960.

Earnings per share of the company's common stock for the current twelve months amounted to $1.87, based on 14,910,000 shares outstanding. June 30, compared with $1.81 per share on the same number of shares outstanding in June, 1960.

During the past twelve months, Vepco gained 28,000 customers, of which 19,000 were electric and 4,000 were gas. The company now has approximately 769,800 electric and 102,200 gas customers.

The company has spent over $35,000,000 on new construction already this year of its record 1960 construction budget of $85,000,000. Large portions of this amount have gone toward a new steam generating unit at the Portsmouth and Possum Point Stations, and a hydroelectric station on the Roanoke River, about eight miles upstream from Roanoke Rapids, N.C.

Construction is progressing on schedule on the experimental atomic plant at Part, S.C., being built by Vepco and three neighboring utilities. Also, Vepco has in the planning stages a fifth generating unit at its Chesterfield Power Station, and a mine-mouth generating station near Petersburg, W. Va., which will ultimately have a capacity of about 1,000,000 kilowatts.

Temple's Birthday Dance Is Sunday

The Cavalier Beach Club at Virginia Beach will once again be the site of Temple Emanuel's Annual Birthday Dance. Tommy Gwaltney and his Big Band will furnish the music beginning at 9:30 P.M. on Sunday, August 6.

Chairman Len Spector reports that the dance will be held, rain or moon, and predicts a wonderful time for all attending. The public is cordially invited.

Can Rolling Meadows build happiness into a home?

Rolling Meadows has been planned to give growing families a happier way of life in many ways. The homes are built on rolling meadow land bordered by tall pines, clear lakes and the gentle curves of the Lynnhaven River. Extra large finished two car garages provide space for future expansion. Little children are safer here too . . . there are no homes on through streets. Schools are in walking distance; churches, shopping centers and recreation areas are only minutes away. If all these things can help make your family's life happier, then drive out today to Rolling Meadows!

Rolling Meadows

Where a home is an investment in family happiness—an investment so sound that VA, FHA-insured, and conventional financing are all available.

To reach Rolling Meadows, drive out Virginia Beach Boulevard to Little Neck road, turn left and go two blocks.

This is the Lynnhurst, one of the many different models from which you can choose at Rolling Meadows. Its contemporary styling and 1,240 Square Feet of living space, plus finished double garage make it ideal for growing families.

100 Years Ago This Week...in THE CIVIL WAR

(Events exactly 100 years ago this week in the Civil War—told in the language and style of today.)

Confederates Defeat Federals at Bull Run

Terror-Stricken Troops Clog Streets

WASHINGTON—July 21—The nation's capital was stunned today by the utter defeat of Federal troops by Confederate forces at Bull Run, a sleepy, green creek near Manassas, Junction, some 25 miles southwest of here.

It was the first major setback for Union troops since the war with the secessionist states. Washington's usual Sunday evening peace was shattered as panic-stricken units of the routed forces filled the streets.

"We have lost the day—and it's a damned bad loss," cried one Union cavalry officer to a crowd of curious correspondents.

EARLY casualty figures were staggering. First reports put Federal losses at 2,900 out of 30,000 engaged. But as the day wore on, the lists were lengthened. In the neighborhood of 1,800 with some 22,000 on the scene.

Observers report about 500 at least 400 Confederate dead were seen on the Union battlefield.

Officials concede that the Union "missing" figure includes hundreds of raw, three-month recruits who simply ran from the conflict, shedding field packs and arms as they bolted.

Many of these bedraggled specimens were in sorry evidence when the fighting ended.

Manassas is a strategic rail junction considered "the gateway to Richmond" by Union leaders.

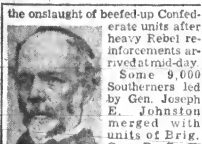

THE DAY began as a picnic for scores of Confederates and other politicians who went with their giggling ladies by coach to Manassas to watch the action.

These well-bred sightseers, dripping wet with the heat, were among the first to reach here after the rout.

President Lincoln is reported to have told one: "Congratulations, you have beaten the Army back." The chief executive, crushed by the stampeding of his troops, reportedly has ordered a major reorganization of the Army of the Potomac.

Leaders of this Army are widely reported to have been reluctant to mount the attack because of their untrained units, but local pressure for a show of strength against Southern forces has been strong.

WHAT HAPPENED?
Answers vary widely in this chaotic city tonight, but it appears that Federal troops under Gen. Irvin McDowell fell back under of Fort Sumter fame, a few hours before the victory.

McDowell, it was reliably reported, took two days to coax his amateur army to the scene. Then he routed them at 2 a.m., groggy and scared, to launch the ill-fated offensive.

BATTLEFIELD reports were strong in praise of one Confederate officer, Col. Thomas J. Jackson, whose troops held firm under a vicious pounding. Brig. Gen. Barnard Bee rode among his men, shouting: "There stands Jackson, like a stone wall."

And the Federal troops will have something else to remember—a wild, blood-curdling scream that the Confederate troops loose when in bayonet attack. It was first heard today and has been dubbed "the Rebel yell."

Gen. Fremont In New Command

ST. LOUIS, Mo.—July 21—Maj. Gen. John C. Fremont today took over command of all Union forces in the West.

Fremont, who earned the nickname "The Pathfinder" in early Army days as an explorer in the Western prairies, was the Republican party's presidential candidate in 1856, winning on the first convention ballot at the age of 43.

He lost to James Buchanan in 1860, and was elected to the 114th Congress in 1861.

Change Top Job

MONTGOMERY, Ala.—July 21—R. M. T. Hunter of Virginia today was appointed secretary of state in the Confederate cabinet, succeeding Robert Toombs of Georgia. Toombs resigned to become a general in the Confederate army.

The National Outlook

For many years the New York Stock Exchange has published a bulletin designed for the use of its members. It gives various data about the work of the Exchange, new companies listed for trading, long-time dividend paying concerns, and so forth. It never gives subject to what to buy or sell, nor in any way indicates an opinion on an individual security.

(One of the annual features in this bulletin is a list of the members of the "billionaire's club." Those are companies whose shares are listed on the Exchange which, in the preceding year, had sales or revenues of at least one billion dollars. The 1960 membership of this group has just been published and since almost all of our largest publicly owned corporations in the field of production are listed on the New York Stock Exchange, changes among those which rate this honor are of more than special interest.)

In 1960 there were only 52 of these companies, an increase of one over 1959. But there were four new members—American Motors Corporation, Douglas Aircraft Co., Inc., Sperry Rand Corp., and F. W. Woolworth Company. The three who fell below the billion dollar mark in 1960 were Armco Steel Corporation, North American Aviation, Inc., and United Aircraft Corporation. The exchange also noted that the "billionaire's" as a group showed an increase in sales from 1959 to 1960 of 4 percent and a rise of 2.5 percent in profits. This is appreciably better than corporations as a whole were able to show.

Another compilation of corporations of note that passing interest is that of the 100 largest. This is published each year by the First National City Bank of New York in its monthly letter. Only non-financial corporations are included, and the selection is based upon total assets. This list, therefore, is quite different from that of the Stock Exchange, although there are innumerable duplications.

In terms of total assets the largest non-financial corporation we have in the United States is a public utility—the American Telephone and Telegraph Company ($22,558 million). Next in size is the Standard Oil Company (New Jersey, $10,090 million). Then comes General Motors Corporation ($8,553 million).

The smallest member of the 100 largest is the Erie-Lackawanna Railroad with $688 million, and next is the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Company with $711 million.

The bank gives many further significant facts about these 100 corporations. For example, the average capital investment for each worker was $39,590. Among the public utilities the average was $28,100 for each worker; in transportation, it was $41,000; in manufacturing, $24,700; and in retail trade, $8,700.

Total taxes paid were more than $15 billion. This was equal to $5.29 per share of common stock, as contrasted to an average dividend of $2.00 per share.

Local Soldier In Overseas Training

Army Pfc. Paul L. Aesch, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roland Aesch, 5038-F Gunter St., Bayside, recently participated with other personnel from the 4th Armored Division in a five-week field training exercise in Grafenwöhr, Germany.

During this exercise members of the division received training in military skills ranging from individual physical training to the firing of guided missiles.

The 18-year-old soldier, a rifleman in Company C of the division's 54th Infantry which is regularly located in Hettbrunn, entered the Army in July 1960 and completed basic training at Fort Jackson, S.C. Aesch attended Virginia Beach High School.

OVER THE FENCE

By NELLIE P. MATTHEWS

The board met Monday night and decided that the annual American Little League banquet will be held Tuesday, August 15 at the Port City Officers' Club. The time is 6:30 p.m. All players of both major and minor leagues, officers, umpires, managers and coaches will be guests of the League. All other persons will be charged $1.25 per person for a roast beef dinner. Phyllis Soffield, chairman of the banquet committee, is doing a great job with the arrangements and will see that all Little League parents will be checked for reservations.

This yearly banquet is the climax of the baseball season. We urge everyone to attend to recognize our sons who have played the game well. No long-winded speeches will exhaust you. Too many and certificates will be presented to the deserving players. The only business will be the election of next year's officers — a necessary affair while we have the group all together.

TUESDAY'S GAMES

Sports 14, Tigers 8

Rotarians 9, Cubs 4

The Sports beat the Tigers and there is celebration in the land. Pitcher Bobby Thomas, with his first win, gave up 8 runs on 7 hits, struck out 9 and walked 7. Bill Batchelder and Lee were all two for four and Steve Thomas got his first hit in the majors. All you Sports looked really alive and played real good ball. Congratulations!

While the Tigers veterans roared, David Smyace and Billy Wack-haus went two-for-four and Steve Conner doubled to left. Pitcher Bob Finney was doing a fine job and lost the score 7-4 at the half-way mark. But the Sports came back with a tremendous sixth inning and the Tigers just couldn't play the game out.

Running out of time, the second game went only five innings. Tied up 4-4 at the end of the 4th, the Rotarians poured on the coal and scored 5 runs in the fifth. Pitchers Almore and Korney together struck out 9 Cubs and walked only 4. Bobby Gregory at first base had a big night putting the ball and accounting for four of the six Rotarian put-outs. Bobby was robbed in the first by a terrific catch made by Cub center-fielder David Brown. And a put-out in the 4th—child to first—Crosby to first—was one of the prettiest plays seen all season.

Tomorrow night: Rotarians vs. Tigers and Cubs vs. Sports. Then on Tuesday, the final game of the year, a make-up, will find the Cubs vs. Rotarians and Sports vs. Tigers.

WEDNESDAY'S GAMES

Cubs 2, Sports 1

Tigers 7, Rotarians 2

The first game pretty much belonged to the pitchers. Crosby and Hodgson teamed up for the Cubs to allow one run on one hit, faced 26 sports, striking out 11 and walking 7. Though Tom Batchelder gave up 6 hits, they were all singles, and scattered through 5 innings. Keith Gore went two-for-three and Scott Larson got the Sports' only hit, a single through second base in the fourth inning. Everyone who contributed both money and service.

Tiger Bill Mayo faced 29 Cubs, gave up 5 runs on 5 hits, struck out 14 and walked only 4. He certainly gave the fielders a rest, there being only four put-outs for his team. Right fine pitching, Bill. Sessum and Johnson both tripled to center field.

Gibby Henderson, playing his first major league game, got his first hit and managed to score on errors. How does it feel, Gibby? And Keith Gore — two-for-three against Bobby Buxton, plays a lot of shortstop for a rookie. He made a beautiful catch of a hard hit ball for the first Tiger out. And he manages to get on base a lot too.

Despite the spur-of-the-moment-ness of our fund-raising drive Saturday night, we collected $350.00. This will surely help to pay for the banquet, and the League thanks everyone who contributed both money and service.

The second game was another seven-hitter, crowded with unearned runs and too many errors. Chipper McQuilkin pitched real good ball, striking out 9 and walking only 3. Rotarian Mike Kenney did all right for himself, allowing only 3 hits and connecting with two hits for three times at bat. Tiger Ken Miller really messed things up for the Rotarians in the third with a smashing fence-hitter to center to score three runs. Ben Sessum got a smooth double to right field and Bill Mayo, playing an awful lot of third base, never had a chance. Bill walked all four times he came up. Stanley Hemby and White McNeal both singled to left to account for two of the Rotarians' hits.

Friday's Games

Rotarians 10, Sports 4

Tigers 12, Cubs 5

Rotarian Mike Waller, who always does a fine job behind the plate, had himself quite an evening. Mike got two base hits and a double, two runs batted in, and a cool throw-out at third. Real neat playing. Mike. The first time he's gone all the way this season. Dean Estaminger pitched a four-hit, four-run ball game Way to go, Deenie! Mark Sheen doubled to right in the sixth, and Sports Bobby Thomas and Craig Waring both doubled to left. Craig is credited with two of the Sports four runs.

Mrs. Allen A. Perkins of Norfolk has been the guest of Mrs. Margaret C. Moore on Cavalier Drive. Mrs. Moore has also had her two granddaughters, Tracy Moore and Peggy Moore of Norfolk, visiting her for the past two weeks.

Alexander King, best-selling author of May This House Be Safe From Tigers and Mine Enemy Grows Older, this month shares a hilarious episode that concerned him and the "telephone man," one time when he owed the telephone company just a few thousand dollars. The story will be included in Mr. King's book of memoirs, I Should Have Kissed Her More, which will be published in October.

Here's one tropic paradise whose climate in July is just as glorious as it is in January—only the prices are better. At the Virgin Islands National Park, for instance, the entire family can camp, swim, snorkel, skin dive, explore old Danish ruins, and soak up a whole summer of sun in a couple of fun-filled weeks, in a priceless fragment of America.

Noted actor Walter Slezak believes that children should be introduced to the world's great operas first as exciting bedtime or mealtime stories. Then, when the work is finally heard on a record or seen "live," the child will find old familiar friends instead of a stodgy cultural exercise. He's been "telling operas" to his children for years and now Ingrid, Erica, and Leo prefer "La Bohème" to a double feature any day.

This spectacular "Unusual Suburban Home" was designed by the owner, Mr. Cecil Alexander. He built it around the court, which is always filled with light and plants and people meeting each other as they move from room to room. From an impromptu picnic on a hot summer's day to big formal parties, the atrium is the focus of the Alexanders' family life.

GETTING AROUND

. . . to Our Pleasant Places and People

UNDER THE HEADING "Men Whose Jobs We Don't Want Under Any Circumstances" put the name Claude Souder, Jr. Mr. Souder is in charge of making a periodic "bite count" for the Broward County, Florida, Anti-Mosquito District. It's not a strenuous job, really. All that he (or one of the other hardies in his crew) has to do is stand in a given place for two minutes, and wait—for mosquitoes to land on him. You see, the number of mosquitoes that land on an inspector within a two-minute interval, in an area away from the sun and wind, gives him a fairly accurate gauge of the mosquito invasion. If the count is high, the district's spray plane is ordered out to cover the area with insecticide, and the inspector can limp away, sure of another job well done.

Our Reading, Massachusetts, correspondent just called up with the news that the "History of New England From 1630 To 1649" was finally returned to the New Bedford library this summer. The book was 129 years overdue. Mr. and Mrs. John M. Bullard did it while cleaning out their own book collection. It had come down to them through

Val Winston, an overworked husband of San Fernando, California, was heard to mutter, "I'm not off Saturdays—just under new management."

Thanks for the tip, Mr. Sol Troup. Mr. Troup, who lives near Suffern, New York, and who has rarely ever been seen without a cigar in his mouth, recommends the icebox as a humidifier. It keeps cigars fresh forever, Mrs. Troup agrees, and adds she doesn't grudge the space they take up, since Sol, when he sneaks down for a midnight snack, is only after a good smoke.

Workers for the Cancer Foundation in Wyandotte, Dearborn, Mt. Clemens, Berkley, and Pontiac, Michigan, want to remind neighbors who take advantage of local white sales, this time of the year, to think twice about their old sheets and pillowcases before relegating them to the scrap bag to be used as dustcloths. Old linen can be put to use by the Foundation to hold dressings for the relief of patients. In fact, we think it's a good idea for everybody to send along torn, discarded sheets and pillowcases where they will bring comfort to a suffering human being. The information operator in your community can supply you with the number to call, or consult the yellow pages.

Parents in Mt. Lebanon, Pennsylvania, can be sure that most of their children will avoid foreseeable accidents on their bikes this summer, as a result of the police department's bicycle-inspection and safety campaign. Working with the Mt. Lebanon PTA, the police set up inspection stations at the community's schools. Bikes were checked for faulty equipment, some were grounded, and all those in good condition were given an "all clear" and a license plate. The police also showed bicycle-safety movies and gave lectures on the proper care of the bikes. After that, the kids wheeled confidently off for a summer of fun.

From a reader near Millburn, New Jersey, we just got the word of, an automobile dealer she's heard about who bought a 39-foot pleasure cruiser for use by groups of his employees. He named the boat "Fringe Benefit."

If you live near Des Peres or Rock Hill, Missouri (or anywhere else, for that matter), and you have a lawn problem—Johnson grass, for instance, that won't let anything else grow around it—drop a line to Tom Madden, in Kennett, Mo. Tom's in the goose-leasing business. Geese love Johnson grass, and it only takes two or three birds to control an acre of the stuff. Over 15,000 geese are leased each year, mostly to people who grow cotton, it's true, but you can't ever tell when Johnson grass will crop up around your property. Oh yes, he buys the geese back when the season is over.

Edward L. Hogan, an 83-year-old railroad-crossing watchman who lives near Aurora, Colorado, had a watch that stopped one day. That caused all kinds of trouble since Mr. Hogan's job depends on knowing when to wait for a train, so he determined it would never happen to him again. He began to collect watches and now owns about a dozen. This didn't strike us as such an unusual hobby until we found out that Mr. Hogan wears his entire collection, all at the same time, and he says his arms are plenty long enough to hold future additions to the group.

"Middle Age," says a Silver Spring, Maryland, reader, "is when your narrow waist and broad mind begin to change places."

It's never too late to hear news like this. Ansel Borkland, of Cleveland Heights, Ohio, broke the law and got praised by Judge Ostrovsky for it, too. It seems that Mr. Borkland's car scraped the back end of a tractor-trailer rig when he tried to pull around it. He could have driven away, since no one had seen him, but he stopped and called the police, who came and gave him a ticket charging him with improper passing. Judge Ostrovsky, however, refused to fine him and even dropped all court costs because, he said, Mr. Borkland showed a kind of integrity he rarely sees these days.

In Royal Oak, Michigan, police had no trouble tracking down housebreaker Daniel McDonald, who, while making his escape, jumped over a fence and landed on a skunk.

"Do It Yourself, Then Call Us," is the good word in a Kensington, Maryland, TV-repair shopwindow.

The Petal Pushers of Parkrose, Oregon, are currently holding a progressive gardening party. Every couple of weeks, all the ladies get together with box lunches and spades in hand and "invade" the gardens of two of the club members. It's a day filled, we hear, with good conversation, fine food, lots of laughs, and at the end there are two more beautifully groomed gardens that the whole group can be proud of.

BY ALEXANDER KING

Alexander King—painter, author, and great entertainer. "I Should Have Kissed Her More" is the title of his third book—and undoubtedly third best seller—which will be published this October.

PETER KILIAN walked into my life some twenty-three years ago, when I was living out in the country and trying to write a play. Six plays in fact. At any rate, I was living in an enormous mansion that a friend of mine had loaned me while he had to go abroad on some urgent business of his own. One afternoon there was an unexpected knock on the door and, when I stepped out on the wind-blown porch of this fraudulently lush edifice, I was confronted by a little, gray-haired character who seemed to have stepped straight out of a novel by Charles Dickens.

"Mr. King live here?" he asked.

You must remember that for quite a few years before this weather-beaten gnome had landed on my doorstep, I had been dodging squads of sheriffs, miscellaneous process servers and assorted bill collectors with an agility which the hunted wildlife of the world tried vainly to emulate. So, naturally, although my visitor looked harmless enough, I had no intention to offer up my true identity without further painstaking investigation.

"Which King do you want?" I asked.

"I'm looking for Alexander King," he said. "I'd like just a word with him, if you don't mind."

For one unguarded moment a cunning look came into his moist, blue eyes and for just the shadow of a second a certain ominous twitching in his shaggy brows gave potent warning to my ever alert, precautionary antennae.

"Well," I said, "my name is Gabriel King, and you're looking for my cousin Alexander, who isn't around, just now."

"Ah," he said, "that's too bad, because I've elaborately on our phony seafaring doormat and followed me into the house. He was wearing a sort of oversized scotch plaid Mackinaw that had at least a dozen pockets on it, and when he removed his poison-green cap with thick earflaps that could be tied under the chin, his bristly gray hair stood out wildly in all directions.

He looked like an elderly schnauzer that had died on me some years before, and it may very well be that this resemblance was really the secret keynote to the harmonious rapprochement between us.

"Perhaps something a little stronger than coffee would be more to your taste," I said.

"It might, at that," he conceded. "I've been out since six-thirty this morning, because I wanted to catch the seven o'clock ferry at Nyack."

I took him into my workroom (which he instantly called a "study"), and proceeded to pour him a shot of Scotch.

He held the glass up to the light and said, "You're a most generous man—Mr. King. May you never lack the wherewithal to serve it, nor a grateful friend to appreciate it." Then he poured it down in one eye-watering swoosh.

"Want a chaser?" I asked.

"Naw," he said. "There is nothing like natural saliva."

"Sit down," I said.

"I will, for a moment, if you don't mind," he said. He took out a dark, measly little pipe and proceeded to stuff it, getting crumbs of tobacco all over his coat. With methodical care he slowly collected all this debris, and when he finally lighted really taken quite a bit of trouble to find this place. It isn't listed anywhere, and I had a heck of a time locating it."

I can't tell you why—but I had suddenly developed a kind of liking for the old goat, and although it would certainly have been to my advantage to get rid of him—I simply couldn't get myself to turn him cold-bloodedly away. You know how it is with people—there are occasionally incalculable bonds of sympathy that spring up between them—mysterious radiations that encompass two human hearts—so that from the first moment they meet they cannot ever again feel indifferent to one another.

"Come in," I said, "and I'll rustle you up a cup of coffee."

"Thank you," he said. "I take that very kindly of you. It's a pretty raw day, and I could stand a cup of something hot."

He proceeded to wipe his clean shoes very up, he filled the room with acrid clouds of what subsequently turned out to be some of his own home-raised weed. "Grow everything I can myself," he said, smiling comfortably. "Be sufficient unto yourself," is my motto. Tell you the truth, this man Alexander King, this cousin of yours, would be a lot better off if he had that as his slogan."

"Is that so?" I said. "What do you know about him, anyway?"

"I know that he owes the telephone company twenty-three hundred dollars, and I came around today especially to talk to him about it."

"Oh, yes," I said. "I've heard about that phone bill of his—and I must say, he isn't altogether to blame."

"Ah?"

"He had a crazy house guest up at his place in the country, two summers ago, and this cookie was in love with a geisha girl in Kobe, Japan, and I think he called her up at her native tea house a couple of dozen times between Friday and Monday."

"That's certainly unfortunate," Kilian admitted, "but it is the iron-bound duty of a responsible householder to look after his property and the welfare of his chattels. That's the code of Abraham."

"So you're a bill collector for the phone company," I said. "I would never have guessed it."

"No, you wouldn't," he said. "There's lots and lots who wouldn't, that's why I get the worst accounts. I get the terminal cases, after everyone else has given up. And, if I do say so myself, I've had some remarkable results."

"I bet you have. Are many phone bills as high as all that? How come they let them run so long?"

"Unusual circumstances often prevail—as in your cousin's case, for instance. Now then, just a week ago yesterday, something happened that pleased me mightily. Yes sir, it was a real pleasure for me to see happen what happened, on that day."

"Care to tell about it?" I said.

He took out an enormous old railroad engineer's watch that had a tick in it you could hear plainly all over the room, looked at it with knotted brows for a moment and said, "I've got thirty-seven minutes to get back to the station and catch my train, so I'll have to make it brief."

"You see, Mr. King, some collection cases are so difficult that, after a while, you can't help forgetting all about the money that's involved, and you just sort of get interested in the case itself. It brings out the Nimrod in you."

"The primitive hunting instinct," I said.

"Exactly! Well, then, I'd had this case that I'd been tracing for almost three years, and a couple of times it had come so close to solution that I finally decided to forget all about it. It was too heart-breaking to be right on top of a payoff when suddenly the subject took your wind and was lost in the underbrush without leaving a spoor behind him. This party's name, by the way, was Millard Tompkins. Ever hear of him?"

"No," I said. "Can't say that I have. This guy Tompkins was very discouraging, was he?"

"The worst," he said. "And it was in this spirit that I was going home late one Friday afternoon, and, as I may have mentioned before, I generally take the ferry up at Nyack—that's where I make my home. I've been a widower for twenty years, and I'm very punctual in my habits—so I generally catch the same ferry, each evening. Now, then, I don't know if you're familiar with this ferry, Mr. King; and if you aren't, you ought to take a look at her some time, for she's a real beauty. She's an old Mississippi sidewheeler—trim, and lacy, and white, like a bride, and if you stand on deck and look alongside that little beauty, you've got a feeling that people who travel in airplanes have already missed most of the fun in life at the very start. At any rate, I'd always had a nodding acquaintance with the captain of this vessel, and when I went up on deck from where I could see him, he smiled to me and suddenly gave a loud blast on the horn. I couldn't have been more surprised. It was a most unorthodox procedure, and before I could recover from the shock of it, he blew another blast even louder and longer than before. And then he opened the door to his little glass-enclosed cabin and waved to me to come closer. 'He's drunk for sure,' I thought to myself, 'and I just hope we make it to the other side all in one piece.'

"Come on up here," he shouted to me. 'Come up and take the wheel if you like.'

"So, I climbed up the iron stairs, and when I came abreast of him I could plainly smell that my suspicions about him were only too just. 'You're feeling very gay, for a weekday,' I said. 'What's the cause of all the joy, anyway?'

"It's my last ride on this ferry," he said. 'I'm retiring from active service tomorrow. Go ahead and take yourself a shot. It's on the house!'

"I stepped up and poured myself a little one. 'You don't look old enough to retire,' I said, by way of truth rather than flattery."

"I ain't," he said. 'I ain't supposed to quit for another five years. But I've had some good luck—some mighty good luck, lately, and there's no use carrying my rheumatism up and down this river if I don't really have to, is there?'

"There is not," I said. 'And is it permitted to ask what the nature of this luck of yours happens to be, so we might keep an eye out for it ourselves, in case it ever passes in our direction?'

"You may ask, indeed," he said, 'and I'll tell you what it is. You see, some eight years ago that daughter of mine married a no-good Hollywood character who, for the next six years, wasn't able to earn a penny for himself, much less for her. Then, two years ago, he suddenly got a job to go off to Africa and make some kind of a film with natives and wild animals and everything—and—now listen carefully—this film is making such a mint of money that my daughter and my son-in-law insist that I give up the river and come and live with them in California. Now, I'm asking you—is there a Santa Claus? He turned away from me and gave another fierce look on the horn, then he slapped me on the back and said, 'You'll come up to the house with me the minute we land, and I'll introduce you to the lot of them. Besides, you'll get to meet my son-in-law, who's a real celebrity now—and you'll have a chance to boast that you know him personally. You may have heard of him already. His name is Millard Tompkins.'

"I have heard of him," I said. 'And you tell me he's rich now?'

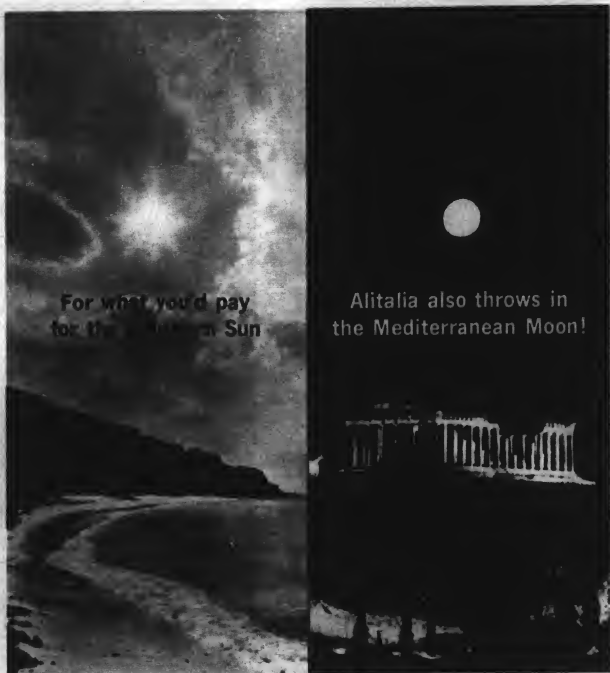

"He's rolling in the stuff," said the captain. 'And not a bit proud, either. You'll have a treat shaking hands with him. Finish your drink—we're ready to land.'"

"It was this guy you'd been looking for for three years," I said. "How did he take it?"

"Like Trader Horn—philosophically."

Later, after Kilian had gone, and only the smell of his home-grown shag still permeated the premises—I wondered whether he knew that he'd been talking to Alexander King that afternoon. I really couldn't make up my mind. He was such a cozy old dodger.

But when, during my first television program, two years ago, I happened to look casually out over the audience, I noticed him sitting on the aisle down in the very first row. He waved to me reassuringly, like an old friend, and after the show he came back to my dressing room and said, "You served me the best whisky I'd drunk in maybe ten years—and real hospitality is an institution so rare and so sacred that I wouldn't have profaned it for the world. After all—there's more to life than just money, isn't there—although I'm mighty glad you're finally making lots of it. By the way, I think there's a little account of yours that is still outstanding—isn't there? . . . And some accounts—as you perfectly well know—are never outdated—are they, Mr. King? They are never outdated, even if they happened twenty-five years ago, because, as you and I know, they are inscribed—indelibly—on the heart!"

Underwater Paradise

BY MICHAEL FROME

FOR A SPLIT SECOND the octopus and I stared each other in the eye through clear sunlit waters. He was a small, unhappy-looking fellow, no larger than my hand, and not very fearsome. Then he showed the unmistakable sign of fright, changing color from brown to yellow to blushing crimson, and scurried off to cover.

He left me in an underwater forest of fragile perfection. Coral of many hues arose like trees, mountains, and spires. Schools of brilliant fish perched lazily on stony branches or swam past like birds in flight. Lacy purple sea fans, swaying in a gentle current, and delicate anemones carpeted the reef-like flowering shrubbery in full aquatic bloom.

I was swimming along the first and only underwater nature trail in the world, in the Virgin Islands National Park, a marvel to compare with Yellowstone or the Grand Canyon. In fifteen minutes, I rubbed shoulders and fins with bizarre trumpet fish and the yellow-speckled French angel fish, watched a giant green turtle at lunch in a pasture of lush turtle grass, and yelped loudly in the quiet underseas world when I stepped on a sharp, spiny sea urchin. Also, by reading the labels etched on the inside of submerged glass plates, I learned about the majesty and mystery of the exquisite realms of coral, master architect of the reef.

The underwater trail is not quite for everyone. It requires a moderate degree of swimming skill, considering it reaches a depth of ten feet. But the Virgin Islands National Park, a treasure of natural history and scenery on land and underwater, is for everyone, in the same sense as all the rest of our twenty-nine National Parks.

The Virgin Islands are within easy reach. I flew there from Friendship Airport, near Washington, D. C., by jet, in four and a half hours. The flight from Miami takes only two hours. Leaving Chicago after breakfast, you could still reach the Virgin Islands in time for an invigorating swim or a snorkel before dinner.

Accommodations in winter, when the Virgin Islands are a fashionable retreat from Northern cold weather, admittedly are expensive. Summer is another story. The setting remains unchanged, the climate is mild, but rates drop appreciably. Summer-cottage rates are around $15 per person, including meals—one of the best vacation buys of the year for what you get in food, service, and beach-front glory.

Then, too, there is camping; as far as I can determine, the campground on St. John is the first and only one in the entire West Indies. Campers have been given a superb sheltered beachcomber setting at Hawknest Bay, complete with tent platforms, hammock shelters, tables, and grills. You can either bring your own gear or rent it in the little town of Cruz Bay, two miles off. Stores in the village sell canned and dried foods but no meats or vegetables, so campers can expect to rely on fishing—as they do almost everywhere.

ST. JOHN, two-thirds of which is occupied by the National Park, constitutes a small but priceless fragment of America, measuring nine miles long and five miles wide. The Park was established in 1956, none too soon. The past few years have seen the unending discovery and commercial development of one "unspoiled" West Indies beach after another, in the same pattern that has swept up and down the Atlantic Coast of continental United States. In time, only St. John may be left to show sparkling beaches, tropical forests, Danish ruins, and magnificent coral reefs in their untouched state.

St. Croix and St. Thomas have their unique glories, too. Men have lived on these islands for several thousand years. Among the earliest were the Arawaks, who farmed peaceably near the beaches. Then came the ferocious Caribs, a hungry band of aborigines who were not above cooking their enemies for dinner.

When Christopher Columbus touched St. Croix briefly on his second voyage, the Caribs greeted him with a volley of poisoned arrows, and he proceeded on his way. On that trip Columbus named the myriad islands in honor of St. Ursula and the eleven thousand virgins.

St. Croix, the largest island, clings to its colonial architecture and history, but Danish, rather than American. In Christianssted, the main city (population 4200), visitors experience the flavor of the past, recalling the time when this was one of the wealthiest islands in the Indies, its planters thriving on slavery, sugar, and rum. The Danish influence crops up repeatedly, unexpectedly, and pleasantly. Everywhere are the typically Scandinavian archways, decorative architecture, and street names.

The Danes acquired the Virgin Islands in the 1700's as their sole possession in America. Here they established sugar plantations, built their estate houses on high breezy hills, and prospered until the mid-Nineteenth century, when sugar prices fell and the slaves were freed. Now crumbling ruins of one stone mill after another dot the lush landscape of St. Croix, and the estate houses have been incorporated into resort hotels and guesthouses.

There is no lack of modernity on St. Thomas, either. "I wouldn't call this a Caribbean boom," said my friend Darwin Cregue, the deputy commissioner of trade (and a Harvard man), "just a St. Thomas boomlet." We were standing on the veranda at Government House, headquarters of the Presidentially appointed Governor, overlooking the red-roofed houses and beautiful, sweeping harbor of Charlotte Amalie, a popular stop with cruise ships. An odd fact of history is that the U. S. paid the Danes $25,000,000 for the Virgin Islands in 1917, solely to keep them out of German hands, and promptly forgot all about them. Now tourists spend just about $25,000,000 yearly in the Islands, while the growing St. Thomas colony of realtors, builders, architects, bankers, and stockbrokers is ever adding to prosperity and "property values."

Speaking of values, the twenty-five shops between Queen's Street and the Waterfront Promenade offer fantastic bargains from all over the world—Danish silver, French perfume, Swiss watches, liquors, exotic fabrics from the Far East, aqualung equipment, underwater cameras—all because St. Thomas is a duty-free port. And for the benefit of those who come this way, may it always remain so!

ST. THOMAS is matchless as a resort island. There is no rainy season nor high humidity. The landscape is brightened with showy hibiscus, red oleander, and purple bougainvillea. If you have lots of money you can rent a yacht, or bring your own, and sail the bluest blue waters in the world. If you have more energy than money you can go aqualung diving and visit sunken sailing ships. You can take an excellent day-long trip by ferry, then by jeep to explore the National Park, snorkeling on the nature trail at Trunk Bay or lunching at Caneel Bay.

On St. Thomas itself, you can swim at Magens Bay, a classic palm-fringed tropical beach, which the Virgin Islanders have wisely reserved as a park for the use of all. Or you can drive to Signal Mountain, 1500 feet high, and look down on the beach and the sparkling Caribbean from the Mountain Top Hotel, home of the banana daiquiri. And after sundown there are many types of night-life, from native calypso spots, totally informal, to dinner-dancing at the luxury hotels.

But despite the leisure, fun, and good company of the other islands, I still confess a preference for St. John and the National Park, where the life communities of the land and the great underwater world meet at the seashore and are permitted to pursue their unending natural course.

ON THIS LITTLE ISLAND, where roads are meager and rocky and development is restrained, the grandeur of natural forces becomes as clear and unmistakable as at the Grand Canyon.

The course of its history began over 100 million years ago, when volcanoes erupted deep in the ocean and the buckling crust of the earth raised rock islands above the surface of the sea. Ever since then, the beaches of St. John have been a zone of arriving life, with ocean currents and each new tide delivering animals and plants, insects, eggs, seeds, and seedlings from other lands to form new colonies here.

Meanwhile, the coral reefs have formed offshore a world of flowers that are not plants but tiny animals of the subtropical seas. The coral gardens derive their vivid colors from tiny organisms living within them, but their real time of animated bloom is at night.

Then the reef comes alive. From every branch and tower and domed facade, the tiny coral animals thrust out their tentacled heads to filter food from the surging streams of under-water life.

Underwater Paradise

The pattern of life changes upward from the sea. On the sandy beach at Trunk Bay, I watched ghost crabs dashing from sand burrows for a quick dip in the surf. The beach was shaded by the attractive sea-grape tree, with large leaves edged with red and small purple fruit. But in traveling about the island to the rainy mountain-tops I observed a swift transition in vegetation; few areas anywhere of such small geographic dimensions span so wide a range, from underwater coral to lush, broad-leaf evergreens.

ST. JOHN does not really have a "virgin forest." When the Danes arrived they cleared practically all of it for sugar plantations and farming, but in the past century it has regrown dense and lush into a marvel of botany and biology.

From a distance the wooded hills resemble the peaceful New England landscape, but here there are fruit trees such as the avocado, mango, and mamee; little plants and vines bearing local botanical names such as claspie melashie, eye bright, and better man better; and such exotic trees as the gnarled, strangely shaped silk cotton, which produces kapok in its seed pod. Once I saw a platoon of soldier or hermit crabs crossing the road, carrying their shell houses on their backs. These fellows, great travelers, climb all over the island, even to its higher reaches, to feed on leaves; once a year they return to the sea to lay eggs in the water and exchange their outgrown shells for larger ones.

At Bordeaux Mountain, the highest point in the Park, I left my jeep and climbed a rocky trail to Picture Point. I had come through a fragrant forest of bay leaves, with cinnamon-color bark and shiny dark green leaves. Around me were huge split-leaf philodendrons, ferns as tall as young trees, and delicate orchids adorning the woodland. Below, islands spread over the brilliant, calm blue sea. I was remarkably close to civilized life and times, but I felt far closer still, in spirit as well as fact, to the life and times of the coral reef, which began on the rocky, underwater shelf millions of years ago and may yet be allowed to fulfill its natural course.

CHILLED COFFEE SOUFFLE MOLD

This dessert serves more than four, but you'll want to prepare the entire recipe for the dramatic effect the larger mold gives and for second servings which will be welcome before the end of the evening.

TO PREPARE: 30 MIN.

TO CHILL: ABOUT 7 HRS.

- 2½ cups double-strength coffee beverage, cooled
- 2 tablespoons (2 env.) unflavored gelatin
- ½ cup sugar
- 1½ cups cream-style cottage cheese
- 1 tablespoon vanilla extract
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- 2 egg yolks, well beaten
- 2 cups chilled whipping cream, whipped (one cup at a time)
- 2 egg whites
- ¼ cup sugar

1. A 1½-qt. souffle dish or a casserole having straight sides and no handles will be needed. Fold a 2-ft. length of aluminum foil lengthwise through the center. Wrap the foil tightly around the outside of the casserole so that it extends at least 2 in. above the rim. Bring the ends together with a double fold, and tie the foil strip securely around the casserole with cord. Set aside.

2. Sprinkle gelatin evenly over 1 cup of the coffee beverage. Let stand 5 min. to soften.

3. Meanwhile reheat remaining coffee until very hot. Remove from heat, add softened gelatin, and stir until gelatin is completely dissolved. Add the ¾ cup sugar and stir until dissolved.

4. Chill mixture until slightly thicker than consistency of thick, unbeaten egg white. If chilled in refrigerator, stir occasionally; if chilled over ice and water, stir frequently.

5. Meanwhile, force cottage cheese through a food mill or sieve into a mixing bowl. Blend in vanilla, salt, and egg yolks.

6. When coffee gelatin is of desired consistency, add it gradually to the cottage cheese mixture, beating until well blended. Fold in whipped cream.

7. Beat egg whites until frothy. Add ¼ cup sugar gradually, beating until rounded peaks are formed. Spread egg whites over cottage cheese mixture and gently fold together until well blended.

8. Set bowl in refrigerator until mixture is very thick and pipes softly when spooned out (at least 1 hr.).

9. Spoon carefully into the prepared casserole and gently spread with back of spoon to level the surface. Garnish top of souffle with grated unsweetened chocolate. Set in refrigerator to chill until firm, about 6 hrs.

10. When ready to serve, carefully remove aluminum foil.

BLUEBERRY PUDDING DE LUXE

TO PREPARE: 15 MIN.

TO BAKE: 45-50 MIN.

- 2 12-oz. pkgs. frozen blueberries
- 4 teaspoons lemon juice
- ¼ teaspoon ground cinnamon
- ¾ cup sifted flour
- ¾ cup sugar
- ¾ cup butter, softened

1. Thaw blueberries according to directions on package. Drain one package. (This sirup may be used in other food preparation.)

2. Empty undrained package of blueberries into a 1-qt. baking dish and add the drained blueberries. Sprinkle evenly with lemon juice and cinnamon.

3. Sift the flour and sugar together into a bowl. Stir in butter until blended. Turn dough onto a sheet of waxed paper. Cover with another sheet of waxed paper and gently roll out dough to fit baking dish. Peel off one sheet of the waxed paper, thoroughly prick dough with a fork and invert paper, gently placing dough over blueberries. Peel off the remaining waxed paper.

4. Bake pudding at 375°F 45 to 50 min., or until top is lightly browned and blueberry mixture is bubbly. Serve hot with sweetened whipped cream.

About 6 servings

Note: Blueberry mixture will not completely fill baking dish, thus allowing room for bubbling of mixture.

OVEN-BARBECUED CHICKEN

TO ROAST: ABOUT 1½ HRS.

- 2 broiler chickens
- ¼ cup butter or margarine, melted
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon freshly ground black pepper
- ¼ cup Golden Barbecue Sauce

1. Quarter and rinse chickens; pat dry with absorbent paper. Put on rack in roasting pan and brush generously with butter; sprinkle with salt and pepper.

2. Roast at 350°F about 50 min., or until golden brown, brushing occasionally with butter.

3. Brush browned chicken with Golden Barbecue Sauce and repeat every 5 min.; continue to roast at 350°F about 40 min., or until chicken is done. Serve immediately.

4 servings

GOLDEN BARBECUE SAUCE

TO PREPARE: 5 MIN.

- 1½ cups light molasses
- ¼ cup prepared mustard
- ¼ cup Worcestershire sauce
- 1½ cups cider vinegar
- 2 teaspoons Tabasco
- ¼ teaspoon marjoram
- ¼ teaspoon oregano

Four molasses into a large mixing bowl; adding gradually, blend in mustard and then the remaining ingredients. Store, covered, in the refrigerator. Mix thoroughly before using.

1 qt. barbecue sauce

Note: This sauce may also be used in preparing barbecued frankfurters, ribs, hamburgers, bologna, or canned luncheon meat.

MACARONI SALAD IN APPLE BASKETS

TO PREPARE: 30 MIN.

- 4 large red apples for baskets
- 1 cup diced apple (from cuttings)
- ¼ cup thick cream cream
- 2 tablespoons mayonnaise
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- 1 cup cooked elbow macaroni, chilled
- 2 tablespoons finely chopped onion
- 3 tablespoons chopped sweet pickles

1. Core apples to within ¼ in. of bottoms. Cut a slice from top of each apple, make a zigzag edge. (See photo.) Scoop out pulp leaving a ¼-in. shell. Brush cavities with lemon juice. Dice enough of the apple cuttings to make 1 cup.

2. Blend sour cream, mayonnaise, and salt together. Add diced apple and remaining ingredients. Toss to blend well; if desired, season with additional salt.

3. Spoon mixture generously into apple baskets. Sprinkle with paprika. Serve thoroughly chilled on nests of Boston lettuce.

VEGETABLE RELISH PLATTER

In separate saucepans, cook until crisp-tender green beans, carrot halves, and 3-in. celery pieces. Drain and put vegetables into a bowl. Meanwhile, prepare 1 env. onion salad-dressing mix according to directions on package. Pour enough dressing over the vegetables to coat; toss lightly, cover, and set in refrigerator to marinate at least 1 hr. When ready to serve, drain vegetables and arrange with chilled tomato slices decoratively on a relish tray. Sprinkle tomatoes with freshly ground black pepper.

ONE OF THE FIRST great events in my daughter Ingrid's life was seeing the hero of a play arrive on stage in a boat drawn by a white swan. The hero was a magnificent knight, probably the most magnificent knight ever to come from man's imagination, and he arrived in time to save a fair maiden's honor, foil the treachery of a jealous woman, marry a princess, evoke his own magical powers, mortally wound an evil count, and finally take his leave in a boat pulled by a dove.

This, of course, is Richard Wagner's "Lohengrin," an opera that has always held enormous fascination for me. For my five-year-old girl, that afternoon, it was just a fairy tale with music, but ah, what music! Today, eleven years later, she hums it in the best Mitch Miller "sing along" tradition whenever we play it.

The joys of Mozart and Wagner and Puccini have belonged to our children for many years because in the Slezak family we have had a plan for bringing opera into the home, and the plan has worked for all three of the children, our son as well as the two girls.

We began early in life with "the bedtime-story"-opera. Every parent knows that a child's pleas far exceed anyone's ability to think up new stories, so here's a splendid opportunity—make the opera a bedtime story.

Children love foreign-sounding names and words, especially when spoken with great gusto. They evoke all sorts of visions and fantasies. Most operas have only four or five important roles necessary to the story, and you may find it absolutely delightful to be the hero one moment and the villain the next.

If you need to refresh your memory about the names of the characters or the plots, you will find many books of operas in your local library or bookstore, some written especially for children, that make fine reading aloud. Also there is a growing number of pocket-size books with full librettos explaining in detail the action of the opera and the themes or leit-motifs which help identify the characters and action—very useful later on when you play the music that goes with a story you've already told many times.

IF YOU NEED more reward than the pleasure of your child as he listens to the story, get him to say the names of the characters or the opera. A five-year-old trying to say, "Pagliacci" or "Il Trovatore" is unbelievable until you've heard it.

A word of caution: to use opera only as a bedtime story. This could be very dangerous in setting a pattern whereby the child feels it is a prelude to sleep. The effects of this can be seen all over the world, in opera houses, theatres, and

The author, acting out all the parts, makes "Tosca" more exciting than any thriller as Mrs. Slezak, Erica, and Leo look on.

Opera Begins At Home

A noted actor and son of a famous tenor tells how he introduced his children to the great classics concert halls, and certainly should not be encouraged.

BY WALTER SLEZAK

Instead, spark mealtimes, too, once in a while, with these stories of high adventure, of good and evil, and true love. All the world loves a lover, and every child loves a hero, so in between small bites of food your child can easily be persuaded to listen to a tale that may bring him more happiness in his life than the carefully prepared food you've set before him. And it may help him to eat better into the bargain.

Stress the heroes and the villains, show the treachery of Melot in "Tristan and Isolde," and contrast it with the nobility of Tristan. And remember that children love action, like the clash of swords between Don José and Captain Zúñiga in "Carmen," or the knife fight that follows between Escamillo and Don José.

If you have a knack for narrative, don't be afraid to describe the costumes and the setting. The gypsy encampment in "Il Trovatore" where the famous Anvil chorus is sung is alive with excitement as the men at the forge accent their song by striking their hammers against the anvils. A child's imagination is more vivid than yours or mine, and the colors he uses can paint any scene. All you have to do is give him the chance.

YOU MAY FIND all this more fun than you imagine. But more important, you'll be building for your child's future. Isn't it better to have him learn about opera through its action than hear the countdown on Wyatt Earp's latest victims? With the one he will be taking the first step toward a permanent treasure; the other will leave him as blank as the bullets in the sheriff's gun.

In all this preparation, let's not forget the most important element of opera, the music itself.

When my daughter Erica was still quite small, she was fascinated by the story of "Madame Butterfly"—lanterns, kimonos, battleships and all—and when she had heard over and over again, by request, my account of that tragic, blossom-strewn romance, we played the recording and listened to it together. As each theme appeared I'd identify it, and she soon learned to connect the characters with their music. The first time she recognized Cio-Cio-San's rapturous entrance aria she squealed with joy, "There's Choo-Choo-Train."

We ended by giving her the record for her own. This made her feel closer to it, and it became a part of her world.

Today it is even easier to interest your child in opera than it was sixteen years ago when I made my first attempt. Each year television broadcasts "Amahl and the Night Visitor," an ideal opera with which Good Seasons Garlic Dressing. Light and fresh, with an herb-spice base and a gentle flavor of garlic. A French type of dressing! Takes seconds to mix. Easy directions are on the Good Seasons envelope. You combine your favorite oil, vinegar and a little water with the Mix. The water, or a substitute liquid, makes the blend smoother. You can use many substitutes—see delicious suggestions below.

Honey-Garlic Dressing for Fruit. Substitute honey for the water when making Good Seasons Dressing. Very smooth, with a hint of sweetness, an undertone of spice and garlic.

Zippy Garlic-Chive Dressing. Substitute one tablespoon of Worcestershire sauce for one tablespoon of water. At final shaking, add 2 tablespoons of finely chopped chives or onion. Flavorful pickup for greens, vegetable or seafood salads. Omit the chives sometimes and use the dressing on this bright new salad: greens, raw carrot slices, Bermuda onion rings, and sliced black olives (buy them pitted).

Garlic-Dill Dressing for Potato Salads. Use sour cream or mayonnaise instead of water. Last touch: 1 teaspoon of dill weed or seed. Moisten cooked, unsalted potatoes with dressing to taste. So easy—nothing else is needed! A savory dressing for slaw, tuna salad, and all greens, too.

Atrium House In Atlanta

Under the "floating" dome—radiance and tranquility

The Alexanders, by the round fireplace in the living room—from the left, Judy, Mrs. Alexander, Terri, Douglas who joined them after the house was built, and Mr. Alexander.

Cecil Alexander, who is the owner of this spectacular house in suburban Atlanta, is also the architect, and his feeling about his family and knowledge of their needs had a direct bearing on his design. The core of the house is the entrance court, the atrium, filled with light and growing plants and the singing of a cherished canary—even on gloomy days there is a luminous charm to this great, free focus of the Alexanders' family life. They meet here all day, coming and going from the rest of the house—all the other rooms open off the atrium—and it lends itself equally well to family gatherings or big parties. On a hot summer day they have even been known to spread a tablecloth on the flagstone floor and sit down to a picnic lunch under their sunless "sky"! Mrs. Alexander admits to some misgivings along the way, during the planning and building, but she had confidence in her architect, and now she says that the house has given them all a new dimension in living—"a heightened awareness of everything beautiful about us."

Visitors to Union Carbide Building See Atomic Energy in Action

Dramatic demonstrations of nuclear energy in action are catching the attention of visitors to Union Carbide's new headquarters building at 370 Park Avenue in New York. Featured in the colorful scientific exhibit, set up just off the main lobby on the second floor, is an immense mural showing a chain reaction of splitting atoms. A large operating model of a nuclear reactor is also on display, and an array of color photographs shows how the uranium atom has been put to work to improve the world in which we live.

The first thing that visitors see as they enter the hall is a model of the complex uranium atom. It is depicted with its electrons orbiting around the core, or nucleus. The nine-foot diameter model is 10 million, trillion, trillion times larger than an actual atom of uranium.

The exciting story of atomic energy begins with an historical account of the changing ideas that man has had about the atom, its structure, and its power. Although man's awareness of the existence of the atom predates the Christian era by 500 years, his concept of it has changed radically only within our own lifetimes.

Pictured are some of the famous people whose ideas about the atom are recorded in the pages of history. First to be introduced is Democritus, the Greek philosopher, who in 500 B.C. theorized that the atom was the smallest indivisible piece of matter. The historical presentation ends with Enrico Fermi, who with the help of his staff finally succeeded in creating the first sustained chain reaction by bombarding atoms of uranium. He took us across the threshold of a fascinating new age.

On a mural 60 feet long is depicted what happens when a chain reaction of splitting uranium atoms occurs. Flashing lights and changing colors are used to show the powerful energy that is released when the nucleus of a single atom of uranium is split.

How the bundle of energy held captive in the uranium atom is released and harnessed to serve useful purposes is another interesting chapter in the story that the exhibit unfolds. This is introduced by a 20-foot-long panoramic view of the colorful mesa country of the Colorado Plateau, where nature secreted a rich storehouse of uranium metal millions of years ago. Shown, also, are the mining and milling of uranium ores; further refining of the metal; and finally the unique and intricate process known as gaseous diffusion, in which billions of uranium atoms are screened and separated to obtain the elusive radioactive type of uranium required to produce atomic energy. The uranium, during the separation process, is in the form of a gas—hence the name gaseous diffusion. This gas is pumped through thousands of miles of piping. A three-dimensional display shows how the right atoms are captured as they rush a little ahead of the other atoms through barriers with millions of holes in them, each less than two millionths of an inch in diameter.

One of the most important uses for uranium is as a fuel for nuclear reactors. To illustrate how the atom is put to work, a large model of a nuclear reactor has been set up. It is a pool-type reactor patterned after the one (Continued on Page 21)

This unusual structure, completely open on one side, is a pilot plant for chemical research. Here, many of the Corporation's new products are produced experimentally and new processes are tried out.

High-fidelity photograph records, with anti-static properties, are being tested with this specially constructed equipment in the Corporation's plastics laboratory. The records are made of Summa vinyl resins.

There was a bright flash and a pop—as if a photographer's flash bulb had just gone off. What was actually happening, however, was that researchers in one of Union Carbide's laboratories were conducting an experiment in a shock tube. Inside the tube, the temperature soared for a mere instant to about 30,000 degrees Fahrenheit. The equipment that produced this fantastic temperature has since been used to fabricate rocket and missile parts, and to simulate in a wind tunnel some of the conditions that a missile would encounter when it re-enters the earth's atmosphere at terrific speeds.

All sorts of fascinating experiments such as this are being conducted by Union Carbide researchers as they seek the answers to some of the mysteries of nature and ways to make tomorrow a better world for us.

In the Corporation's 26 major research and development laboratories, several thousand technically trained employees are doing research in almost every field of science. The research staffs include biologists, chemists, engineers, geologists, mathematicians, and physicists. They are constantly probing . . . taking apart again and again the basic chemical elements in the earth, air, and water, and then putting them back together in thousands of different ways.

One of the many important research programs on which Union Carbide scientists are currently working is the development of methods and equipment for preserving whole blood, so that all types will always be available in sufficient quantities to meet any catastrophe. To provide a condition in which no chemical or physical changes in the blood will take place, the low temperature of liquid nitrogen is necessary (about 320 degrees below zero). Biochemists are also studying the effects on all forms of life of other synthetic atmospheres—such as can be created, for instance, by the rare gas krypton. This research could have a far-reaching effect in many fields of science, ranging from the control of plant growth to sustaining astronauts in their fight through outer space.

To spark the growth of Union Carbide's business is the principal aim of the Corporation's research. So some scientists face the very practical task of finding new applications for the myriad of products that are developed . . . for instance, the more than 13,000 chemicals that have already been synthesized by the Corporation's chemicals research laboratories. The painstaking efforts of these development staffs are helping to bring us new life-saving medicines, easy-care fabrics, fast-drying paints and lacquers, agricultural chemicals for the farm and home, and a host of other products made better by the magic of chemicals.

In fact, you see everywhere around you the results of Union Carbide's research . . . batteries about the size of shirt buttons, which bring untold comfort to the hard of hearing . . . tableware that glistens with beauty, thanks to the chromium alloys Union Carbide developed to make steel "stainless" . . . colorful plastics that bring you everything from scuff-resistant flooring to the ventile polyethylene film wrappings that help to protect your food . . . lighting carbons that project the pictures you see on movie theater screens . . . the vital oxygen that helps sick people get well and oxygen equipment to keep pilots alive as they fly at high altitudes. These are only a few of the many things that have been made possible by the pioneering research and technical skills of the people of Union Carbide.

You would be amazed at the variety of microscopes that are in use in Union Carbide's laboratories . . . from simple binoculars to complex electron microscopes that magnify the structural details of metals more than 100,000 times. There is a microscope that makes it possible to study small groups of atoms while a chemical reaction is taking place; a long-distance microscope that enables researchers to keep an eye on crystals as they are grown in furnaces at extremely high temperatures; and a three-dimensional microscope for photographing the patterns of aerosol sprays.

There is a camera used in studying the way bubbles of gas rise through a liquid that takes up to 14,000 pictures per second. This study is part of continuing efforts to improve the operation of equipment for producing oxygen. With this camera, Union Carbide engineers watch in a 10 or 15 minute film what occurs in just one second in a bubble tower.

The equipment of research continues to become more complex, and Union Carbide's laboratories are using the new tools of modern science as fast as they are developed.

Peering through a microscope, a Union Carbide metallurgist examines the structure of a new steel developed in the Corporation's laboratories to see what effect alloying additions have had on the metal.

These two scientists are examining a model of the complex structure (grossly magnified) of a unique material known as a Molecular Sieve. It acts like a microscopic sponge, and is used in drying and separating gases and liquids.

Using mirrors to reflect the energy of an intensely hot carbon arc on a tiny hearth, Union Carbide scientists can provide radiation similar to that of the sun. This arc image furnace, as it is called, is used to study materials at temperatures of 7,000 deg. F.

Creating Basic Materials for Industry

Chemicals

Left: Along the Kanawha River in West Virginia, about 15 miles west of Charleston, is the Institute plant of Union Carbide Chemicals Company. Right: Close-up of equipment that separates and combines the constituents of natural gas used in making chemicals.

FROM THE MILES of pipes, powerful compressors, and fractionating towers that make up Union Carbide's eight major chemicals plants emerge more than 400 different chemicals. These chemicals are starting materials for practically every industry, and they end up in everything from gasoline to floor wax. An interesting thing about the chemicals produced by Union Carbide is that they are all created from familiar raw materials of nature—such as natural gas (or oil refinery gases), salt, air, and water. Gaseous compounds, for instance, are literally torn apart to capture the molecules of which they are composed. These molecules are then linked together—sometimes as many as 100,000 in a single chain—to form new substances.

Plastics

Left: This plant at Marietta, Ohio, is one of the newest of Union Carbide's nine major plastics production installations. Right: Carefully blended and "cooked" plastics ingredients pass between these rolls, where they are squeezed into film or sheet.

PLASTICS ARE CREATED by Union Carbide by taking apart and recombining in different ways some of the same familiar substances used in making chemicals: natural gas, petroleum products, air, water, salt, limestone, and coal. For instance, when ethylene gas (derived from natural gas) is subjected to extreme heat and pressure, it becomes a solid substance—polyethylene plastic. Union Carbide produces five basic types of plastics: polyethylene, vinyl, phenolic, polystyrene, and epoxy resins. They are sold as liquids, powders, pellets, and in semi-finished forms, such as sheet and film. These go to companies that mold, extrude, calender, laminate, or otherwise shape them into the many familiar plastic products we see all around us.

Carbon

WITH FURNACES NEAR Union Carbide turns the element carbon into hundreds of useful products. The raw materials used are hard, black anthracite coal, coke from oil refining operations, lampblack, and coal-tar pitch. For example, to make the graphite electrodes that deliver power to the furnaces in which fine steels are made, petroleum coke and coal-tar pitch are carefully mixed and then squeezed through extrusion machines under pressures of thousands of tons. Finally, they are baked—sometimes for as long as two months. Using temperatures of over 5,000 degrees Fahrenheit, the carbon is turned into graphite. National Carbon Company, Division of Union Carbide, has eight major plants producing electrodes and other carbon products.

From Some of the Earth's Treasures

Gases

Left: Liquid oxygen, shown here being poured from one flask to another, is so cold (-297 deg. F.) that it starts to boil when it hits the surrounding air. Right: This is one of Linde Company's central oxygen plants, with a capacity of 500 tons a day of liquefied gases.

TAKING AIR APART to capture the half dozen useful gases of which it is composed is a highly complex business. The air must be squeezed and expanded until its temperature drops so low that it becomes liquid and flows like water. Then in towers seven stories high, the various gases are drawn off as each reaches its boiling point. In this way, the people of Linde Company, Division of Union Carbide, extract not only oxygen and nitrogen—the two most abundant elements—but also argon and the rare gases krypton, neon, and xenon. For large volume users, such as steel mills and chemical plants, Linde builds oxygen plants close enough to pipe the gas directly to the user. Altogether, Linde has more than 50 major producing plants.

Metals

IN GIANT ELECTRIC FURNACES, using temperatures that soar to 6,000 degrees Fahrenheit, the people of Union Carbide break down the complex ores scattered throughout the earth's crust to capture the valuable alloying metals that they contain. The largest of the Corporation's seven alloy-making plants handles as much as 1,500 tons of ores and other raw materials a day. The bulk of the shipments from these alloy plants goes to steel mills, where the alloys are added during the melting process to remove impurities and to give metals special properties that they would not otherwise have—such as strength, toughness, and resistance to corrosion and wear. Over 100 different alloying combinations are produced.

Nuclear

A TREASURE HOUSE OF ENERGY lies in the rich deposits of uranium ore that nature secreted in the rugged mesa country of the Colorado Plateau over 150 million years ago. Here Union Carbide has more than 100 uranium mines in operation. In addition to mining uranium, Union Carbide Nuclear Company also is engaged in extensive exploration and drilling operations on the Plateau and has four large ore-treatment mills for extracting the uranium from its ores. For the U. S. Atomic Energy Commission, Union Carbide operates the nuclear production and development installations at Oak Ridge, Tennessee, and Paducah, Kentucky. These include Oak Ridge National Laboratory, one of the country's leading nuclear research centers.

Look What Chemicals Are Doing for You These Days

Which will she choose? A great many beauty aids owe their pleasant feel and effective action to Union Carbide's chemicals. Some, for instance, impart smoothness and water solubility to vanishing creams and powder bases.

A Glimpse of Some of the Magic That Goes Into Cosmetics, Detergents, and a Host of Other Products for Everyday Living

Do you know what it takes to produce the pleasant "after feel" to the skin that women look for in hand lotions and men in shaving creams? Some intricate molecule juggling.

The "building blocks" used by Union Carbide in making its chemicals are principally compounds of carbon and hydrogen. For instance, m^x together about 50 atoms of hydrogen, about two dozen of carbon, and a dozen of oxygen. Then—using heat, pressure, and vacuum—a complex chemical called polyethylene glycol is created. This chemical, as well as its "cousins" produced in a similar way, has a number of unique and valuable properties that are put to good use in a wide variety of cosmetics and pharmaceuticals.

Have you ever wondered what makes the capful of detergent you pour in the dishpan burst into foamy suds when you run a stream of water on it? Responsible for this action are two products in Union Carbide's roster of chemicals that are real tongue-twisters—monoethanolamine and diethanolamine. They give detergents their good foaming and sudsing characteristics.

By combining the atoms in sand and oil, Union Carbide chemists have come up with a whole family of silicone chemicals with many new and unusual properties. They shed water like a duck and ignore heat and cold.

Just to make a man's shirt may require as many as 30 different chemicals. In fact, Union Carbide produces over 100 chemicals for the textile industry alone—for some 41 different operations. These chemicals not only are the basic ingredients from which many textiles are spun, but they also are used to impart finishes that make your clothes wear better, wash better, and resist soiling and wrinkling.

A Loaf of Comfort

One of today's newest and most promising cushioning materials is polyether foam. About a half dozen different chemicals needed to make this type of foam are supplied by Union Carbide. Above is shown a loaf of polyether foam produced in the Corporation's chemicals customer service laboratory near Tarrytown, New York. Here chemists conduct tests on everything from brake fluids to floor waxes.

About 80 chemicals are produced by Union Carbide for making antibiotics, vitamins, and other pharmaceuticals.

Fast-drying paints, which have built-in weather resistance, are based on Union Carbide chemicals.

It's bad news for boll weevils, and other cotton pests, when Union Carbide's new SEVIN insecticide is on the job. Growers get larger crops.

Born of sand and oil, silicone chemicals are the secret of new fast-applying furniture polishes.

forming an operation through a transparent plastic film. These are some of the wonderful things being done today with plastics.

You might well ask 'What can't plastics do?' For they can be given all kinds of special characteristics. Plastics can be made as elastic and flexible as rubber, or as rigid as metal . . . as clear as crystal, or as colorful as the rainbow. They can even be made to grow, or foam, when poured into place to insulate building walls.

In much the same way that a cook makes a cake or pastry, the plastics maker first carefully selects his ingredients—in his case, chemicals. Then, in giant autoclaves—which operate like the pressure cooker housewives have in their kitchens at home—he combines one with another under carefully controlled heat and pressure. He may end up with a fluffy white powder, a syrupy liquid, crystals that look like rock salt, or a sheet of film. It is these basic plastic materials that Union Carbide furnishes. From them are made—by means of molding, laminating, or some other fabricating process—the familiar plastic products you see all around you.

Plastics in various forms help make our homes more colorful and practical . . . protect our food and clothing . . . and provide greater comfort and safety to the automobiles, the buses, the trains, and the planes in which we ride. If there were no plastics, we would probably be without telephones, radios, and television—having neither the parts of which they are made nor the means with which to operate them. In fact, it would be difficult to find anything today that does not benefit from plastics in some way.

In drive-in theaters, light of tremendous brilliance and power is needed to project movies on the screens, usually several hundred feet away. Heat picture—Here is an unusual view of the powerful carbon arc that is used in motion picture projection.

Light That Rivals the Sun

The sun has a twin. You have seen it at work in theaters—projecting movies on the screen. In fact, the beam of this off-stage sun is so powerful that it enlarges film no bigger than a postage stamp as much as 300,000 times, helping to bring every vivid detail of the picture to life.

The source of this dazzling light is an electric arc, flashed between the tips of two sticks of carbon about the size of pencils. New carbons are fed into the theater's projection machine about once every hour.

Union Carbide furnishes arc carbons not only to theaters but also to the studios where movies are made. Since the carbon arc has the same photographic quality as natural sunshine, it provides excellent illumination for movie sets. A few years ago, the motion picture industry awarded Union Carbide one of its coveted Oscars for the development of a yellow flame carbon for use in color photography.

Giving Electricity a Ride

In many of the motor-driven appliances in your home, there are tiny pieces of carbon called brushes. These brushes help run vacuum cleaners, portable mixers, and electric shavers. What they do is to escort electricity from spinning motor parts to those standing still.

Millions of these carbon brushes are made every year by Union Carbide. They vary in size from a grain of rice to a deck of cards. Each diesel-electric locomotive has several hundred carbon brushes in its traction motors and generators.

Carbon is also doing a bit of "high flying" these days. In today's complex jet aircraft, carbon brushes play an important role in the operation of a multitude of motors and generators running all sorts of communications and navigation equipment and fire-control devices.

Shows Down Atoms—This is the face of the big atomic pile at Oak Ridge National Laboratory used to produce radioisotopes. Inside the thick shield of concrete is a 24-foot cube made from blocks of a special grade of graphite (a highly refined form of carbon) produced by Union Carbide. The graphite acts as a moderator, helping to control the rate at which the atoms split.

Hot Spot in a Rocket—Here a nozzle for a rocket engine is being carefully checked at a Union Carbide plant in Cleveland, Ohio. This nozzle, through which the hot expanding gases escape to provide thrust to the rocket, must withstand temperature changes of 5,000 degrees Fahrenheit in fractions of a second. It is made of graphite, one of the few materials that can take this terrific heat shock.

Meets Gear?—Designers of astronomical equipment were given a new material to consider recently with the introduction by Union Carbide of a flexible form of graphite. An unusual property of graphite is that it gets stronger at higher temperatures. In the new textile form, it is expected to find many industrial and military uses.

Creating a Blazing Inferno

You see here the glowing tips of carbon electrodes suspended from the top of a furnace in a steel mill. When power is fed to the furnace, an electric arc is formed between the tips of these electrodes and the furnace charge creates a roaring inferno—heat of more than 6,000 degrees Fahrenheit. Intense heat such as this is required for melting the ingredients of steel. Some electrodes weigh eight tons.

Making Metals Behave

Take a metal and plunge it into a bath of biting acid, spin it relentlessly at high temperatures, batter it with repeated poundings, and stretch it to the breaking point. Punishment such as this is routine at Union Carbide—for it's the best way metallurgists can find out what new metal products will do when in service. Some are put through the abuse of a lifetime in just a few weeks' time.

What makes certain metals behave the way they do? No single metal element that has been found in the earth's crust possesses all the properties desired for every application. However, metallurgists have found that by combining elements such as chromium, manganese, or tungsten with iron they can make steels respond in various ways.

It takes a bit of hot-metal magic, however, to wrest nature's lesser-known metals from the ores in which they are found. In fact, when you approach Union Carbide's metals plants at night, some of the buildings might seem at first glance to be on fire. For within them are roaring furnaces, three stories high, in which temperatures soar to 6,000 degrees Fahrenheit. This intense heat is needed to break down the complex ores and extract the valuable alloying elements that they contain.

Union Carbide provides those who make steel, aluminum, copper, and other metals with the proper combinations of metal elements they need to fortify their products against all kinds of conditions—severe heat and cold, corrosive attack, or unusual strains and wear while in service. Over 100 different alloying metals and compounds are produced.

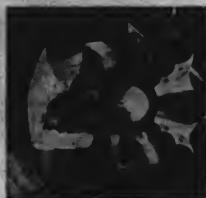

Whether it is steel for just a safety pin or the critical strands of cable that support mile-long bridges, there is bound to be one or more of those alloy products in it. From Union Carbide's metals plants, for instance, come the chromium alloys that make steel "stainless"; and the silicon alloys that give steel the special magnetic properties that make it so useful in all kinds of electrical apparatus—from the tiny motors in vacuum cleaners to the giant transformers used in power plants. Here, too, are produced new pure forms of such metals as columbium and tantalum, to meet the needs of the space age.

The lump of chromium—the alloy metal that makes steel "stainless"—is the secret of the beautiful luster you see in the stainless steel cream pitcher beside it.

Spanning the country's rivers are many beautiful bridges made lighter and stronger by alloying metals produced by Union Carbide. They strengthen the hard-working parts of your automobile, too—making them more shock-resistant and enduring.

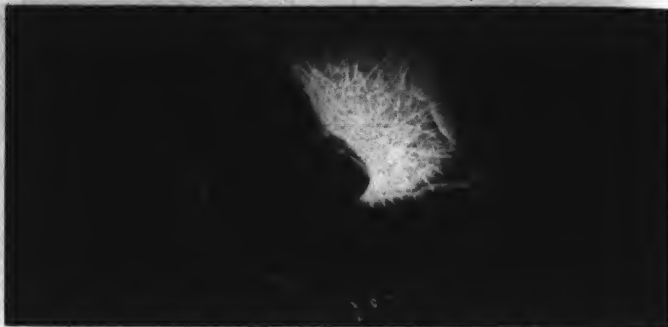

High-Flying Metals

All the fury of the searing gases unleashed by a jet airliner's powerful engine comes through the exhaust stack pictured above on the left. The intricately shaped stack is made of stainless steel, a metal that gets its endurance to heat and corrosive attack from chromium alloys such as those produced by Union Carbide. The Corporation's metallurgists have helped develop many new metals that perform interesting jobs in the skies. On the right above, a scientist is pointing out a tiny mirror in a telescope carried some 80,000 feet skyward to photograph the surfaces of the sun. The mirror, made of a special Union Carbide metal, is a major improvement in new telescopes being used for high-altitude studies.

Union Carbide metallurgists are constantly searching for new combinations of metal elements to meet the severe technological requirements of the present and the future.

With intense cold, Union Carbide takes apart tons of air each day to extract oxygen for many vital industrial processes . . . and to supply the mighty thrust that shoots rocket engines skyward. Captured, also, are other useful gases . . . nitrogen, argon, and the little-known rare gases xenon, krypton, and neon.

Bursting with Energy

With powerful forces of science the people of Union Carbide are turning the resources of nature into more and more useful things for all.

Mountains of ores are moved from all over the world into the fiery furnaces of Union Carbide to be transformed into chromium, manganese, columbium, and other essential alloying metals. These indispensable metals give us gleaming stainless steel . . . build muscle and strength in steel for automobiles, buildings, and ships . . . and are helping to break through the great barrier to space travel.

The rich resources of prehistoric life . . . natural gas and oil . . . are torn apart with heat and pressure by Union Carbide to create a variety of plastics that fill your life with so many wonderful things. Among them are the polyethylenes, vinyls, phenolics, styrenes, and epoxies . . . which bear the pioneer trade mark BAKELITE.

Dazzling light and searing heat to match the sun are created by Union Carbide from carbon, one of nature's most versatile elements. The brilliant beam of the carbon arc projects motion pictures with breathtaking clarity . . . and the 6,000 deg. inferno produced by carbon electrodes separates many essential metals from their ores.

Molecules snatched from red-hot gaseous compounds of carbon and hydrogen are linked together by Union Carbide to tailor-make thousands of chemicals for industry's use. This single molecule (ethylene oxide) is the starting point, for instance, for FRIGONE brand all-winter anti-freeze, DYNEL modacrylic textile fibers, fast-drying paints and lacquers, and household detergents.

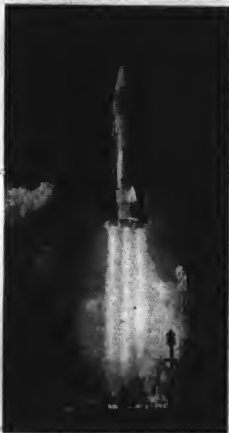

Splitting atoms of uranium in nuclear furnaces, Union Carbide releases the force held captive within this unusual element and puts its powerful energy to work in many interesting ways. Union Carbide people working at Oak Ridge National Laboratory, for instance, are producing radiolabels . . . which are making possible far-reaching developments in the field of medicine, industry, and research.

From a Strange World of Cold

To the missile industry go several products that are produced by Union Carbide. Liquid oxygen, nitrogen, and hydrogen, for instance, are all important ingredients for firing rockets and missiles.

If you have ever felt the penetrating sting of Dry Ice, you know what it means to touch something that is really cold. Yet some of the products that the people of Union Carbide handle are almost three times as cold. In fact, Union Carbide's Division, Linde Company, has plants that work with temperatures as low as 450 degrees below zero.

This cold is used to turn air into liquid, so that the half dozen useful gases present in it can be extracted in their pure form. Special containers have been developed in which these extremely cold liquids can be stored for months, or transported around the world or into outer space.

Strangely enough, although born in extreme cold, oxygen helps to create intense heat. Teamed up with acetylene—another Union Carbide product—it produces a flame with temperatures approaching 6,000 degrees Fahrenheit.

Industry, seemingly, has an insatiable hunger for atmospheric gases. The largest quantities are used in making, shaping, and fabricating metals. The quantity of oxygen alone consumed for industrial and medical purposes in a single month's time would more than fill a freight train stretching all the way from New York to San Francisco.

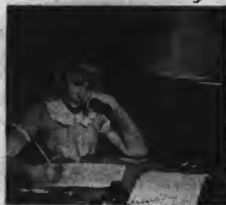

Machines That Skin Steel Alive

The sweeping lines of today's automobiles require steel that is without the slightest flaw. One of the spectacular machines that help steelmakers achieve such smooth steel is shown above. This 30-ton unit shoots out hundreds of tiny flames created by combining two gases—oxygen and acetylene. These tongues of flame lick surface imperfections off the red-hot metal as it rushes through the rolling mill. Union Carbide builds these machines for steel mills, and supplies the gases for their operation.

Preservation of whole blood by quick-freezing it with liquid nitrogen (at a temperature of minus 320 deg. F.) is under study at Union Carbide's laboratories. Here, using a Geiger counter, a researcher checks a rabbit that has been given a transfusion.

Peaceful Atoms Are Put to Work

Home gardeners had a chance recently to take part in some of the fascinating work being done with peaceful atoms. They planted flower seeds that had been irradiated in an attempt to induce changes in growth habits, and perhaps even to develop a new species. Similar irradiation had already created a new variety of giant peanuts, which grow more profusely and have better resistance to disease. Research done with other crops has been equally promising.

Many different kinds of materials have been exposed to irradiation in the atomic reactors at Oak Ridge National Laboratory, at Oak Ridge, Tennessee. This laboratory, which is one of the foremost research and development centers in the world, is operated by Union Carbide for the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission.

In the atomic reactors at Oak Ridge are produced about 100 different varieties of radioactive elements—or radioisotopes, as they are called. These unusual materials are simply radioactive forms of ordinary elements such as iron, gold, and carbon. Thousands of shipments of radioisotopes have gone out from Oak Ridge to laboratories, industrial plants, and hospitals all over the world. Some are in the form of colorless liquids; others are invisible gases; some are solid metal; and still others are tiny pellets. About half of the radioisotopes produced are earmarked for use in studies of living cells—in the hope of finding out more about the human body and the intricate fundamental processes of life.

Hanging high in the air at Oak Ridge is an impressive reactor being used for research in connection with the development of nuclear-powered aircraft. It is suspended from four towers, each the height of a 30-story skyscraper. The reactor is also used for studying atmospheric scattering of radiation and for experiments in connection with the shielding of materials.

The fuel used to operate atomic reactors and for other nuclear energy applications comes from mile-long gas separation units at Oak Ridge and at Paducah, Kentucky, which Union Carbide also operates for the Atomic Energy Commission. Here is captured the key atomic energy material—an elusive isotope of uranium known as U-235. Separating the U-235 atoms from the other uranium atoms with which they occur in nature is a tricky operation. It is accomplished by a complex and unusual process known as gaseous diffusion.

An interesting new area of research is the work being done on the development of complex machines for harnessing the energy released by the element hydrogen, which is similar to that responsible for the heat and light of the sun. In these studies of fusion energy, as it is called, Union Carbide scientists have been working with temperatures of several million degrees Fahrenheit.

Actually, Union Carbide has as broad an interest in nuclear energy as any other company in the country, since the Corporation is also a key supplier of uranium—the miracle metal that makes nuclear energy possible. The people of Union Carbide have been mining and milling uranium-bearing ores on the Colorado Plateau for more than 30 years.

One of the most complex and unusual processes ever conceived takes place in these buildings at Oak Ridge, Tennessee. Here, by gaseous diffusion, billions of uranium atoms are separated to capture the radioactive form needed for atomic energy use.

This is the face of the atomic pile at Oak Ridge National Laboratory in which radioisotopes are produced. It has been in use since 1943. The dots are the openings—there are 1,200 of them—through which the uranium fuel is inserted.

Using remote control tongs, a Union Carbide technician places radioisotopes in containers—ready for shipment.

Rays given off by isotopes that have been injected in cattle feed are helping researchers studying nutrition.

Physicians are now using radioisotopes in diagnosing and treating the ailments of more than one million patients a year.

Within this camera scanning a submarine's hull is a radioisotope. Its rays are being used to X-ray a weld.

More than 70,000 men and women are employed by Union Carbide in the United States, Puerto Rico, and Canada. They probably represent as wide a variety of skills as you would find in any and company.

Every field of science is explored at Union Carbide in laboratories staffed by several thousand technically trained employees.

Some of the People of Union Carbide

About 14,000 Union Carbide employees are at work in the field of nuclear energy. Most of them are employed at the plants and laboratories that the Corporation operates for the United States Atomic Energy Commission.

The world-wide operations of Union Carbide take employees to picturesque lands all over the globe. The Corporation's geologists and engineers, for example, travel thousands of miles in search of minerals. This is a typical geological party in African bush country.

There are more than 10,000 women employed at Union Carbide. Many have specialized training, such as this technician in one of the quality control laboratories.

Union Carbide employees enjoy a well-rounded program of benefit plans. The checks being inspected here represent the periodic distribution of a savings plan.

Several hundred sales and service engineers assist customers in making the most efficient use of Union Carbide products. Here one of the Corporation's engineers and a furnace operator in a steel mill talk over a meeting problem.

At conferences such as this, Union Carbide plant management people discuss such things as raw material supplies, production efficiencies, construction projects, and product packaging and distribution. Employee safety is another subject given particular attention.

Whipping up a 60 Mile-An-Hour Wind

At 100 Degrees Below Zero

The man you see leaning under the hood of the car in the picture at the left is dressed for a trip to the arctic—that is, the man-made arctic created by Union Carbide in one of its special laboratories at Tonawanda, New York. Here are tested dozens of different products designed to help keep your car healthy.

This particular room has equipment that drops the temperature down to 100 degrees below zero. It also can simulate a 60 mile-an-hour wind. As you can see, an entire car can be taken into the room. The motor is then run at driving speeds under conditions even more severe than those found in the arctic. A technician watches the proceedings through a window, changing the weather conditions as required.

Each year, millions of car owners purchase one of Union Carbide's best-known products—Pawson's brand anti-freeze. It is the most popular brand on the market. This is the original all-winter anti-freeze, which Union Carbide introduced back in 1927 to make satisfactory winter driving possible for the first time.

To keep pace with advances in automotive engine design, such as the recent introduction of aluminum components, the formula for Pawson's anti-freeze has continually been improved over the years. This research has given the product an exclusive formulation not found in any other brand. Special ingredients have been added, for instance, to produce Magnetic Film, which safeguards the cooling system against corrosion.

Cooking's a Pleasure

The lady of this house is enjoying the luxury of clean, fast cooking—thanks to PYROFAX gas, a favorite in hundreds of thousands of homes for more than 30 years. This convenient bottled gas is used also for water heating, clothes drying, and home heating. You will find the PYROFAX trade mark on appliances, too.

Watch It Grow

If you want to have a garden that you can enjoy and be proud to show, treat it well. A complete line of garden pesticides is sold under the EVEREADY trade mark. There are dusts and sprays to protect your flowers, fruits, vegetables, and lawns from insect damage and plant diseases. Each is designed with your garden problems in mind.

A Famous Star

The necklace you see above was worn by a guest at the coronation of Queen Elizabeth II. In the pendant is a 92-carat synthetic star ruby made by Union Carbide. This LINDS star is the fourth largest ruby in the world, either natural or man-made. The necklace, which was made for Union Carbide, is valued at $25,000.

Recently, a new type anti-freeze product came out of the Tonawanda laboratories, called PATERSON'S Long Life Coolant. It is designed especially for the maintenance-minded car owner interested in long-term economy.

Over 30 other PATERSON'S automotive products have been developed. These include car care products to clean and polish the body and accessories of your car, such as the trim and white sidewall tires; a car wash; a paste wax; and a liquid polish. Into these products, too, have been incorporated special ingredients that make them perform better. PATERSON'S car polish, for instance, contains silicone chemicals. These silicones help give your car a lasting shine and also make the polish easy to apply and wipe off.

The working parts of your car have been given attention also. Preparations are made to prevent leaks and rust formation in the radiator and water pump; to clean the carburetor; and to clean the windshield. A new de-icing fluid melts ice from it. There is a hydraulic brake fluid to help you stop your car safely; and a PATERSON'S refrigerant is available for use in air-conditioning systems to help keep your car cool in the summer.

You may also find service station operators using a gas-line anti-freeze and conditioner, which bears the name PRIME, another Corporation trade mark. This product helps prevent carburetor icing and engine stalling.

Today, you can protect your car inside and out with products made by Union Carbide.

There's Magic in DYNEL Fibers

Imagine expecting a fiber to have a good memory. Yet, textile men blend Union Carbide's DYNEL modacrylic fibers with other textiles because the individual DYNEL fibers bounce right back the way they were when the fabric was originally set, even after drenching by rain.

This is just one of many unusual qualities that Union Carbide chemists have built into this remarkable man-made fiber. That's why you see the DYNEL mark on so many different products these days . . . colorful scatter rugs that are kitten soft, yet wear like iron . . . deep-pile coats that are light as thistledown, but keep you cosy and warm . . . and men's suits that stay pressed no matter what the weather may be.

Mosquitoes Beware!

One of the most popular bug chasers, when hot weather rolls around, is "6-12" brand insect repellent made by Union Carbide. If you are picnic bound, or sitting in your own backyard, you can enjoy insect-free hours out of doors. The product is packaged as an aerosol spray to make it easy to apply, and in liquid, lotion, and stick form.

Packages of Power

How many times has the bright beam of a flashlight or lantern brought you comfort and safety in the dark? We depend upon many ingenious devices that get their power from batteries. Union Carbide makes nearly 300 different types of batteries, as well as flashlights and lanterns, sold under the well-known EVEREADY trade mark. The batteries power radios, hearing aids, photoflash equipment, and many toys. The EVEREADY battery line ranges all the way from the electric wrist watch battery, which is about the size of a shirt button, to five-foot batteries used in channel marker buoys off the coasts of the United States.

Union Carbide's

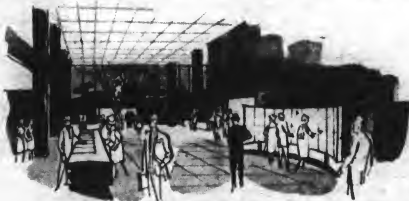

Home Office Is Located Skyscraper in

The tallest building on Park Avenue is the 52-story structure that serves as headquarters for Union Carbide. It is impressive not only for its sheer size but also for the way it is constructed.

The Union Carbide Building occupies an entire block. Actually, it is two connected buildings. There is a 52-story tower section bordering on Park Avenue, which rises over Avenue street level by two sets of moving stairs.

The two-story high lobby has an all-lighted ceiling, glass outer walls, and a floor of white terrazzo. A touch of bright color is added by a blue mosaic tile wall at the rear. Along Park Avenue is an exhibit area, where the Corporation has set up a scientific exhibit featuring atomic energy, which the public is invited to see.

Main Lobby

700 feet high. This is connected to a lower building, 12 stories high, which borders on Madison Avenue. Between the two sections, under the connecting "neck," is an arcade. The building has about 1¼ million square feet of space, which makes it one of New York City's largest office structures.

When you walk toward the building, probably one of the first things that you will notice is that it is surrounded by a plaza of pink terrazzo. As you look up, you will see that the walls of the building consist of an extensive expanse of glass, which is framed by vertical mullions of gleaming polished stainless steel and horizontal spandrels of black-coated stainless steel. The vertical strips of stainless steel alone would stretch for 19 miles if they were placed end to end.

About 4,000 Union Carbide employees are located in the building. As you walk through the corridors, you will notice that most of the offices are formed by steel partitions topped by a section of clear glass. There are more than 20 miles of these wall partitions. In fact, the Union Carbide Building is the first New York structure to use movable interior walls so extensively. Overhead is a continuous ceiling of light, achieved by using sheets of vinyl plastic as diffusers, which are framed by a series of stainless steel runners. Within this ceiling, throughout the building, are air-conditioning ducts and 70,000 separate lighting units.

Covering the floors of most of the offices and corridors, from wall to wall, is carpeting made from Union Carbide's DYNEL modacrylic textile fibers. There are more than 15 acres

Cafeteria

Since about two-thirds of the building is built directly over railroad tracks leading to and from Grand Central Station, the main lobby—where the 24 passenger elevators are located—is on the second floor. It is reached from the Park of carpeting, the largest such installation ever made.

There are more than 60 conference and meeting rooms of various sizes—which are used for training and other purposes—located throughout the building. The largest can accommodate approximately 200 people.

Nerve Center

A business library is located on the 9th floor. In addition to standard reference books, it contains some 200 magazines and newspapers.

Among the unique facilities in the building is a computing center on the 36th floor. Here is installed a high-speed computer that can perform 200,000 additions or subtractions in one second. In addition to carrying on routine operations, such as the preparation of financial reports, the staff of the computer center also undertakes special business and research problems involving complex calculations that need to be carried out at extremely high speeds.

There are about 4500 telephone lines in the building. Union Carbide was the first commercial company in New York to utilize fully the new system of "direct inward dialing." This means that any telephone extension in the building can be reached from the outside without going through the main switchboard, simply by dialing directly the extension number of the person or department desired.

Facilities provided for employees include a 1300-seat cafeteria and dining room, located on the lobby floor; a large lounge on the 11th floor of the Madison Avenue section; and a medical department on the 4th floor that is fully staffed and equipped to give employees any emergency medical care they may require and to perform preplacement and periodical medical examinations.

Typical Office Area

Metals and Plastics Used in Unusual Ways in Union Carbide Building

Many of the unusual features of the Union Carbide Building are the results of the Corporation's research and engineering. Two examples of this are the stainless steel spandrels on the exterior of the building (left above), which were colored black to prevent sunlight reflection, and the all-lighted ceiling used throughout the interior (right above). This is achieved by using translucent sheets of BAKELITE vinyl plastic, a Union Carbide product. The gridwork between the panels is made up of runners of stainless steel.

Those who visit Union Carbide's science exhibit can see what a uranium atom would look like if enlarged many trillions of times its actual size.

ENERGY IN ACTION

at Union Carbide's nuclear research center in Sterling Forest near Tuxedo, New York. Visitors can watch from a "catwalk" as the model reactor is taken through a typical operating cycle—from the time a chain reaction starts to build up until it is quenched by the control rods.

In an adjoining panel are shown six different types of reactors in use at Oak Ridge National Laboratory, the nuclear research and development center that Union Carbide operates for the U. S. Atomic Energy Commission.

As is explained in the exhibit, all reactors are used either for their heat or for their radiation. A continuous splitting of atoms in a reactor, for instance, will produce radioactive materials known as radioisotopes. They emit energy in the form of radiation or rays. Some of these radioisotopes are short-lived—they lose half their potency in a day's time. In an interesting art form, made up of transparent spheres on spiral tubing, are portrayed 20 representative isotopes. Their radiation ranges from seconds to half life to eons. Looking into each sphere, the visitor will see a flashing colored light indicating the type of radiation given off by the isotope and pictures showing how it is used. In a large panel nearby are mounted color photographs of some typical applications of radioisotopes in industry, medicine, and agriculture.

A panoramic night view of New York City, also in color, symbolizes the use of atomic energy for the generation of electricity. Other pictures show its use for propulsion, central heating, and chemical processing.

The nature of Union Carbide's work—not only with uranium but other elements of nature—and some of the Corporation's facilities all over the world are portrayed in two separate island displays adjoining the atomic energy exhibit.

Silhouetted against the night sky are the fractionating towers of Union Carbide Canada Limited's chemicals and plastics plant at Montreal East, Quebec. This plant has been expanded nearly every year since it first went on stream in 1937. It is one of Canada's largest chemical installations.

The freeways plant of Union Carbide Canada Limited at Welland, Ontario (above) stretches for almost a mile along the highway that follows the famous ship canal. Union Carbide's plant at Belleville, Ontario (below) is one of the most modern plastics plants in North America.

Nestled in the slopes of the Alps, this Union Carbide graphite plant near Ivrea, Italy, produces over 16,000 tons of electrodes a year for use in steelmaking furnaces.

While the palm tree gives this scene a look of serenity, this chemical plant on the southern coast of Puerto Rico is actually bustling with activity. It is one of Union Carbide's recent major investments in the petrochemical business.

The white dots you see climbing the side of these twin hills at Solvay Peak, in Southern Rhodesia, are rows of modern white houses occupied by native employees working in nearby chromium mines.

At the far left is the shop of a distributor of EVEREADY batteries and flashlights in India; and on the right is a chemical plant being built in India.

Remember last summer? Crabgrass is on the march again. The time to stop it is now.

Your lawn can be free of crabgrass just 1 week from tomorrow!

At the rate crabgrass is spreading through most lawns right now, there's no time to lose. Each day it crowds out more and more good grass, threatening to wipe out all your spring gains unless you act fast.

Clout stops crabgrass in a hurry

Eliminating crabgrass used to be a tedious, back-breaking job. Now it's remarkably quick, as easy as taking a walk! Simply fill a Scotts Spreader with clean, granular Clout®, set the dial—and go.

With the first application of Clout, crabgrass turns brown and begins to die. The second application, just one week later, delivers the knockout punch, completing the emancipation of your lawn.

Clout lets good grass grow

You'll be amazed to see how Clout selects out only the undesirable grasses for destruction—crabgrass, foxtail, paspalum, and dallis grass. Good grass is spared!

It takes just half an hour to treat the typical 5000 sq ft lawn with Clout—another half hour to complete the job. How could you spend an hour more rewardingly?

Clout-Spreader offer saves you $5

Leading hardware, garden and department stores that feature Scotts lawn products are now offering a $5.00 saving when you buy Clout together with the Scotts Spreader. This precise applicator is the key to a better lawn the year round.

What better time to get an accurate new Scotts Spreader of your own and save handsomely than on the very day you decide to end the tyranny of crabgrass over your lawn? The time to see your Scotts dealer is now.

30" Kelvinator Electric Range, Model KB-24, has plenty full-width oven and storage drawer.

Kelvinator Ends Oven Cleaning Drudgery Forever!

No Messy Scouring, Scraping or Scrubbing!

This isn't just "easier" oven cleaning—it's no oven cleaning drudgery at all!

You don't pull the Kelvinator oven apart, lift off the door or climb inside to clean it. Instead, Throw-Away Aluminum Oven Linings catch spatters and spill-overs to eliminate all scouring, scraping and scrubbing!

When linings become soiled, you just whisk them out, slip in new ones and presto, a clean oven! For replacements, you use standard 18"-wide foil available at stores everywhere!

How Can Kelvinator Bring You So Much Value?

You get wonderful work-savers like this from Kelvinator because, unlike others, it doesn't make costly annual model changes ... mere "change for change's sake." Instead, its Constant Basic Improvement program brings you the newest advances just as soon as they are tested and approved, giving you plus value!

30" Kelvinator Electric Range, Model KB-24, features full-width oven with full storage compartment and drawer.

Only Kelvinator Gives You All These High-Priced Range Features For $30 to $50 Less Than You'd Expect To Pay!

- AUTOMATIC OVEN TIMER AND CLOCK turns oven on, cooks food, turns oven off at time set!
- MINUTE MINDER can be set for one to 60 minutes, rings when time is up!
- INFINITE HEAT CONTROL on right front unit lets you dial any temperature you wish!
- EXCLUSIVE "EVEN-HEAT-FLOW" OVEN, with Automatic Top Oven Unit, assures perfect baking, browning and roasting!
- ADJUSTABLE HEAT, ONE-POSITION BROILER eliminates raising and lowering of grilles!
- TIMED APPLIANCE OUTLET may be controlled by oven clock or used in normal manner!
- FINGER-WIDE PUSH-BUTTON CONTROLS give you five precise heats for three surface units!
- REMOVABLE ALUMINUM Drip PANS under each surface unit lift out for easy cleaning!

THE KITCHEN was planned to provide maximum storage space and enough counter surface to take care of large parties, and still be a compact area for daily use. Ribbon-stripe mahogany was used for all cabinets, and the work surface flows smoothly along from counter to stove to built-in appliance center (with motor under the counter) to counter below the wall refrigerator. The wall refrigerator has proved a wonderful convenience, but the Alexanders prudently held on to their standard model, too, for bulky items like turkey and watermelon. Another great convenience has been the "island," supplemented by a standard sink and dishwasher as shown on the plan below.

The greenhouse, complete. Final step in the building, begun last August, was to knock out the library wall so that the indoor garden became part of the house.

What? A Greenhouse In August?

It is not midsummer madness—now is the time to get one under way.

BY JOHN BRIMER

IF YOU WANT a proper place to house outdoor "holdover" plants and indoor greenery by the time the cold winds blow, you should get parts ordered now—greenhouses come knocked down—and start construction immediately.

It was August of last year when Thomas W. Ulrichs of Mahwah, New Jersey, put in his order for the greenhouse photographed here. He picked one from a catalogue that best fitted his location and then decided to make his curved-cave lean-to greenhouse into a conservatory rather than a separate element, by removing the entire study wall as well as the living-room door.

By starting in summer he managed to be ready, before cold weather came, with this pleasant glassed area which he filled with geraniums, lantana, impatiens, and other outdoor plants, as well as a motley assortment of house plants formerly distributed in various rooms. A feature of the conservatory is the collection of handsome aspidistra now nearly seventy-five years old, inherited from a relative.

As soon as his order was sent off last August, Mr. Ulrichs started to dig and lay the foundation, working evenings and on weekends, as he could. He had the foundation nearly ready when the ten cases of do-it-yourself parts arrived. After filling the foundation with soil, soaking and tamping the fill to assure a good solid underpinning for the eventual brick floor, which was to be laid on sand to assure drainage, he began to bolt and secure the modular parts and erect the greenhouse. Once this was done, he installed the automatic heating and ventilating equipment, and then came the final step: removal of the study wall. This was carried out in easy stages, and by mid-December, long after all the plants were in place and the brick floor laid, the job was finally finished.

The conservatory is uncrowded, with plants hanging in baskets and massed on racks and shelves as well as on the floor, leaving room for some attractive painted chairs which add a gay note to the picture and offer pleasant sitting places for winter afternoons.

How much does a greenhouse cost? You will get a good idea from the accounting below. This includes automatic heating and ventilation devices as well as installation of electrical and gas connections:

to start your youngster's opera education. But don't fall prey to placing your child in front of the little box with the admonition, "Watch!" Sit with him and help identify the action and the characters, and he will love it. And so will you.

Today you can get recordings of every major opera, and each album has a word-for-word translation of all the dialogue. But once you've become familiar with story and music, there is no substitute for seeing it performed "live." There are opera workshops in the universities, touring companies, and maybe an opera group in your own town. They relish an eager audience and will sing their hearts out for you. The first time your child hears a "real" opera will be an exhilarating experience, especially if you both know what is coming.

"Aida" happened to be the first opera my youngest child, Leo, ever attended. To place it in focus for him, I used the same system I had with Ingrid and Erica, reviewing, before the curtain rose, the story and the music he had already heard.

THE EXOTIC setting of "Aida" with its palace halls, pyramids, and Egyptian temples fascinated Leo from the start. The approaching war between the Egyptians and the Ethiopians gave an aura of excitement and action and, blended with the mystery and romance of a foreign land, the spectacle soon captured his imagination.

If bringing opera into the home sounds like a great deal of work, believe me, it isn't. All that needs to be done is to tell a story, buy a record, listen to the music, and take an interest.

The other day I gave my three children the choice between the special Saturday afternoon double-feature movie, or going to the city to hear "La Bohème." I was delighted but not too surprised when all three chose the opera.

VIRGINIA BEACH BECKONS THOUSANDS ANNUALLY

LYNNHAVEN AREA OF PRINCESS ANNE GAINS IN POPULATION RACE

If present population trends continue, Lynnhaven District of Princess Anne County will add in the next year about the same number of people now residing in the City of Virginia Beach.

Here are the population figures from the 1960 census; Lynnhaven, 23,731; Bayside, 29,048; Kempsville, 13,900; Pungo, 2,504; Seaboard, 7,311; Blackwater, 733. There are an estimated 66,679 persons in the northern magisterial districts compared to 10,448 in the southern.

While the world talks of an exploding population and the problems caused by the rapid growth in no finer example of that growth is to be found anywhere in the United States than right here at home in Princess Anne County and the Virginia Beach area.

This was forcibly brought out in statements by members of the Princess Anne County Board of Supervisors this week when the question came up. Lynnhaven District Supervisor James G. Darden stated that 700 persons are moving into his district each month and that in one year, at this rate, almost as many persons will reside in Virginia Beach move into that district.

Two Largest

Another populous district is the Bayside District. Carroll G. Clough represents this district and the estimated population is 29,048 while the Lynnhaven District has an estimated 23,731 persons living in it. These are the two largest districts in the county.

The whole matter came up when it was shown that the upper part of the county is growing at a much faster rate than the lower part but the supervisors representing the less populated districts have one vote that may override the voters of the two heavily populated districts.

It all boils down to the fact that Princess Anne County, along with the rest of the world today, has an exploding population problem, too.

Beach Praised By Astronaut

Just two or three days before Virginia Beach's famous Astronaut Alan B. Shepard, Jr. blasted off into space May 5 from Cape Canaveral he spoke of his family and home in Virginia Beach, according to a press officer assigned to Project Mercury.

"Alan was saying just the other day how much he enjoyed living at Virginia Beach and how friendly the people there were," Lt. Col. Ken Grice, USAF, special press officer to Project Mercury, said the night before the historic space flight.

"Commander Shepard has been particularly pleased and happy the way the Virginia Beach and Princess Anne County police departments have protected his family from the curiosity that goes with such a space flight," Col. Grice stated.

Colonel Grice indicated that he had not visited Virginia Beach but that he would like to after hearing what Al Shepard has said about it.

WALKWAY

The Virginia Beach seawall and walkway was completed in 1957 and extends 2.9 miles. It extends from Seventh street to 54th street.

SEASHORE STATE PARK

The solitude of a botanical wonderland, closed for the past five years to a welcomed end this past May when Seashore State Park reopened. The state chose to close the park rather than operate it on an integrated basis by federal control.

The park's shutdown following in the federal court declassification order in 1955 has not actually been a complete closing. Thousands of students and nature groups have toured the area by arrangements. This year, however, the park will be opened to the general public for the first time.

This natural area with marked self-guiding trails is a meeting

Historic Princess Anne County Has 136-Year Old Courthouse

Built in 1824, the court house stands on a grassy incline in the center of Princess Anne County, overlooking passing trucks laden with tobacco, corn and wheat.

For miles around, the country side is cultivated for crops that thrive in the rich, fertile soil.

The large red brick building with white bannisters and columns is a busy place. Throughout its 136-year-old existence it has always been a busy place.

The present court house was the fifth such building in the county, according to the records.

The first court was held at the Glebe, or poor house, at Great Neck in 1637. Before that period the monthly court meetings were rotated between the Elizabeth River and Lynnhaven parishes.

When held in Elizabeth River Parish the court met at "Mr. Sewell's Point" in Lynnhaven. It was usually held at the John Keeling Plantation.

In 1691, when Princess Anne County was established, the court was moved to the McIntosh estate, near Old Donation Church at Bay-side.

It was there that the famous Grace Sherwood witch trial took place. The records relating the case still exist in the present court house.

The next move was to New Town, a now extinct settlement near the Elizabeth River, where the court and school were the focal point of all social and judicial events of the time. It remained there from 1751 until 1778.

About the time of the Revolution, a Scottish dry goods store owner, John Logan, began holding court in his store at Kempe's Landing, now known as Kempsville.

But when he was accused of being a Tory, he fled the country and the justices ordered a new court house to be built in the Kempsville settlement. The year was 1782 and the two-story structure, decaying and rejected, still stands on its small lot.

The move to the present site in 1824 came about because the location was, and is, the geographic center of the county. Also there is evidence that the area was thickly populated and many of the residents were large land owners of considerable wealth.

To keep up with the changing times, many buildings have been added to Court House Hill and several additions have been made to the court house itself. A new $85,190 wing was dedicated this year.

But originally the "Hill" consisted only of the court house, a jail, a tavern and several small office buildings occupied by lawyers.

Sports at Virginia Beach

Concentration on sports is greater than ever at the Beach this year, which includes swimming, fishing, water skiing, cruising, tennis, golf and bowling.

SWIMMING POOL GALORE

Twenty local hotels and motels have fresh-water swimming pools for those who wish a change from the salt water ocean. Typical single rates on double occupancy basis are $8 and up on the European plan and $17 and up on the modified American plan. (two meals) with a few places charging less.

FISHING

Two fishing piers have bait for sale and will rent out fishing tackle. Admission to either pier is $1.10. Fully equipped charter boats are available for all-day offshore trolling at a charge of $76 for up to six persons. Gulf stream fishing costs $100 for up to six persons. Individuals can pay $7.50 to board a party boat for reef and bottom fishing. All prices include bait and tackle.

WATER SKIING CRUISES

Water Skiing on Linkhorn Bay, a quarter of a mile from the beach, costs $5 per half-hour for instruction, or $4 per half-hour for towing.

Sight-seeing cruises on Linkhorn Bay leave three times daily and cost $5 for adults and $1.50 for children for the two-hour ride.

FREE TENNIS

The tennis courts at Virginia Beach High School are open daily at no charge.

GOLF

Four miniature golf courses in the area with the usual charge of 40 cents a round.

Three-par golf, a six-hole course near by, costs 75 cents for men and 50 cents for women and children. Rental equipment and instructions are available.

Several Hotels and Motels offer their golfing privileges on an eighteen-hole championship course. Within 30 minutes a public 18-hole course is available.

New in concept and new in the area is a 36-par, 9-hole, 3,015 compact "Scotch" golf course.

BOWLING

There are several tennis and duckpin alleys within a short driving distance.

Famous Beach Resident

Cmdr. Alan B. Shepard, Jr.

Shepard Story Caused Excitement Here as Wife, Children Waited

The biggest man in Virginia Beach — and certainly the most spectacular one in the city's history — wasn't even around to know the excitement his fame had engendered among his fellow citizens.

He is, of course, Cmdr. Alan Bartlett Shepard, Jr., of 580 Brandon Road, Bay Colony, selected to be America's first man in space. Shepard and his wife, Louise, and their 13- and 9-year-old daughters, Laura and Julian, have been residents of Virginia Beach since the early days of the man-in-space project.

The older girl is away at boarding school and the younger is just another little playmate called "Julie" by her pals at Linkhorn Park School.

The Shepards' only concession to the rigors of notoriety, in fact, was their request for an unlisted telephone number. They didn't do that, however, until the crackpot type became too numerous with their odd-ball, odd-hour calls.

The commander, in a quite literal sense, is a "career" flyer. He was graduated from the U.S. Naval Academy in 1944 and saw World War II action in the Pacific aboard the destroyer Cogswell. He entered flight training after the war and served aboard Mediterranean aircraft carriers, then became a test pilot.

He flew high-altitude research missions, helped develop the Navy's in-flight refueling system and contributed greatly to research on carrier landing techniques.

As a test pilot Shepard had several narrow escapes, with engines flaming out and canopies ripping off at high speed.

Calling the space flight a "challenge," Shepard was quite frank in his joy that he was selected as THE one.

Talking about her husband's preoccupation with the "homework" in highly technical scientific research problems, Mrs. Shepard said her husband was "one of those fortunate men whose work is his hobby."

Before the last-minute selection was made, his friends had this to say about Virginia Beach's only spaceman:

"Shepard will help the blowoff with a wisecrack. He's that kind of guy."

Summer Theatre Tops Beach Entertainment

The Sandpiper Playhouse, located on 19th street across from the Alan B. Shepard Convention Center, presents summer theatre here for the entertainment of the visitor and the year around resident. It is one of the top features of the summer season in Virginia Beach. Your hotel or motel can give you information on the plays being presented and other pertinent facts about this unique tent theatre.

Summer Theatre in Tent Among Virginia Beach's Top Features

Professional summer theatre comes to Virginia Beach this summer when the "Sandpiper Playhouse" opens a ten-week season of Broadway drama July 1st.

The playhouse, presenting productions in-the-round, will be a specially designed blue and gold tent located at 19th and Arctic across from the Convention Center.

A unique schedule of plays will be offered with three different productions weekly during the month of July, followed by three new plays for the month of August. Each play will give two performances weekly.

Scheduled for the month of July are "Marriage-Go-Round," "Send Me No Flowers," and "Teahouse of the August Moon," playing alternate nights throughout the month with the exception of July 14 and 15, when no performance is scheduled.

"Cain Mutiny Court Martial," "The Little Hut" and "Period of Adjustment" are scheduled for August.

The project will be operated by a corporation known as Intent Productions and made up of five "tide-water residents long active in various phases of the theatre. Serving as officers and directors are Joseph Frieden, Wade Williams, Angie Alexander, Lee Lively and Maynard Allen.

The theatre, with a seating capacity of 300, will be equipped with comfortable arm chairs and all seats will be reserved at $2.50.

The box office is open daily at 10 a.m. For reservations and information call Garden 8-7844.

ABOUT LIQUOR

The laws of the State of Virginia forbid the sale of alcoholic beverages, except wine and beer, except at State stores. There are two Alcoholic Beverage Control stores at Virginia Beach. These two ABC stores are located:

Atlantic Ave. at 20th Street, Pacific Ave. near 31st Street.

The 20th Street Store is open daily from 10:00 A.M. to 8 p.m.

The 31st Street Store is open daily from 10 A.M. to 6 P.M.

While beer and wines may be obtained at licensed restaurants and stores you cannot buy liquor by the drink legally. At private clubs which have been licensed by the ABC, however, you may obtain set-ups for use with your own liquor.

It is also forbidden to transport more than five fifths of distilled spirits by one person at a time.

However, for persons who are planning a party a transportation permit may be obtained from the store manager.

Bridge-Tunnel Longest Span

The longest bridge-tunnel in the world is now under construction across the lower Chesapeake Bay. It will connect Virginia's Eastern Shore with the Norfolk-Virginia Beach area on U.S. 13. Two tunnels, each more than a mile long, allow ample clearance for the largest ocean vessels. Four main made islands will link the tunnels with the over water bridges and trestles of the 17.6-mile crossing. Scheduled for completion in the fall of 1963, the two $200 million bridge-tunnel will remove the last water barrier on the popular Ocean Highway.

Rescue Squad Stands By For Visitor, Homefolk Emergencies

Professionals with a amateur standing is a phrase that would probably make Avery Brundage, head of the Amateur Athletic Union, turn handsprings, but that is exactly the right description for members of the Virginia Beach-Princess Anne Rescue Squad.

No Pay

Members of this fine volunteer group are all amateurs in the sense that they receive no pay for their services, but they are professionals as far as knowing their respective jobs in caring for those requiring their services.

Occupations Vary

Here is an example of the cross section of the business life of the community represented on the membership roll of the Virginia Beach-Princess Anne Rescue Squad. It reveals an insurance executive, a trucking executive, service station operator, chemist, truck driver, engineer, real estate salesman, banker, policeman, plumber, commissioner of the revenue, tire salesman, postmaster, model owner, lumber yard owner, stock broker, and so on. Almost every conceivable type of occupation is listed among the 36 active members of the squad.

Ages 24 years - 49 years

The ages of members of the Rescue Squad range from 49 years down to 24 years. Each member puts in 12 hours duty twice a month plus one night drill meeting and one night a month at the business meeting. The squad averages answering 130 calls per month during the summer and 70 per month during the winter.

Organized 1952

In 1952 a group of 18 men volunteered their services in the formation of a group greatly needed at Virginia Beach, a group that would cover emergencies beyond the protection of the fire and police department. This Rescue Squad was not an original idea for many communities of comparable size and character have such a service and esteem its protection with immeasurable community pride. Since 1952, The Virginia Beach Rescue Squad has done some real growing and is now a smoothly operating unit.

New Attractions

ground of southern swampland, coastal sandunes and northern forests. It is located at Cape Henry where Chesapeake Bay meets the Atlantic Ocean. The park was originally developed as a Civilian Conservation Corps project in 1936 with the assistance of the National Park Service. Only twelve acres have been designated for use, but they encompass an outstanding range in vegetation which is scarcely matched anywhere. Within one mile, visitors can see stately old cypress trees festooned with Spanish moss, waterlilies, holly trees, towering pines, oaks, yucca and cactus. The park will be open daily from 9 a.m. to sundown. Access will be by a new three-quarter-mile entrance road off the Shore Drive (U.S. 60) slightly west of the former road. Only the mile-long wilderness trail will be open to the public. All other trails, roads, swimming, camp and picnicking areas will remain closed. There will be no drinking fountains or toilet facilities.

Fishing Info and Sights to See for Beach's Visitors

A variety of fishing "hard to beat" makes Virginia Beach a fisherman's paradise.
SALT WATER FISHING

BAY
In the waters of the bays that fan out from Lynnhaven Inlet is both popular and rewarding. Channel Bass run in the spring and fall. Speckled Trout come into these waters from September through November. Spots, Croakers, Flounder and Whiting may be caught during the summer months. Crabs for blue crabs is a favorite sport with natives and visitors in Lynnhaven Bay and Rudee Inlet.

PIER
Virginia Beach has two fine piers running out into the Atlantic where schools of fish run parallel to the shore line. Anglers here catch Virginia Spots, Croakers, Flounders, Sea Trout, Whiting, June through October. Heavy runs of blue are scheduled in May and June and again in August. Channel Bass, Rock Fish and Speckled Trout run in the early and late fall.

SURF CASTING
Same fish as caught from the piers. Occasionally large striped bass and channel bass are taken. REEF, DEEP SEA, GULF STREAM Charter boats are available for reef and off shore trolling and Gulf Stream fishing. Reefs off Virginia Beach produce a wide variety of bottom fish including Sea Bass, Weakfish and Flounder. Off shore trolling produces Blue Fish, Cobia, Dolphin, Tuna, Marlin, Bonita and False Albacore.

FRESH WATER FISHING

BACK BAY
Back Bay, less than twenty miles from Virginia Beach is recognized as having some of the finest large mouth Black Bass east of the Mississippi. These waters are open year round for Bass, Pickerel and Perch and there are numbers of liveries and guides available. At a recent one-day rodeo 96 anglers entered 626 Bass from these waters.

LAKES AND STREAMS
Nearby fresh water lakes, Lake Smith, Lake Christine and all the inland waterways of The Chesapeake and Albemarle Canal reward the fisherman with Bass, Pickerel, Bluegill, Crappie and White Perch. These are taken on artificial lures and by still fishing.

Boats are available for hire at all the above waters.

A WARM WELCOME
In the finest southern tradition, awaits you in Virginia Beach, the vacationers port of pleasure. Here is the pulse of hospitable, historic Virginia. A wide variety of recreational pleasures is offered to its guests in a relaxing, sunny, southern atmosphere.

A joyous blend of the old and the new... the contemporary and the traditional... we hope your vacation will be full of delightful things to see, to do and to remember for a lifetime.

SIGHTS TO SEE
Bright, bustling Virginia Beach is within ninety minutes of Colonial Williamsburg, Jamestown and Yorktown, the colonial estates of Adam Thoroughgood located on the banks of the Lynnhaven River... the duck blinds of Back Bay... the hunting grounds of Dismal Swamp... the docks of deep sea sports fishing boats.

TIDEWATER HISTORYLAND
The settlement of Jamestown in 1607 marked the beginning of more than 350 years of American history and romance in the Tidewater, Virginia area, extending around Jamestown, Williamsburg, Yorktown and the seaports of Hampton Roads.

In the small part of Virginia the cry for American freedom was heard the loudest in 1775 and it was the scene of the last battle of the Revolution, ending in the British surrender at Yorktown in 1781.

Here, Southern patriotism rose to its greatest heights in 1861-65. During the Civil War Centennial years of 1961-65 the drama of that conflict fires the imagination anew. Here, in 1862, the battle between the Merrimack and the Monitor made wooden battleships obsolete. Here, also, the nation mobilized large segments of Army, Navy and Air Forces during the two World Wars.

The lover of antiques can see many stately old homes, rare art and priceless documents and possessions. The history student will be thrilled to tread the same ground as Captain John Smith and Nathaniel Bacon and to stand in the very rooms frequented by Washington, Jefferson, Henry, Lee and a host of other famous Americans.

Virginia Beach "Home" of Three Bases: Fort Story, Dam Neck and Oceana NAS

PORT STORY is a major subordinate command of the U.S. Army Transportation Command, Fort Eustis, Virginia. It is situated at the tip of Cape Henry, 18 miles east of Norfolk and six miles north of Virginia Beach. It covers 104 acres, an area fronting on 33 miles of beach that makes it ideal for amphibious training.

Col. Pope

The post was named for Gen. John Patten Story, Chief of the Artillery School at Fort Monroe for many years, who contributed to many developments in range-finding equipment and in gunnery.

The reservation was acquired by the U.S. government in 1914 and was established in February 1917 as a Coast Artillery fort guarding the southern entrance to Chesapeake Bay.

For this mission Fort Story boasted the heaviest armament of any Atlantic coast fort. Its 16" rifles and howitzers, plus three batteries of 6" guns, all have been dismantled today. However, because of its strategic location it continues to maintain its status as an important link in our anti-aircraft defense network.

Toward the close of World War II, Fort Story was the site of a convalescent hospital opened in September 1945. It accommodated over 12,000 patients up to the time of its closing in March 1946. The same year marked the arrival of the first DUKW company on the post, although Fort Story did not officially become a Transportation Corps installation until July 1948. Since that time, it has trained amphibious truck units, Terminal Service Battalions, Terminal Service Companies and BARC Platoons for service in Europe, the Far East, and the Arctic. It is presently the home of the 4th Transportation Terminal Command C.

NAS Oceana, one of two Master Jet Bases on the East Coast, is the home for over 300 aircraft which operate at sea from carriers. Here the Navy's fighter and attack planes are maintained in a state of readiness.

Oceana's initial construction was completed prior to the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor, and during World War II—operating under the title Auxiliary Air Station—Oceana was used to train a large number of pilots who flew to achieve U.S. victory during this vital period.

At the end of the war the introduction of high speed jet aircraft into the Naval Air Arm necessitated Oceana's rapid development and expansion. In 1960 funds were appropriated to convert the Auxiliary Field at Oceana into a Master Jet Base.

By April 1962, construction had reached the point that Oceana's classification should be changed to a Naval Air Station. The arrival of supersonic aircraft had made longer runways and additional facilities necessary. NAS Oceana now has four modern runways, one 12,000 feet long and three 8,000 feet. These runways permit simultaneous take-off and landings.

FLTAAWTRACEN is a modern development of the Anti Aircraft Training and Test Center that was established at Dam Neck in November, 1941.

Facilities at the range were quite limited during the early years but the demand for this type of training provided the necessary impetus and today an up-to-date gunline with guns from 40 millimeter to 9"/54 caliber plus associated gun fire control systems graduate a continuous stream of qualified crews.

Between the years 1947 and 1949 radar training was initiated into the center's program on a very modest scale. Today there is an Operations Building with synthetic radar target generators, fire control and CIC mock-ups, Air Control Center and various shipboard radars for use in training both Anti-air warfare teams and individuals.

The Guided Missiles School is operated by the Bureau of Naval Personnel, which has its own classrooms, office spaces, missile laboratories and hangars. Target plane activity, a detachment of Utility Squadron Six, operates target drones for gunnery firing and for training of drone controllers.

WHO does not marvel at the flight of a bird?
The soaring jet does not seem such a miracle. It cannot fly with the same grace and beauty and ease.

Every bird must learn to fly. The mother bird pushes her fledgling out of the nest. The young bird falls helplessly until its wings discover the invisible support of the air.

If our lives are to rise beyond frail human nature, we too must learn to fly... on wings of faith. We must discover the invisible support of God's presence and power.

Come to Church next Sunday. You can find there the invisible support of God

Cody Company
Now at Seaside

The Old West is staging a comeback at Seaside Park, Virginia Beach. There's the Old Frontier shooting gallery, and there's the kiddie ride in which junior marshalls on horseback trade shots with "bad men." And now there's Wild Bill Cody and Company, a free demonstration of knife throwing, whipcracking and sharpshooting by the colorful western character and his 10-year-old daughter, Mary Alice. Cody's attractive wife is as expert with the rifle as her deadshot husband.

The youngest Cody is called the world's youngest whip cracker, and the whole show is free. It may be seen every afternoon at 2:30 and every night at 10:00 on the Outdoor Stage.

While the outdoor attractions — the bathing beach, the free circus acts, the rides and skill games on the boardwalk — are a powerful magnet for perspiring thousands of holiday-makers these hot days and nights, there's at least one indoor feature drawing crowds, and that is the dancing in the Ballroom.

The Saqqara Lintel

EGYPTIAN RELIEF FROM OLD KINGDOM

When Zoser, the 3rd Dynasty ruler of Egypt, was entombed at Saqqara near Memphis, the capital of the Old Kingdom, a form of pyramid and tomb was established that was used for many centuries.

Although Zoser's pyramid was enormous—it was 350 feet wide by 390 feet long and 200 feet high with an interior chamber 24 feet long and 77 feet high with a granite sepulcher in the floor—there were many lesser pyramids built there from the 3rd through the 6th Dynasties, as well as innumerable mastaba tombs. These dynasties were powerful enough not only to build these vast tombs but to carry on both successful wars and successful commerce.

The extent of their commerce may be seen in their use of cedar from the forests of Lebanon in their ships and gateways. The widespread influence of their power may be seen in the Old Testament references to Memphis where it is called Moph in Hosea and Noph in Isaiah, Jeremiah and Ezekiel.

Saqqara, the burial ground for Memphis, was one of the first Egyptian sites to be investigated by the modern world. As early as 1883 a stele from this necropolis was presented to the Ashmolean Museum in Oxford.

The Old Kingdom relief, from the 5th or 6th Dynasty, at the Virginia Museum of Fine Arts, is probably from an architrave or a lintel of a tomb chapel at Saqqara. It is inscribed for Ihy and Irgah and is in some relief with panels of hieroglyphs separating the figures of men.

Although it is dated between 2500 and 2400 B.C., it is impossible to pinpoint its date exactly since archaeological methods had not resolved themselves into a science until quite recently. Whatever its exact date, however, it is a rare survival of this earliest of Egyptian relief styles, a field which was to develop so fully in later Egyptian sculpture and which has never been surpassed in all the many centuries since.

Navy Air Show Awarded S.C.

A gigantic air show, featuring the Navy's spectacular "Chuting Stars" and more than a dozen of the Navy's hottest aircraft, has been awarded Florence, S.C. airport Sunday afternoon, September 3, according to Mayor David McLeod of Florence.

The show, free to the public, will come as the climax to Navy's week-long commemoration of their golden anniversary of air power at nearby Darlington. A multi-million dollar exhibit, including the Shepard space capsule, will be housed in Darlington and on Sunday, the day preceding the Florence show, the Navy's jet precision team "Blue Angels" will perform in the auto race city.

The Chuting Stars is the Navy's precision parachute team formed to operate just this year in conjunction with the celebration. The exhibition will consist of three jump passes at 12,500 feet altitude and a free fall of nearly two miles.

The ground exhibition will consist of about fifteen aircraft types, flown in for the exhibition. The public will be invited to inspect the planes.

Mayor McLeod, in explaining his city's selection, said, "Congressman John L. McMillan has worked closely with Darlington's Southern Festival and 500 officials to bring this celebration to the fans attending the stock car race and festival. Florence has always been a part of Darlington's great events and I am pleased to know our efforts have been successful to locate this part of the show for Florence."

The time for the show has been tentatively set for 2 p.m.

FORT STORY TELLINGS

Three Ft. Story Officers Receive Certificates of Merit for their part in the 1961 National Health Agencies Fund Drive three Ft. Story officers were recently presented Certificates of Merit.

The Certificates, presented by Colonel William P. Pope, Commanding Officer, 4th Transportation Command (Term C) were awarded to Lieutenant Colonel Frank M. Stout, local chairman, CWO Samuel S. Orr, Jr., Project Officer and Second Lt. Eugene Gibney, Jr., Project Officer. A letter to Col. Pope from Charlie W. Lee, Campaign Director, read in part, "your command has been selected by the Virginia Committee, Federal Service Campaign for National Health Agencies to receive the 'Distinguished Service Award' in recognition of the outstanding manner in which our 1961 campaign was conducted among your personnel and the resultant success that was achieved."

Hasbora Receives Promotion
Second Lt. Raymond R. Hasbora, Assistant Provost Marshal, has received his promotion to First Lieutenant in ceremonies at Post Headquarters. Colonel William P. Pope, Commanding Officer, 4th TC (TC) "pinned the silver bars on the new 1st Lieutenant."

Lt. Hasbora was commissioned a 2d Lieutenant in June, 1959, following his graduation from College. Upon entering active duty in January, 1960, his first assignment was to the Military Police Officers Basic Course at Fort Gordon, Ga., upon completion of the Basic course he underwent airborne training at Fort Benning, Ga.

The new 1st Lt. arrived at Fort Story in May, 1960.

TWO FT. STORY SERGEANTS RETIRE
Master Sergeant Thomas J. Furlough and Norman E. Zutavern, two well known men of Ft. Story, have retired with a total of over 43 years of active service.

Master Sgt. Furlough, who filled the position of Chief Clerk, O-3, served the last two and a half years of his career here at Fort Story. His only other stay was in 1945 as a convalescent patient of the hospital then located here at Fort Story.

A veteran of 20 years service and of World War II and Korea, M/Sgt. Furlough participated in the initial landings of North Africa and "D" Day landings of Sicily and France. It was while serving with the 1st Infantry Division (Medical Co.) in France that he was wounded in action. Among his other decorations are the Silver Star, CIB, and the Bronze Star with oak leaf cluster.

A native of Norfolk, M/Sgt. Furlough plans to enter the real estate business with the Woodard Co. of Norfolk.

M/Sgt. Zutavern, who has seen duty in the Far East and Panama, was a member of the last class to graduate from the Non-Commissioned Officer Academy at Carlisle Barracks, Pa.

Fahringier "SOM" For June
Specialist Fourth Class Claude R. Fahringier, Asst. Personnel Supervisor in the 14th Battalion has been selected as Fort Story's "Soldier of the Month" for June.

Specialist Fahringier entered the service in November, 1959, and received basic training with the 2d Armored Division, Fort Hood, Texas. He was assigned to Fort Story in September '60, as a Personnel Clerk for the 354th Transportation Company.

Sgt. Fahringier was assigned to the Personnel Administration School at Ft. Benjamin Harrison, Ind., in September, 1960 and finished 5th in a class of 50 students. Following the three and one-half week course he returned to the 354th, in October '60, he transferred to Headquarters Detachment for his present assignment.

LT. COL. LARSON ASSUMES COMMAND OF 10TH

The new Commanding Officer arrived at Fort Story from the Industrial College of the Armed Forces in Washington, D.C. Col. Larson entered the Army in 1940 at Fort Bliss, Texas, as a Lieutenant and served with the 7th Cavalry, 1st Cavalry Division. During World War II he was with the 37th Infantry Division in the Pacific Theater of Operations and was transferred to the 14th Corps in 1944. He served with the 14th until he was transferred to the Transportation Corps in 1947.

Prior to his assignment to the Industrial College in 1960 he served at various assignments with NATO and in CONUS.

Col. Larson and his wife, the former Frances Carver, and their two children reside on Post.

Lt. Col. Henderson will be assigned as Deputy Regional Director, Military Traffic Management Agency, South Western Region, in Dallas, Texas. Col. Henderson has been at Fort Story since September, 1960.

COMMUNITY SERVICE CITATION TO MISS KUKA
Mrs. Marie Kuka, in recognition of her outstanding achievements with Girl Scout and Brownie achievements on Post, was presented

ADV.
CREMATION
Symbol of Enlightenment and a Challenge to Thoughtful People.

This is the fourth in a series of seven articles on Cremation

RELIGION AND CREMATION
Religious leaders are almost unanimous in the belief that the divine power of resurrection is not limited or affected by the manner or length of time in which the mortal body returns to its elements.

In harmony with this reasoning the Mormon hierarchy says, "The Power that can resurrect the body from the grave can bring it forth from any place or condition in the universe. Belief in the Resurrection implies belief in God; and with Him all things are possible."

Surely this conviction has the force of logic, for if it were not true the rewards of the Hereafter would be denied to countless thousands of devout people who have pushed in conflagrations, to victims of aircraft disasters, and indeed to the Christian martyrs who perished at the stake.

The Bible contains nothing which opposes cremation. Many of the early Christians were Jews, and the Jewish ritual makes no mention of any method of interment. However, it is known that many of the Jewish rulers were cremated, including Saul and his three sons following the battle of Mount Gilboa. This is recorded in 1 Samuel 31:12. "All the valiant men arose and went all night and took the body of Saul, and the bodies of his sons from the wall of Beth-Shan, and came to Jabesh and burned them there."

Today nearly every faith accepts cremation, and even those few who oppose it as a matter of discipline will sanction it during periods of epidemics and similar emergencies. Especially in congested areas cremation receives almost universal acceptance. For example, during 1952 in Czechoslovakia, which is predominantly of the Catholic faith, 12,650 cremations were distributed among the various faiths as follows:

No stated religion, 3,594; Free-thought, 2,536; Protestants, 912; Roman Catholics, 6,424; Jewish, 28; and other faiths, 86.

NEXT WEEK FINANCES AND CREMATION

You may have questions which you would like to ask. As your local crematorium, we shall feel it a privilege to give you frank, honest answers without obligation of any kind. A personal visit may help you to understand better many of the things discussed in these articles, and we invite you to visit or consult us at your convenience.

sented a Certificate of Community Service Citation by Col. William P. Pope, CO 4th TC. The Citation was signed by Major General Norman H. Vissering, Commanding General, United States Army Transportation Training Command.

During the period 13 Sept. 60 to 30 June 61, Mrs. Kuka was active as a council member of the Fort Story Youth Association, a coordinator of Girl Scout activities and she also helped organize and was the Troop Leader of Fort Story's Girl Scout Troop 10.

Her cooperation also helped make Ft. Story's recent "Militant" Day Camp for Girl Scout and Brownies a success.

DORSEY ADDS TO HIS 19 YEARS OF ARMY SERVICE
Sgt. First Class Winfred A. Dorsey, Engineer Equipment Foreman with the 247th Transportation Company, recently completed three years to add to his 19 years of prior service. Sgt. Dorsey, a native of Kansas City, Mo., has served with two other units at Ft. Story, the 354th and the 417th Transportation Companies.

After completing basic training at Fort Leonard Wood, Mo., in 1942, Dorsey served with truck units and Engineer outfits until he was assigned to the Transportation Corps in August, 1950.

Following a SUNECE operation in 1951, Dorsey served with the 76th Engineers in Korea. In 1955, he returned to Fort Dix, N.J., and after tours at Ft. Bragg, N.C., and Fort Eustis, he was transferred to Fort Story in January, 1958.

His decorations include the Korean Service Medal, United Nations Service Medal, 2 Bronze

MAJOR ERNST RECEIVES LETTER OF COMMENDATION

Major Henry S. Ernst, Jr., 63, 10th Battalion was presented a Letter of Commendation signed by Major Gen. N. H. Vissering, Commanding General of the United States Army Transportation Training Command, for the Major's role "in the planning and execution of the Fort Story portion of Project Mobility recently conducted at Ft. Benning and Fort Story."

Major William J. Rutledge, Acting Commanding Officer of the 10th Battalion, presented the Letter to Maj. Ernst in ceremonies in front of Battalion Headquarters.

Maj. Ernst arrived at Ft. Story from the Transportation Officer Advanced Course, Transportation School at Fort Eustis, in June, 1960.

LETTERS OF RECOGNITION FROM N.A.S.A.

Major William H. Rutledge, acting CO, 10th Transportation Battalion, presented Letters of Appreciation to eight Fort Story men for their part in making the Mercury Redstone operation at Cape Canaveral, Florida a success.

The Letters were from the National Aeronautics and Space Administration and sent down through Department of the Army channels.

Men receiving the Letters were: Specialists, fourth class, Amil E. Gebrike, Gene Giffman and Lawrence L. Cox, Private First Class, Glen B. Hershey and Private Patrick J. Schuler of the 347th Transportation Company. Men from the 344th receiving letters were Pfc's Arnold W. Melke and Joseph R. Erickson and Sp4 Arnold D. Blankenship.

The letters which were presented, stated in part that they were awarded, "in recognition of your fine performance of duty in support of the recent Mercury Redstone operation which placed Lt. Cmdr. Alan B. Shepard into space."

The top local act is eligible to compete with winning acts from other communities in one of 10 regional elimination contests. The winner at each elimination contest will be given an expense-paid trip to the Southern States Annual Stockholders Meeting in Richmond, Virginia, on October 26-27 to compete in the final contest at which Ted Mack will be the master of ceremonies.

The 10 regional elimination contests, will be judged by a talent scout from the Ted Mack Original Amateur Hour Television Show.

The winner at Richmond will be given a three-day expense-paid trip to New York to appear on the Ted Mack Original Amateur Hour Television Show, plus $100.00 cash. The first place winner will receive $150.00 cash, while the third place winner will receive a cash award of $100.00.

Some of the highlights of the meeting was the report of Southern States Cooperative which was given by Mr. M. A. Tomlinson of Norfolk, Va. a member of the Virginia Representative. According to the report, members of the organization in a five-state area put through their cooperative about $2,000,000 worth of purchasing and marketing volume during the 1960-61 fiscal year. The cooperative's net worth increased by about $500,000.

Mr. L. Belmont Williams, manager of Southern States, Norfolk Operations, gave the report on local operations and services.

Residence Suburban District 2 (R-S 2) (R-S 3) of a tract of land containing approximately 120 acres, bounded on the West by the Bayshore Suburban District of Aracene Village, on the North by Bayshore Road and Days Road, on the East by property of Stanley Oliver and on the South by property of Stanley Oliver and Campbell. As shown on a proposed plat entitled Brookwood Terrace on record in the Office of Planning and Commission Affairs, Bayside District.

V. Application of Stanley E. Oliver by L. L. Underwood, Jr., Attorney, for:

(1) A change of zoning from Residence Suburban District 2 (R-S 2) to Limited Commercial District 3 (C-L 3) of a parcel of land situated at the intersection of the North and South Bayshore Independence Boulevard with Days Road, fronting 350 feet more or less on Days Road and extending in depth to the North Bayshore Independence Boulevard with Days Road, as Parcel C.

(2) A change of zoning from Residence Suburban District 2 (R-S 2) to Limited Commercial District 3 (C-L 3) of a parcel of land fronting on proposed Independence Boulevard 200 feet and extending to the North Bayshore Independence Boulevard with Days Road, as Parcel B on proposed plat Brookwood Terrace, Bayside District.

PROPOSED AMENDMENTS TO THE BUILDING CODE

Section 106. Building Code.

Building Code. Permit to construct, move, etc.—Required.

No wall, building, structure or part thereof shall hereafter be erected, moved, altered or demolished on a plan of the proposed work together with a statement of materials to be used shall have been submitted by the owner or contractor in accordance with the provisions contained herein.

In issue a permit for the proposed construction. Building plans shall be submitted and shall be in the list of the approved plans shall be retained and one set shall be kept at the building during construction.

No building shall be erected, moved, altered or demolished without permit or visit in conformity with this chapter shall be removed.

It shall be unlawful, notwithstanding the owner having failed to obtain a permit for any contract, contractor, sub-contractor, engineer, agent or employee to undertake to con-enough to prevent jointing in the fall. Take animals off before small grain begins to joint and start up right growth. If fields are grazed after the small grain begins to joint, grain yield will be reduced.

Topdress Pastures and Alfalfa
2. Topdress pastures which have little or no legume but a good stand of grass with from 40 to 60 lbs. of nitrogen per acre in late July or August. If the pasture was not topdressed with adequate amounts of phosphorus and potash last winter or spring, apply a 5-10-10 or 10-10-10 fertilizer or the equivalent at the rate heavy enough to bring the nitrogen applied to between 40 and 60 lbs. per acre. This will give additional grazing this fall and early next spring.

Grass Alfalfa
6. Graze one cutting of alfalfa if you are short of pasture. Put enough animals on the alfalfa to graze it down to about 2" within a week or 10 days, then remove the animals. It may be necessary to graze the alfalfa fields in strips. If necessary, other hay crops that have not already been cut and stored for hay may be grazed.
7. Remove animals in late July or August from a portion of tall fescue or other pasture, which has been topdressed with nitrogen or complete fertilizer, in accordance with suggestion 5. Allow the growth to accumulate and use for late fall grazing after your regular pasture is gone.
8. Good farm practices are insurance against unfavorable conditions.

MAKE SILAGE OF CORN

1. Make silage of corn to take advantage of the higher feed yields of corn silage over corn for grain and stover. Store in an upright, trench, or other type of silo. Small grain or ryegrass with crimson clover may be seeded early for grazing on this land.

Seed Winter Pastures

2. Seed small grain for late fall, winter, and early spring pasture and/or for grain. This mixture may follow Sudangrass, silage corn, or other early harvested crop. Seed during August, or early September. A mixture of rye and barley or rye alone have provided more grazing than other small grain. Seed rye alone at the rate of 2 to 3 bushels per acre or the rye-barley or other small grain mixture at 2 to 4 bushels per acre. You may wish to add 15 lbs. of ryegrass and 15 lbs. of crimson clover. Fertilize at the rate of 600 to 800 lbs. of 10-10-10 fertilizer per acre or with the equivalent rate of 1-1-1 ratio fertilizer. Growth in addition to that needed for pasture may be harvested for silage, hay, or grain.
3. Seed small grain or ryegrass in lespedeza, poor stands of alfalfa lespedeza orchardgrass pasture, or unproductive ladino-tallgrass pasture during August or September. Disk lightly and seed a mixture of 2 to 4 bushels of small grain, or 20 to 30 lbs. of ryegrass per acre. Fertilize with 600 to 800 lbs. of 10-10-10 per acre or the equivalent.
4. Fertilize small grain fields for grain with 600 to 800 lbs. of 5-10-10 fertilizer and plan to graze in fall and early spring. Graze

PRINCESS ANNE PEOPLE ON THE GO

VPI is a favorite spot for many during the summer months. I'm not sure if our people are going there for the cool mountain breezes, or to learn the latest research information.

Just returning from VPI are John Pouter, E. H. Harrison, A. V. Watts, Bruce Eberwine, Jr., and Keister Evans. They are all pretty excited about the annual Institute of Rural Affairs which they attended. They say that this provides an excellent opportunity to meet the state's foremost leaders in Agriculture as well as to see "first hand" the scientific research carried on.

JUNIOR HEREFORD MEMBERS ATTEND FIELD DAY

On Friday and Saturday, July 28 and 29, Keister Evans, Assistant Agent, carried Gale Craddock, Jimmy Johnson, Clyde Moon, and Johnny Joyce to the Virginia Junior Hereford Field Day, at Mulberry Hill Farm, near Marshall, Virginia. Evans tells me that this was an excellent trip for the young hereford men of tomorrow. At the field day the "Juniors" held their own organizational meeting, conducted judging classes, participated in the weight guessing classes, conducted a tour of the farm, and many other activities. All of which were conducted by the young boys themselves.

On August 26, the Angus feeders of Princess Anne will attend the Virginia Junior Angus Field Day in Culpepper. They will be under the supervision of Evans.

Life would be wonderful if we could get rid of Socialism, Communism, and Rheumatism.

4-H'ERS ABOUT READY

Twenty boys and girls are ready to receive their new steers in the 1961-62 Junior Steer Program. Distribution date has been set for September 16. I'll be leaving Princess Anne on August 13th, to make final purchase of the ten Angus and ten Hereford steers.

SOMETHING NEW HAS BEEN ADDED

A new 4-H livestock project has been added this year. In fact, this project involves something which has never been done to any extent in Princess Anne.

This is a feeder Lamb project. Each 4-H'er will receive ten lambs in early September. They will be fed until the middle of December. At that time each member will select one lamb to show from the ten. After the show all ten lambs will be sold at auction.
4-H members already enrolled in this project are: Stephanie Pecsek, Richard Joyce, Patricia Brickhouse, and John Osmundson.

A GOOD JOB

Congratulations to the Southern States Norfolk Service for an excellent membership meeting, held at the Alan B. Shepard Convention Center on August 3. Over 400 were in attendance. B. W. Berry, of Norfolk County and A. E. Williams of Princess Anne County were newly elected members of the Board of Directors.
Richard Joyce, of Princess Anne won the finals in the Norfolk Princess Anne 4-H Talent Show.

DO YOU?

Farm better electrically is a good way to cut labor cost, increase efficiency, and to increase profits. I had a wonderful opportunity to witness this on the "Farm Better Electrically Tour" held on August 4. The farm I was most proud of was that of V. E. Miller. Val has one of the most modern, up-to-date, efficient dairy operation in the county. If you missed the tour, stop by to see Val or his boys. They will be glad to show you around.

KEEP CALLING

So many telephone calls and office visits are being received now for trouble shooting assistance that it is difficult to get to some calls as quickly as we would like. When we can't get to you in a few days, it doesn't mean we don't want to. There are just more calls than we can get to immediately. If you have a problem relating to any phase of Agriculture or Horticulture, give us a call. We'll try to help. If we can't we'll get someone who can.

PROUD FATHERS

R. E. Sawyer and son of Princess Anne are the proud owners of the finest Hampshire ram I have seen in the county. This outstanding ram was purchased last week from Miss Martha Bryant, one of the finest Hampshire breeders in Southeastern Virginia. We need about 40 more just like him.

Gosh, it's hot, fish won't even bite!

BOTH WET AND DRY

In 1961 I have observed this county most ideal moisture conditions, while at the same time in other places in the county, almost severe drought conditions. Some folks would say that someone isn't

C. King Resigns Football Post At Beach High

Claude King, who was soon to begin his second year as Virginia Beach High School football coach, has resigned that position and it is rumored that he will shortly announce his intention to play professional golf. King stated that he notified school officials last Friday of his decision to leave coaching and that each fielding his own coaching and his team won the state championship in 1960.

King is one of the area's top amateur golfers and it is known that he has considered becoming a golf professional. King is non-committal on his future but word has been going the rounds that he plans to join the nation's touring golf professionals in the fall. The resigned coach took over the helm as football coach last year from George Tojo, who resigned to go into the bowling business. King is a native of Wilmington, N.C., and was an outstanding football player at East Carolina College. In his senior year he was named to the Little All-America eleven.

King's resignation leaves the local school with a big problem. The football season is only a few weeks away.

PIRATES' SCRIPTURE LEADS HIT PARADE

Billy Scripture hit his third home run and lifted his City League batting average six points to .400 last week. Thus the Princess Anne Pirate second baseman cemented his hold on the Top Ten summit.

Scripture leads by 13 points with five games left to play. Princess Anne has three men in the Top Ten, including Bob Andrusick who has left the team because of an Army transfer.

BEACH YOUNGSTER WINS IN U.S. GOLF

Virginia Beach's young Charlie McDowell is the new United States junior golf champion. The 16-year-old McDowell won the junior title of the United States Golf Association at Ithaca, N.Y., Sunday when he defeated Jay Sigel of Whitmarsh, Pa., 1 up.

McDowell came through like a real champion when he fired a pressure shot on the 18th hole to within three feet of the cup. His opponent promptly sent his second shot on this hole into a trap guarding the green and McDowell became champion of the 14th annual junior U.S. golf tournament.

McDowell, the Virginia Jaycee champion, fired a fine 75 over the tough, windswept Cornell University course in the final round. Sigel shot a 76. Sigel was a pre-tourney favorite to win the title.

The new United States junior champion is the pride of the Princess Anne Country Club and of Leo Kernan, veteran P.A.C.C. professional, who has tutored McDowell ever since he started to play golf.

Winning the junior golf championship of this country was no easy task for McDowell. He played top junior players in each match. McDowell admittedly played the best golf of his career during the tournament.

Charlie's near sensational shot on the final hole was a 170-yard four iron blast. "I hit a four iron and I really hit it good," said McDowell.

The champion defeated young husky George Boutell, 2 up, in the semi-finals. Boutell is a former Arizona state junior champion. Sigel won over Bob Haldeen of Sterling, Colo., in the semi-final round, 3 and 2.

CHARLIE McDOWELL

The final match was nip and tuck throughout. McDowell was one up through the 15th hole and Sigel squared the match with a tough sidehill birdie putt at the 16th.

At the 17th McDowell canned a tough 12-foot putt for a birdie to again go two up. Then came the final hole and young McDowell brought the U.S. junior golf title back to Virginia.

McDowell will enter Philips Exeter Academy next month but expects to play in at least two more tournaments before the school year begins. He hopes to take in the State Junior Amateur and the Western Amateur.

'Buddy' Guy Wins Princess Anne C. C. Golf Championship

George R. "Buddy" Guy is the 1961 golf champion of the Princess Anne Country Club after defeating George Beamon of Suffolk Sunday in the 36-hole finals by a 6 and 5 score.

The victory gave Guy his fourth club championship. He previously won the title in 1949, 1950 and 1954. His feat of winning four club championships places him second to Al Mailhes, who has won five times. Mailhes' victories came in 1946, 1947, 1953, 1958 and 1959.

The new champion wasted little time in turning back the bid of Beamon, who has been runner-up several times through the years, but who has never won the title. Guy got birdies at the first two holes and a par at the third to gain a quick three-up lead and he was never headed.

However, Beamon fought back and with birdies at five and seven and a win at number 6 he squared the match. That was the last time it was close and Guy relentlessly built up a commanding lead. The match ended on the 31st hole where the new champion got a par.

Guy's next competition will be in the qualifying tests for the national amateur. He will play his qualifying rounds in a Florida city. In other final matches Sunday Al Mailhes had to fire a par 71 to overcome young Randy Zehmer in the first flight final.

Young L. O. "Butchie" Clark proved too much for the veteran Jim Coates, who went down by a 6 and 4 score. Young Clark, who will enter the University of North Carolina next month, stayed fairly close to par in winning the second flight.

Larry Wales defeated Gene Evans, 5 and 4, for third flight honors and Charles Fleck Y vanquished F. Abie, 4 and 3, for the third flight title.

OF INTEREST TO VETERANS

The Veterans Administration says that thousands of National Service Life Insurance policyholders are not taking advantage of valuable, low cost disability insurance which is available as a rider to their policies.

The rider provides a payment of $10 per month for each $1,000 face value of the policy should the veteran become totally disabled. It is available only to policyholders of WW II and the Korean War who are under age 60 and presently in good health. Cost of the special rider depends on the policyholder's age, type of policy, and his face amount.

For a 40-year-old veteran with $10,000 NSLI term, the disability rider would pay $100 per month at a cost $1.40 monthly additional premium. Policyholders under 40, as a general rule, will be required to make a statement of good health only to obtain the rider. Those whose nearest birthday is over 40 must take a physical examination.

Swim Safety Program Begins Here Aug. 21st

Through the efforts of the newly formed YWCA center committee of Virginia Beach and Princess Anne County, a swimming and safety program is scheduled to begin for children of this area starting August 21.

The Princess Anne Country Club and the Martha Washington Hotel here are donating the use of their swimming pools for this cause in water safety and swimming, according to Mrs. T. Cornell Perry, who is chairman of the project.

Children enrolled in the third to sixth grades at W. T. Cooke and Litchford Park schools are eligible for the classes. The children will receive post cards indicating the period of instruction they are eligible for and the first group will assemble at the Princess Anne Country Club pool on Monday, August 21.

Other members of the committee, which is working closely with the Norfolk YWCA and the American Red Cross, are Mrs. W. E. Stevie, Mrs. Ed Koontz, Mrs. Robert S. Wabash, Jr., Mrs. G. K. Blosser, Mrs. Donald Merrick, Mrs. Henry G. Morgan, Mrs. H. Harold Bender and Mrs. Edwin A. Coyer.

It has been announced that anyone wishing to help with the project should contact Mrs. Perry or Mrs. Jack Musick, who is the YW general chairman.

10 Facts About Alfalfa Seeds that can improve your profits

- 1 Purity. A few extra weed seeds per pound can keep you busy fighting weeds for years. Frightening thought, but true. So read the seed tag carefully. You're safe with Southern States Alfalfa Seeds—they're cleaned right.
- 2 High germination is vital. Without it you can't get a vigorous, uniform, profitable stand. Compare the tags—then choose Southern States Seeds.
- 3 Origin. Some areas produce seeds that grow well around here. But certain other areas produce seeds that fail around here. Therefore it's essential that you choose a seedman who knows exactly where every pound of his alfalfa is produced—knows the state, county and grower's name, as Southern States does.
- 4 Winter-hardiness. Some farmers are still getting stuck with seeds that are not winter-hardy for this area. It comes from planting seeds of the wrong variety... or seeds of the correct variety but grown in the wrong seed-producing area. Play safe—plant winter-hardy Southern States Alfalfa Seeds.
- 5 Adaptation. Look to your State Experiment Station for the last word on this. Southern States does. It handles all the varieties that are recommended by your State Experiment Station.
- 6 Certification is all-important when you're planting the new, improved varieties. How unwise it is to gamble on uncertified or affidavit seeds. In the new, improved varieties, Southern States handles only certified seeds.
- 7 The Guarantee. You can invariably judge a bag of Alfalfa Seeds by its guarantee. Good guarantee, good seeds—it stands to reason. Take a look at Southern States' big tag guarantee. You'll agree—Only top seeds could stay in business with such a guarantee!
- 8 Pre-testing. When you plant pre-tested seeds, you have extra assurance of getting a profitable crop. There's far less risk. That's why it pays to pick a seedman that pre-tests its Alfalfa Seeds before you buy. Southern States is one of them.
- 9 Buy seeds by the acre, not by the pound. It's the only way to get a true perspective on your costs. (Seed cost per acre... equals seed cost per pound... times seeding rate.) Buy by the acre, and you'll also discover that Southern States Alfalfa Seeds cost less than you think.
- 10 Play it smart. Buy quality. The highly successful farmer no more thinks of planting bargain seeds or common seeds, than he thinks of allowing his management decisions to be determined by a throw of the dice. He knows that quality seeds and successful farming are inseparable.

EDITORIAL SPEAKING

An Unsolicited Letter Praises Virginia Beach As "The Place"

The Virginia Beach Chamber of Commerce, a few days ago, received a letter from a man in Fredericksburg, Virginia, who had just returned home after visiting here with his family. The letter is reproduced elsewhere on this page and should be read by everyone interested in the future of Virginia Beach and this area as a tourist center.

The letter was not solicited and the writer, Mr. T. H. Smith, is high in his praise of Virginia Beach. It is the type letter that makes a Chamber of Commerce beam with pride. It is a bit unusual in that most letters received from visitors are of the complaint variety.

Mr. Smith and his family were most impressed with the hospitality of our city, the accommodations and the food in our restaurants and cafeterias.

The letter goes on to say that the Smith family has visited many other ocean-side resorts along the Eastern Seaboard, but none can compare to Virginia Beach. Mr. Smith, it seems, has learned a fact that we have known for many years.

One point the letter brings out that is particularly noteworthy deals with travel time. Mr. Smith writes "the travel, with the Norfolk tunnel, is only about three and one-half hours, and to any of the others mentioned, it is eight hours or more."

Probably the nicest part of the letter is the closing paragraph which states, "finally, everyone on the boardwalk, beach, and in town seemed much more friendly than at any place we've previously visited, therefore, Virginia Beach, here we come again."

Hail To The Champion

This past week a young man brought much fame and glory to his name and at the same time brought to the proud community a national golf title, which, we believe, is the first championship of this magnitude ever won by a favorite son of this area.

The young man is, of course, 16-year-old Charlie McDowell and his feat of winning the United States Junior golf championship last Sunday in upstate New York has thrilled sports fans of this area as well as the nation.

Young Charlie-Mac, who started playing golf ten years ago at the ripe age of six, is the pride and joy of veteran Princess Anne Professional Leo Kernan, who has tutored the youngster throughout his brief career. Charlie-Mac is one of several youngsters that Kernan has developed and is the first to win a national golf title.

This Virginia Beach youngster traveled to New York for the 14th annual U. S. Golf Association Junior Championship and came off the winner in true championship style. He played against the best junior golfers in this country and that means the best in the world and he never wavered even when he trailed his opponent.

Charlie-Mac is a true champion in every sense of the word. He is well liked among his own age group as well as by the adults. His victory in this major golf event was warmly received here. His accomplishment in winning the U.S. junior golf championship has also included much publicity for Virginia Beach.

The Sun-News is proud to add its congratulations to Charlie-Mac on his outstanding golf triumph.

Read And Ponder

"Let anybody who approves of the practice of medicine by the government read and ponder . . ." Thus writes Dr. Milo H. Fritz in Northwest Medicine. And his indictment is based upon hard personal experience.

Briefly, the story is this. At Easter time, in 1960, Dr. Fritz left his private practice in Anchorage, Alaska, and flew to the remote lower Yukon, where he spent three days examining the eyes, ears, noses and throats of Eskimo children at St. Mary's Mission School. He recommended 40 patients for surgery to a branch of the U. S. Public Health Service which is responsible for the health of Alaska's native population.

The Service responded by saying that the children would be airlifted to a hospital for the needed surgery. But, when an angry Dr. Fritz returned to St. Mary's a full year later, only two of the 40 had been operated upon.

That is not all. During that return trip a year later, the doctor performed 71 tonsil and adenoid operations. He writes: "Of the 71 patients operated upon, 14 had been seen in 1949, 1953 and 1959 and had been recommended for the removal of tonsils and adenoids. The faithful and indefatigable public health nurses who made these recommendations and forwarded them . . . saw their efforts come to naught."

So, to repeat an eloquent phrase: "Let anybody who approves of the practice of medicine by the government read and ponder . . ."

Stand Up And Be Counted

There is one place where Russia has a tremendous selling advantage for communism—it believes unequivocally in its superiority over the capitalist system.

In seeking to convince other nations as to the superiority of its way of life it presents a solid front. It can point to the United States and show many examples of government-owned commercial activities which, to that extent, are socialism.

Pitifully few of our political leaders support the free-enterprise philosophy as emphatically as Russian leaders promote communism.

Recognizing this situation, Philip A. Fieger, president of the Edison Electric Institute, has called on investor-owned utilities to point out the weakness of government-owned electric power production. He said: "Let us show just how unnecessary and wasteful these Federal power projects are." He also pointed out how they are being "excused from more than three-quarters of the taxes which the other 80 per cent—the customers of the investor-owned companies—pay through their electric bills."

If we are half-hearted in our support of free enterprise, or if we continually dilute our capitalist system with phony tax-exempt socialistic "yardsticks" to undercut individual enterprise, our grandchildren will never know what freedom means.

Dear Sir:

My family and I spent several days at your beach last week, and I know that you usually get only knocks and complaints when you hear from anyone concerning their stay there.

We stayed in one of the moderate rate hotel-motel combinations. The persons with whom we came into contact in the conduct of the hotel were very courteous and friendly. They were ever ready to be of assistance. The rates were not at all exorbitant.

We ate at both of your cafeterias, and found the service at both of them excellent and the food likewise, in fact, it was far above what usually is found when one is away from home. The food and service in your restaurants was equally good.

Since the war, we have been both up and down the Atlantic Coast, to Myrtle Beach, S. C., Wildwood, Atlantic City and Cape May, New Jersey. We found all of these places nice, but in the future we intend confining our beach going to your beach.

The travel, with the Norfolk Tunnel, is only about three and one-half hours, and to any of the others mentioned, it is eight hours or more, and the difference in the beaches, if any, is not worth the extra driving. We think we have been missing a good thing by not going to your beach sooner.

Finally, everyone on the boardwalk, beach, and in town seemed much more friendly than at any place we have previously visited, therefore, Virginia Beach, here we come again!!!

Sincerely,

T. H. Smith

Editor, Sun-News:

Dear Sir:

While showing a recent "Baltimore Visitor" on our beautiful, newly paved Pacific Avenue, I proudly pointed out the lovely "Petunia Projects" along the South end. Suddenly the old broken down foot bridge across Lake Holly loomed up before us. As we rode along she said "What a wonderful youth project that would make for summer. Besides being lots of fun pulling down that dilapidated eye sore it would be doing something good for Virginia Beach."

So I pass the thought along. Anyone for Project Lake Holly?

HAPPY DAYS SCHOOL BUILDING ADDITION

Mrs. Frances Ansell and Mrs. Judith Brunner, co-directors of Happy Days Kindergarten and Day Nursery announced today that new construction has been started which will double the present class room capacity of the school building. Although still in its first year of operation Mrs. Ansell stated that public reaction to the preschool facility has made it necessary to expand at this time.

The new construction will consist of an all-purpose unit which will serve a dual function of two class rooms and auditorium complete with a stage suitable for the presentation of children's programs.

Happy Days students will be given class room instruction in dancing this year by the Martha Carr School of Dancing, which will be located in the Kindergarten building for the 1960-61 term. Private dancing lessons will be given in the new school auditorium on an afternoon schedule which will be announced in the near future.

The Directors feel that class room training in dancing will complete a well rounded program of preschool training for young children, with the opportunity for individual dance instruction immediately available.

A. C. Clark Company, general contractors, will complete the new addition in early September. The construction will be identical with that in the original building. All framing will be of steel, manufactured and erected by the J. K. Parker Engineering Company of Lynnhaven. Exterior finish will match the attractive brick originally used.

Mr. and Mrs. T. N. P. Johnson, Jr., Miss Mary Parke, Betty and Helen Johnson and T. N. P. Johnson III, Mr. and Mrs. Craig Shingliff and Mr. and Mrs. David Ponder III spent last weekend in Washington and attended the marriage of Miss Alice Jane Gardner of Washington to Dr. Joseph Maynard Fryman Jr. of Norfolk on Saturday afternoon.

Deaths

Mrs. Mary Jane Mason Smith, Mrs. Mary Jane Mason Smith, 78, wife of George E. Smith and daughter of William and Mrs. Ella Mason, a native of Lynnhaven died in a Norfolk hospital Monday at 4:45 p.m. She was a member of Lynnhaven Methodist Church and lived on Route 1, Lynnhaven.

Surviving besides her husband are six daughters, Mrs. Madeline V. Hogge, Mrs. Lillian E. Heiden, Mrs. Bertha L. Taylor, Mrs. Elsie Y. Pappas and Mrs. Irma C. Bailey of Lynnhaven, and Mrs. Marie M. McLeod of Norfolk; four sons, Roy E. Smith and Gordon A. Smith of Lynnhaven; George S. Smith of Thalia and Ryland R. Smith of Norfolk; a brother, Charles Mason of Norfolk, 32 grandchildren; and 26 great-grandchildren.

A funeral service was held in Ewell & Williamson Funeral Home Wednesday at 2 p.m. Burial was in the family cemetery at Lynnhaven.

ALBERT LEE BARCO, JR., Albert Lee Barco Jr., 54, former assistant police chief here, died at his home, 317-26th St., Sunday at 7 p.m.

A lifelong resident of Princess Anne County, he was a son of Albert Lee and Homie Baden Barco. He was a stockman at the Fleet Air Defense Training Center, Dam Neck.

He was assistant chief of police and identification officer here from 1937 to 1942. He was a member of Galilee Episcopal Church, Virginia Beach Masonic Lodge No. 274, and the American Federation of Government Employees.

Survivors include his widow, Mrs. Gertrude Eckman Barco, a son, Albert Lee Barco III of New York City, and two sisters, Mrs. R. W. Whitehurst of Virginia Beach and Mrs. C. J. Parham of Arlington.

The body was taken to Maestas Funeral Home.

Groover-DuBois Vows Spoken

Miss Emily Elizabeth Groover became the bride of Bernie H. Old DuBois on Saturday at 3 p.m. in the chapel of Galilee Episcopal Church. The Rev. Edmund Berkeley performed the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Walker Groover of Oceana. She is the granddaughter of Mrs. Elizabeth Parke Ellis and Mrs. Charles W. Groover, both of Savannah, Ga. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Bernie H. DuBois, and is the grandson of Mrs. E. C. Pritchard and Mrs. B. C. DuBois, all of Savannah.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a silk shantung suit of olive green and a beige chiffon hat. She carried a crescent bouquet of beige cymbidiums and lily.

Miss Lillie Albene Whitehurst of Washington, D.C., formerly of Savannah, was the bride's only attendant.

Jack Yates of Annapolis, Md., was best man. Groomsmen were Timothy McCoy and Evans Cayce, both of Oceana.

Proper Lighting Essential Part Of Good Living and Health

IS YOUR HOME WELL LIGHTED?

When you sit in your favorite chair, can you read without twisting your paper around so that the light may be just right? Is your kitchen well lighted? Is your living room so lighted that your children and their friends enjoy it?

Do your children have a place to study where the light shines on their books and not in their eyes? Is your living room so lighted that your children and their friends enjoy it?

If your answer to some of these questions is "no," then this can help you.

Good lighting means having the right kind and right amount of light at the right place. When you can see easily and comfortably, you have good light.

For many years, scientists and engineers have studied the problem of lighting and its effects on the human eye. The principles are few and clear. Engineers have taken advantage of the things they have learned about light and vision and have installed good lighting in their factories and offices. They have found that the cost of good lighting is less than the cost of the results of poor lighting.

Good lighting is planned lighting. The lighting needs for the most tasks in the home cover a wide range. For that reason, the amount and distribution of light for each eye task should be carefully considered.

Good lighting makes your work easier and better, makes your home more pleasant and comfortable. It is the right kind of light, enough light, and the proper distribution of light, is needed in your home.

By following two simple rules, you can have good lighting in every room of your home.

1. Have enough light (quantity). Various eye tasks require varying amounts of light. For instance, sewing is a more difficult eye task than reading the pages of a well-printed book; therefore, higher levels of light are required for sewing.

2. Have comfortable light (quality). A certain amount of room-wide lighting is needed for comfort and safety. This can seldom be done with only one lighting unit. A single lighting unit may provide enough light for a given task and still leave the rest of the room dark. The human eye sees the dark portion of the room as well as the light, and this contrast causes the pupil of the eye to dilate and contract as the eye moves back and forth from the light to the dark; the result could be eye strain.

The color and finish of the walls, too, are important in planning lighting. It is possible to light rooms with dark colored walls satisfactorily, but it is more tedious and costly. Lighter walls, ceilings, and floors are finished in light colors.

Remember that a dull finish on walls and ceilings will help make the lighting more comfortable. A shiny surface will give back an uncomfortable reflected light, or what is commonly known as "glare."

Bare lamp bulbs also cause unnecessary eye strain and interfere with ease of seeing; therefore, shield all bare lamp bulbs. Glass, plastic, or paper shades improve appearance as well as give more comfortable light.

Good lighting in the home results from the use of ceiling fixtures, wall brackets, and portable floor and table lamps (or a combination of these).

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Spruill Jr. announce the birth of their first child, a daughter, Deborah Lynn, on Aug. 1 at De Paul Hospital. Mrs. Spruill is the former Miss Nancy C. Dickerson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Dickerson of Princess Anne County. Mr. Spruill is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Spruill Sr. of South Norfolk.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Frederick Butt Jr. of Lynnhaven announce the birth of their first child, a son, James Frederick, on Aug. 2 at Norfolk General Hospital. Mrs. Butt is the former Miss Norma Virginia Spencer, daughter of James T. Spencer and the late Mrs. Spencer. Mr. Butt is the son of Mr. and Mrs. H. Frederick Butt.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Lewis Johnson Jr. of Churchland announce the birth of their second daughter, Susan Taylor, on Friday, July 28, at Maryview Hospital, Portsmouth. Mrs. Johnson is the former Miss Elizabeth Anne White of Norfolk, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harrison White. Mr. Johnson is the son of Mr. and Mrs. T. Lewis Johnson of Virginia Beach.

Personal Mention

Mrs. B. K. Lindeman spent last weekend in Petersburg as the guest of Mrs. Martha Lanier Hinton. She was among the out-of-town guests attending the marriage of Mrs. Anne Wright to Edward Steele of Raleigh, N.C. Miss Wright is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Fletcher Wright of Petersburg. The wedding took place Saturday night.

Mr. and Mrs. George E. Powell Jr. and Mr. and Mrs. R. Dawson Taylor are spending several days at the Sea Ranch, Kitty Hawk, N.C.

Mrs. Willis Holland of College Park, Md., is visiting her mother, Mrs. J. Tyler Ellis, and Mr. Ellis at their home on 33rd street.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Tyler Ellis spent last weekend visiting Mrs. W. J. Burton at her home in Petersburg. They were among those attending the Wright-Steele wedding on Saturday night.

wedding trip to Williamsburg the couple will live in Annapolis.

The bride is a graduate of Princess Anne High School. The bridegroom is a graduate of Savannah High School and is serving with the United States Navy at Annapolis.

bination of these). Using the right fixture of the right lamp for each task will help eliminate eye strain and eye fatigue.

Well designed and attractive "lighting units" contribute to the comfort, safety and livability of the modern home.

In thinking of lighting for the kitchen, think of your kitchen as a workshop. You spend many hours in this room where modern automatic appliances offer convenience, safety, comfort, ease of operation, and safety beyond the wildest dreams of our grandmothers.

Every kitchen, regardless of style—new or older design, up-to-date or less modern appliances—needs modern, high standards, up-to-date lighting which can be provided by fluorescent or incandescent fixtures. An adequate amount of light will let you see "what's cooking!" Inside the pots and pans, and washing dishes can be much easier in a brightly lighted and cheerful kitchen.

You can easily have a correctly lighted kitchen by first paying attention to the individual work centers. The range, sink, baking, food preparation counters, the eating center, and the business center are areas for local lighting. Use additional lighting for each of these places where you do critical eye tasks, and then together with a ceiling fixture for room-wide lighting. There, at the flip of a switch, a sunny and cheerful room is yours.

Remember, dark colors eat up or absorb light; light colors (pastels) reflect light. It is not impossible to correctly light kitchens with navy blue, deep red, or brown ceilings, floors and walls, but it takes more and larger lamps and fixtures for good lighting results.

Oak Grove Baptist Church Annual Revival August 20-25

Oak Grove Baptist Church, Back Bay, Virginia, the oldest Baptist Church in the Norfolk area, having been established in 1762, announces its Summer Revival for the week of August 20-25th.

The Rev. Doctor H. Coven Ellis, pastor of the First Baptist Church, Charlottesville, Virginia, will be the guest minister for the week. Dr. Ellis is a native of Tampa, Fla., and received his B. A. degree from Wake Forest College in 1943. His Seminary training was at Southern Seminary, Louisville, Kentucky, where he received his B. D. degree in 1948.

From the University of California, Dr. Ellis received his Ph.D. in 1951 on his doctoral thesis, "The Psychotherapeutic Application of Certain Tenets of Religion to Human Emotional Disturbance."

Dr. Ellis has a wide and varied background as a Baptist Minister, having served as U. S. Army Chaplain, pastor in Florida, Tennessee, and at present in Virginia. In addition to his pastoral background, he has served on the Tennessee Social Service Commission, Virginia Religious Liberty Study Committee, Christian Life Commission and the Virginia Baptist Board of Missions and Education. Dr. Ellis is listed in "Who's Who in the South and Southwest", 6th edition published by Marquis of Chicago.

From this background Dr. Ellis will bring a series of messages relevant and pertinent to our day and time.

Rev. H. Eugene Arrington, pastor of the Church will be leading the singing, and there will be special music furnished by the Junior and Adult Church Choirs. The Church extends a warm and cordial welcome to any that would come to the services. The time of the services will be 11:00 a.m. Sunday, Aug. 20th, 7:45 p.m. Sunday evening and every night through Friday night, August 25th. The Church is located 1 mile north of Creeds on Route 615.

OVER THE FENCE

By NELLIE P. MATTHEWS
Friday's Games
Tigers 4, Rotarians 3
Cubs 2, Sports 1

These two games were real good baseball, though perhaps not as exciting as some. They were conspicuous in their low total of errors, hits, and runs. Sort of more like Major League ball of the old days.

In the first game, the Rotarians broke up the Tigers' shut-out in the 6th inning with their three runs batted in by Entenmacher, Dobbs, and Kenney. Mike got robbed in the 2nd, by center-fielder Johnson who made a dream of a running catch of a well-hit ball. The Tiger defense also came up with two beautiful double-plays—Chap McQuilkin to Billy Newton. There were in succession and put the Tigers way out in front in that department. They have eight for the season. Love those double-plays—the prettiest play in baseball!

The Cubs came through with their "magic fifth" again in the second game and got their two runs and four hits in this one. Vivv Hodgson, eligible for only three innings, faced nine Sports. Vivv was really hot in this one! And Fred Jordan in relief did a bit of all right too. Fred gave up one run on one hit and accounted for six of the 9 Sports outs.

Sports pitcher Tom Batchelder wrecked the no-hitter in the 4th and batted in the only Sports run. He double-bagger to center field looked like it was gone, but didn't quite make it. Center field was a real popular place, Gordon Sofield, just after he came in the game, robbed Hodgson in the fourth inning. Nice catch, Gordon, nothing wrong with that wrist now.

Tuesday's Games
Rotarians 7, Cubs 0
Tigers 3, Sports 2

Vivv Hodgson ruined Mike Kenney's no-hitter in the 6th inning with a double to left field. Up to this time Mike had a fine thing going for him. He faced 23 Cubs, gave up no runs on one hit, struck out 14 and walked 3. Able assistance was given by Cash Dobbs who had a busy time at first base, singled and doubled and scored three runs. David Brown also looked good at first for the Cubs who felt the pinch of losing several of their players to camp.

Bill Mayo and Chipper McQuilkin shared the pitching honors for the Tigers—another no-hitter wrecked by Sports Craig Waring. This is becoming a habit with Craig who doubled to center in the sixth and drove in a run. Mayo got an "almost" double in the 3rd, besides pitching three fancy innings. Bill faced 10, gave up no runs on no hits, struck out 7 and walked only one. Sports Jerry Linsky at first caught a hot line drive to end a Tiger rally in the fifth.

By this time everyone knows the Tigers have won their first pennant since Little League was started here seven years ago. All the best to you boys who have played really fine baseball and have shown great sportsmanship by your modesty! Congratulations to Hugh Mayo and James V. Powell who have given these champions far more than the fundamentals to win a game.

Easter Seal Summer Pool Dedication Set for August 17

The therapeutic swimming pool at Camp Easter Seal Summer Treatment Center near New Castle, Virginia, in Craig County, will be dedicated in ceremonies to be conducted at the center on Aug. 17, beginning at 2:15 p.m. (Standard Time).

The ceremony will be in charge of the Junior Members of the Virginia Federation of Women's Clubs. The presentation of the pool to the center will be made by Mrs. Nolan S. Cutler, Jr., Newport News, immediate past president of the Junior Clubs. The dedicatory address will be given by Mrs. Harold Garst of Roanoke, the current president of the Juniors. Acceptance on behalf of the crippled children of the state will be made by Robert C. Price, interim executive director of the Virginia Society for Crippled Children and Adults, which operates the facility.

The pool is a gift of the Junior Clubs. Constructed at a cost of $18,000.00, funds were raised by the one hundred and twenty clubs during the last year through a variety of projects.

Especially designed to meet the needs of crippled children, the pool is heated and a constant temperature is maintained to allow its use on hot as well as chilly days. Measuring 35 by 65 feet, a special ramp was built at the shallow end of the pool to facilitate getting severely handicapped children into and out of the pool.

Camp Easter Seal Summer Treatment Center was opened in 1967. The Junior Clubs are co-sponsors of the center in cooperation with the Easter Seal Society. Almost three hundred children from every section of Virginia will attend during the current camping season. The third and final session is now under way and will close on August 19.

The public is cordially invited to attend the dedication ceremonies.

BIRCHWOOD GREEN THUMB JR. GARDEN CLUB MEETS

Chesapeake Beach Queen To Be Crowned on August 12

Mr. Frank W. Cox, Supt. of Schools in Princess Anne County and Virginia, will crown the 1961 Festival Queen for the Woman's Club of Chesapeake Beach at their annual Summer Festival on August 12, 1961. The coronation will take place at 9 o'clock in the evening at the Chesapeake Beach Community Center. The young ladies who are competing for the coveted crown are Misses Christine Boyer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Will Boyer of Lakeview Park; Barbara Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. B. Smith of Chesapeake Beach; and Linda Radford, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Radford of Thoroughgood. Other girls participating in the Queen's Court will be Misses Carol Smith, Norma Jean Carpenter and Rebecca Miller. Misses Kathy Burton, Peggy Carter and Miss Sarah Lou Deane, 1960 Queen, Junior attendants to the Queen's Court will be Misses Bonnie Stenham, Robin Thompson, Dana Claypool and Patricia Leigh Robbins. Miss Cathy Ingram, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ingram will be guest of honor to the court. Mrs. Ingram is President of the Bayside Junior Woman's Club. Mrs. Roy M. Harkness is Chairman of the Queen Contest. The Festival Parade will be staged on Friday, preceding the event. The young beauties running for queen and their court will ride in the parade which will be complete with floats and bubble gum. Husbands of the Woman's Club members have promised a real surprise ending to the parade. The Chesapeake Beach Fire Department will all be represented in the parade.

The Festival will officially open at 10:45 a.m. with a Variety Show for the youngsters. This event will include Bill Burdick's Magic Act, Miss Kay Wilkins of Deep Creek, National "Miss Majorette of 1961", Miss Bunny Humphries, the Virginia State Twirling Champion, Pam Wilkins, Pantomimist and the Others performing in the show will

Beach Featured In C&P Billings

515,000 homes and businesses will receive a reminder of Virginia Beach this month when the telephone bill arrives.

Through the cooperation of L. F. Patrick, manager of the Virginia Beach office, this month's enclosure folder, C & P CALL, features Virginia Beach on the cover.

Patrick says this utilizes the largest mailing list in the entire state. The C&P Telephone Company has been devoting the cover of the enclosure folder to Virginia points of interest. The August 5th and August 15th statements will be accompanied by the blue folder showing an aerial of Virginia Beach which was taken in June according to the specifications of Mr. H. K. Buerlin.

Laura Lambie, Virginia Beach publicist, stated that Mr. Buerlin wished the specific area between 20th and 24th photographed. The aerial taken from a helicopter certainly proves the magnificence of the Beach.

Kay Wilkins Junior Dance Line, be Miss Billy Jean Morris, Billy Wassarahaley, and a Trampolaine Act will complete the show. Admission will be 25 cents. At 4:15 Saturday afternoon, the Woman's Club is proud to present the Princess Anne Canine Division of the County Police Department in a demonstration of the work of dogs in law enforcement.

The Festival Supper will be presented from 5 until 7 p.m. Special emphasis is being put on the part of the big event. Many door prizes will be given away and there will be a drawing for a Silver Service.

All booths will officially open at 12 noon. They will include, White Elephant, with Mrs. William Wassarahaley, Chairman, Country Store and Home Bakery, Mrs. L. E. Lester, Children's Games, Mrs. Ray Fels, Catalina Refreshment Booth, Mrs. Billy Morris, Prize Table, Mrs. Ellen Robbins, Plants and Fancy Work, Mrs. Fred Laneford, Decorations, Mrs. Gordon Oliver and Tickets, Mrs. Harry W. Fulford.

Popular Johnny Long Appearing At Cavalier

Up coming orchestra on The Cavalier schedule is no stranger on the Beach Club bandstand. Johnny Long, "Young America's Favorite" is a many time repeater in The Cavalier's summer line-up. The North Carolinian who made "big time" in the band business is probably best identified with a 1940 recording "In Old Shanty Town" and his special arrangements on "Blue Skies", "When I Grow Too Old To Dream", "Paradise" and "Just Like That", the latter a tune Johnny wrote.

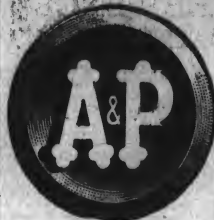

The orchestra has a list of recordings on Coral Records as numerous as the engagements the band has played. A favorite with The College Crowd, the orchestra has played at Notre Dame, Dartmouth University, Duke University, Carnegie Tech and such super club spots as Hotel Statler in New York and Washington, Hotel New Yorker, Boston's Sheraton Plaza and many more.

PROPERTY OWNERS WILL BE NOTIFIED OF NEW ASSESSMENT

New property assessments in Princess Anne County will not be known until a complete appraisal of approximately 36,000 parcels of real estate have been appraised, according to a decision of the Princess Anne County Board of Supervisors made Monday.

A complete study and reappraisal of all real estate in the county has been going on for some time. The survey is being conducted by a special team from the State Department of Taxation. It is expected that this study will be completed within the next few months, it was pointed out.

Fred C. Forbier, director of the Division of Real Estate Appraisal and Mapping, Virginia Department of Taxation, appeared before the supervisors Monday. He suggested notifying property owners as to the new assessed value of their property while the appraisers are still at work in the county.

BARBERS REQUESTION

But Lynnhaven Supervisor James G. Darden said, "I'm not going to vote for this until the new assessments are in."

About 24,000 appraisals have been completed, but none has been started in the Kempsville District. The supervisors voted to table the assessment problem temporarily and hold a joint meeting with the County Board of Assessments.

The board's reluctance to air the matter at present is obviously based on possible changes in individual property values.

For example, if the state appraisers raised the assessed value of a piece of property by one-third the owner might assume his taxes also would be increased by one-third.

However, the supervisors will not take up the question of a change in the tax rate for some months after the assessment figures are released.

Playing a part in the board's decision, Clerk of Court John V. Pentecost indicated, was the memory of a 1953 tax change which caused widespread unhappiness.

In that year, the tax board doubled the value of some property in North Virginia Beach and the supervisors raised the tax rate. Many North Virginia Beach residents in protest asked to be annexed by the city of Virginia Beach. No action was taken on their request.

The supervisors approved zoning changes for the proposed Brookwood Terrace subdivision, about 335 lots between Virginia Beach Boulevard and Bayville Road.

They also approved the petition of Wilder Theaters for permission to build an indoor theater on the boulevard near Rosemont.

News Digest

BOND SALES FOR JULY INCREASE

Series E and H Savings Bond sales in Virginia totaled $6,061,249 in July. This exceeded sales in July, 1960 of $3,707,386 by more than $2,353,863.

Total sales for the seven months of this year are $45,306,744 compared to $48,123,612 during the same period of 1960.

The following counties and cities exceeded or met the "beat" of the assigned annual quota at the end of the seventh month: Accomack, Augusta & Staunton, Bedford, Carroll, Chesterfield, Dickenson, Fairfax, Fluvanna, Henrico, Lunenburg, Mathews, Montgomery, Prince Edward, Roanoke County, Shenandoah, Smyth, Washington, Wise, Wythe, Alexandria, Alexandria, Buena Vista, Clifton Forge, Danville, Hampton, Lynchburg, Martinsville & Henry County, Newmarket, Newmarket, Norfolk County, and Westmoreland.

REQUIREMENTS ARE MADE MORE STRICT BY COUNTY BOARD

September 13 is a date to remember for present and future builders in Princess Anne County for on that date tighter restrictions and requirements for building will go into effect, according to action taken by the Board of Supervisors Monday.

The action came in the form of approval on first reading a list of amendments to existing ordinances concerning construction, off-street parking, drainage, sewage systems, street improvements and fire safety. The amendments become effective in 30 days.

Thomas Adams, chairman of the county Planning Commission, which worked on the amendments for months, told the supervisors the changes will require more funds for inspection services by the county government.

He added, however, that the county will save hundreds of thousands of dollars for each $100 spent to enforce the new provisions. In some cases, builders will be required to make more improvements than in the past, and builders not using federal financing will have to find more information with the county government before obtaining building permits.

Adams said the commission discussed the tighter new regulations with representatives of the building industry and reached agreement.

A spokesman for the Tidewater Area, of Home Builders said that "nobody gets everything they want, but we've come to a meeting of the minds."

The code changes are considered a step forward in the strengthening of a rural government which must serve the needs of a fast expanding community. They are expected to give the more orderly development of construction and improvements.

Rotary Club Sets Program For Crippled Children Visit

The Virginia Beach Rotary Club is preparing for the arrival Sunday of approximately 63 crippled children from West Virginia, who visit Virginia Beach annually. The local club plays host for a week to the handicapped children.

Buddy Riggs, chairman of the crippled children committee for the Rotary Club, has announced a full week of entertainment for the youngsters. Riggs stated that the party of eager youngsters are scheduled to arrive some time Sunday in Newport News and will be transported to Virginia Beach in two buses loaned to the club by the Friend's School.

On their arrival Sunday the party will lunch as guests of Grupp's here. The group will be housed in the Dunes Motor Hotel for their Virginia Beach vacation.

The highlight of the children's schedule on Monday is a visit to Frontier City as guests of the management. Tuesday several of the children are to appear on Warren Hall's television program.

Wednesday the children will be conducted on a tour of the Oceana Naval Air Station. Thursday they will lunch at the Normandie Cafeteria and will be guests of the club at the regular meeting of the Rotary Club Thursday night.

On Friday the youngsters will be taken on boat rides from the Cavalier Yacht and Country Club and Saturday they will ride on a Virginia Beach fire truck.

Between all these special events planned for the children will be free movies, free carpet golf and free rides at Seaside Amusement Park.

OFFICIALS MUM ON STATE SEWER ORDER

Virginia Beach city officials are maintaining a "no comment" attitude on a State Water Control Board order requiring Virginia Beach to get board permission for any future sewer line connection.

The city was one of 45 Virginia localities and three coal companies being notified of the move by the board in Richmond.

According to the Associated Press the notices implement a regulation the board adopted June 1 to tighten the agency on localities and industries which have done little or nothing to solve their water pollution problems.

A. Warren Felt, Virginia Beach director of public works, said he had received no official word from the Water Control Board and declined to comment on the report.

City Manager W. Russell Hatchet indicated he was unhappy about the order, but declined to comment on it.

Les Lam New Commander Of State Legion; 1962 Meet Here

Henry Leslie Lam of Virginia Beach is the new commander of the Virginia Department of the American Legion. He was elected to the State's highest post at the annual convention of the group held last weekend in Roanoke.

Lam, a former commander of the Princess Anne Post 113, was elected for the 1961-62 year to succeed Murray York of Alexandria.

In addition to the election of Lam the convention voted to hold its 1962 meeting at Virginia Beach. The selection of Virginia Beach was somewhat unexpected since Norfolk had made a strong bid for the meeting.

The new state commander is an attorney and lives with his family in Princess Anne Hills here. He maintains a law office at Princess Anne.

Lam is a graduate of the College of William and Mary and a veteran of World War II. He joined the American Legion in 1952 and served as vice-commander of Post 113 before being elected its commander.

Lam thus becomes the second Virginia Beach man to serve as state commander of the American Legion. William P. Keenan was commander of Virginia several years ago.

Sandpiper Cast Member Gets Offer From TV

Terry Aiken, leading lady in the Sandpiper Playhouse production "Tennessee Williams' 'The Glass Menagerie'", has had an offer to play the leading role in a major television show. She will fly to Hollywood next week to discuss the possibility with the producers.

For the present Mrs. Aiken prefers not to divulge the name of the show or the network. She says, however, that the story deals with the war and is set in the Far East.

In "Tennessee of the August Moon" she plays the part of Lotus Blossom, a goddess. Her authentic costumes and mannerisms are an outstanding feature of the premiere season of the new Virginia Beach tent theatre. The play, originally scheduled for July only, has been held over and is running in repertory with the three new productions, "Period of Adjustment" by Tennessee Williams, "The Caine Mutiny Court-Martial" and "The Little Hut".

Mrs. Aiken, a native of Philadelphia, appeared in fifteen motion pictures in her homeland, starting in 1940. She is married to a television producer, and she says she is very excited about it. How could I feel otherwise? I have tried movies and the stage, and now I should like very much to do this television show."

Water Safety To Be Taught At Olympia Club

Under the auspices of the Virginia Beach-YWCA Center swimming and water safety skills will be taught for five days at the Olympia Athletic and Health Club on Lakeside Road.

Classes will be conducted by Red Cross instructors for boys and girls, ages 6 through 12, beginning Monday, August 13. Classes will be given at 9, 10, and 11:30 a.m. for a five-day period, during which youngsters may qualify for their Red Cross certificates indicating their achieved status as Beginner, Intermediate or Swimmer. Registration for these courses will be held Thursday, August 24, from 3 to 5 p.m. at the United Communities Fund Building, 19th and Pacific.

$3.50 will be charged which includes the $1.50 junior YWCA year's membership fee.

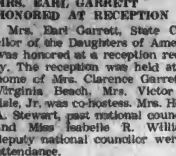

Only registered children will be eligible to take these classes. For further information call Mrs. T. Cornell Berry, Mrs. G. R. Blosser or Mrs. M. W. Cole.

Virginia Travel Council Meeting Set For Beach

Virginia Beach has been selected by the Virginia Travel Council for its Autumn Travel Conference, to be held September 10, 11 and 12. The conference, to which all Council members are invited, will open with sessions of the Virginia Attractions Section, in the Alan B. Shepard Convention Center, at 3 p.m. Sunday, September 10. James N. Hunter, general manager of The Natural Bridge of Virginia, is chairman of the Section. The primary theme of the meeting will be better interpretation of our historic heritage to our visitors.

The entire day of Monday, September 11, will be devoted to the Council's promotional program for 1962. Clyde Boyer, of Williamsburg, chairman of the Promotion Committee, will preside. Meetings will be held also on Monday of the legislative, advertising, executive, time and place, and budget committees and other groups.

The Board of Directors will meet on Tuesday, September 12. T. N. Graves, of Luray, president of the Council, will preside. Annual reports and the reports of all committees are submitted at these meetings, and the budget, program and policies for 1962 will be fixed at this time.

MRS. EARL GARRETT HONORED AT RECEPTION

Mrs. Earl Garrett, State Councilor of the Daughters of America, was honored at a reception recently. The reception was held at the home of Mrs. Clarence Garrett of Virginia Beach. Mrs. Victor Bell, Jr. was co-hostess. Mrs. Harry A. Stewart, past national councilor and Miss Beulah R. Williams, deputy national councilor were in attendance.

New Type Face Coming In Sun-News Next Week

Readers of the Virginia Beach Sun-News will find next week's edition taking on a new appearance, and one that should make this newspaper very easy to read.

The change is coming in the form of a complete new body type. To the layman this means that all stories and the general reading matter will be printed in a new, bold, easy-to-read type.

Technically, the new type face that arrived too late for this week's paper is a nine point type size. This compares to the seven point type you are now reading.

The new type is scheduled to appear in next week's paper. The old type has served well but progress demands that the Sun-News bring its readers the latest improvements in the newspaper production field. The new type is the latest developed by the Mergenthaler Linotype Company and the Sun-News is proud to be able to offer this new, readable type to its subscribers.

Watch for this revolutionary change in next week's edition of the Sun-News.

BEACH COUPLE BUYS WILLOW HILL ESTATE

Mr. and Mrs. John H. Trent of Virginia Beach have purchased the famous Willow Hill Plantation in Prince George County, according to a news release in the Richmond Times-Dispatch.

The 700-acre estate was sold for a reported $180,000. The seller was listed as Mrs. George C. Kirkmyer. The plantation was an original grant to Col. John Ward in the 17th century. The property was developed in 1940 by Mrs. William H. Cooke, who later married Quincy Cole.

According to the report of the sale, the Trents purchased the stock and equipment and much of the furniture. It is understood the Trents plan to continue to raise cattle at Willow Hill.

The Cavalier Yacht and Country Club is being purchased by members and is to be chartered under the name of the Cavalier Golf and Country Club, Inc.

The membership has elected a slate of officers to serve until Jan. 15, at which date the purchase should be consummated.

An all-out membership drive is starting this week. There must be at least 300 members by Dec. 1 in order to buy the property. A $1,000 down payment is required.

Walter L. Pool, membership chairman, said today that each member of his committee is to contact at least two persons to join the club and non-members are also being invited to join.

Officers elected recently to serve until Jan. 15, the date the purchase is to become effective are: Pinkney S. Cook, president; Charles Kimmick, vice president; George Miller, secretary, and E. H. Red Church, treasurer.

Members of the board of directors are Robert A. Adair, Club Service R. Brown, Edward T. Cullen III, Ashley Haver, Roy C. Ivey Jr., Paul A. Kottaries, Spencer L. Lott, J. Frank Malton, Dr. Edward Myers, Pool and W. Herbert Perry.

Scouts Fish From Pier

Fishing Rodeo Next Wednesday

The fourth annual fishing rodeo is scheduled to be held on the Williams Steel Fishing Pier here on August 23. It has been announced.

The annual fishing extravaganza is sponsored by the Princess Anne-Virginia Beach Activities Committee of the Boy Scouts of America, Tidewater Council.

Hours for the fishing rodeo, itself, are from 9:30 a.m. until sunset. Registration for the event will take place at the pier between 9 and 9:30 next Wednesday morning, the day of the rodeo.

It was announced that participating scouts must wear their uniforms. All scouts and their parents will be admitted on the pier free through the courtesy of Josh Vaughan, pier operator.

Congratulations to the rodeo are asked to bring their own fishing tackle. Bait and hand lines will be available at nominal fees.

The fishing rodeo is open to all district boy scouts and explorer scouts.

Five In Family Lose Tonsils

Five brothers and sisters ranging in age from 4 to 12 had their tonsils removed Monday in Virginia Beach Hospital.

All are under a hospital observation and should be able to go home in a day or so. They are Robert Wayne Wood, 4, David A. G. Williams, 6, Marcella S. and George Edwards Jr., 12. The parents are Mr. and Mrs. George E. Wood, who live on Va. 65 in Princess Anne.

The operations, performed by Dr. James Todd, started about 9 a.m. and were completed by noon. Dr. Walter L. Taylor is the family physician. The three operations were believed to have set a new family record at the hospital.

100 Years Ago This Week...in THE CIVIL WAR

(Events exactly 100 years ago this week in the Civil War—told in the language and style of today.)

COOPER

A. S. JOHNSTON

Rebel Brass Stewing Over Cooper's Clout

RICHMOND, Va.—Aug. 5.—Top Confederate Army brass is in a collective lizzy over appointment by President Jefferson Davis of his old friend, Samuel Cooper, as highest-ranking general in the military.

Cooper is adjutant and inspector general with the title of full general, outranking all other officers in seniority.

He is a Northerner by birth—his home is Hackensack, N.J.—but married a Virginia woman and for years has had numerous friends in the South.

He resigned from the Union army, in which he had served since graduation from West Point in 1815, and immediately volunteered for duty with the South. His appointment to the key adjutant's post by Davis was seen as a reflection of his service with the Federal army as adjutant general, a job he assumed in 1862.

AS RANKING general, Cooper—who has seen little actual warfare—is ahead of several combat-hardened general officers. He is followed in seniority by Generals Albert S. Johnston, Robert E. Lee, Joseph E. Johnston and Pierre G.T. Beauregard, all of whom were fighting men before the outbreak of the current hostilities.

It is within this quarter of outranked generals that the resentment over Cooper's exalted status is said to be sharpest.

Congress OKs Harsh Law Authorizing Confiscation

WASHINGTON, D.C.—Aug. 6.—Congress today passed an act authorizing seizure by the Union of all property used for "insurrectionary purposes" against the federal government.

The measure also voided ownership of any slave who, with his owner's consent, joins the Confederate armed forces or works for the South's war effort in any other capacity.

Under the controversial new law, all property confiscated would be the subject of condemnation proceedings in a U.S. District court.

PORTIONS of the legislation were considered retaliatory to the confiscation proviso adopted by the Confederate government last May 21. Under these laws, any funds owed to Northern firms or individuals—with a few exceptions in the border states—became payable to the Richmond government in exchange for 5 percent Confederate States bonds.

Debate on the subject brought forth red-hot oratory from proponents and opponents alike.

Rep. Thaddeus Stevens of Pennsylvania, most articulate of the so-called Radicals who pushed the confiscation measures, declared that if the South "must be laid waste, and made a desert, in order to save this union from destruction, so let it be."

"I would rather, sir, reduce them to a condition where their whole country is to be repopled by a band of freedmen than to see them perpetrate the destruction of this people through our agency," Stevens thundered on the House floor.

SBA Offering Information to Small Business Firms

Small firms interested in obtaining sales and bid information on surplus Government real and personal property can list their name and address on the property sales assistance register maintained by the Small Business Administration.

Clarence P. Moore, Regional Director of the Agency, announced today.

Mr. Moore emphasized the excellent opportunity for small business concerns to buy machine tools and production equipment within the next 10 months at Government sales to be conducted at the Naval Weapons Plant at Washington, D.C. and The Martin Company at Baltimore, Maryland.

Government surplus equipment and materials located at the Naval Weapons Plant, Washington, D.C., having an original cost to the Government of approximately $50,000,000 will be offered in a series of bid sales beginning the latter part of September and concluding prior to July 1, 1962. This property includes approximately 2700 items of stationary power-driven machine tools such as lathes, grinders, presses, etc.; approximately 870 items of production equipment including measuring, testing and handling equipment; approximately 1450 items of general purpose equipment and approximately 20,000 small and special tools. Request for invitations to bid on surplus machine tools and other equipment located at the Naval Weapons Plant, Washington, D.C., should be addressed to the Consolidated Surplus Sales Office, Senior Administrative Division, Fort Holabird, Baltimore 19, Md.

Approximately 360 units of production and plant maintenance equipment with an original cost to the Government of approximately $1,000,000 will be offered for sale during September and October. This equipment is located at The Martin Company Plant No. 2 near Baltimore, Md. and will be sold by the General Services Administration, Washington, D.C. Requests for invitations to bid should be addressed to the Surplus Sales Center, General Services Administration, 4511 Fibre Island Avenue, Brentwood, Md.

Government surplus property originally costing approximately $125,000,000 will be offered for sale at The Martin Company in a series of bid sales between August 15 and October 15, 1961. In addition to aircraft parts and components, these sales will include equipment such as: milling machines, screw machines, compression riveters, hydraulic presses, lathes of various types, drill presses, electronic test equipment, generator units, portable units, etc. Requests for invitations to bid should be addressed to Mr. N. K. Stone, Surplus Sales, The Martin Company, Baltimore, Maryland.

Small business concerns interested in obtaining information on these sales and other future sales offering specific items of Government surplus property may request the Agency's Regional Office at 900 North Lombardy Street, Richmond, Virginia to add their names and addresses to its property sales assistance register.

Firms listed on the register automatically receive information on Government surplus property, including machine tools, electronic equipment, woodworking and metalworking equipment, etc. Mr. Moore said. Approximately 2,100 small businesses in this region are already on SBA's Region IV register.

Last year, SBA assisted small firms in buying more than 30,000 separate items of personal property being offered for sale by the U. S. Government. Principal items of interest were woodworking and metalworking machinery, construction equipment, machine tools and electronic testing equipment.

"This widespread interest by small firms, particularly those engaged in production, reflects a desire on the part of small businesses to replace, upgrade and improve their productive efficiency and position," Mr. Moore explained. This program is enabling many small concerns to acquire machinery and equipment to increase and improve their manufacturing and processing operations that would otherwise be beyond their limited purchasing capacity.

Small business opportunities to participate in the sale of surplus Government-owned property have been substantially broadened through the SBA's joint procedures for cooperative sales assistance actions with Government disposal agencies.

Mr. Moore further pointed out that prior to being offered for sale as surplus, all Government property excess to the needs of one Agency, is screened for use within other Federal Agencies.

Convention Business Picking Up

In just a few short years Virginia Beach has quickly made itself felt in the convention field, and particularly is this so in the matter of attracting conventions of organizations throughout Virginia.

The fact that Virginia Beach is a full-fledged member of the convention seeking fraternity was quite evident in Roanoke last weekend and when the smoke on the convention floor had cleared the Virginia Department of the American Legion had voted to hold its 1962 annual meeting in Virginia Beach.

Convention business is still new to Virginia Beach and so to the many fine hotel and motel operators here. We are still going through an educational period in learning the whys and wherefores of convention business, but we are learning fast.

The magnificent Alan B. Shepard Convention Center here gives Virginia Beach a unique selling point but to attract conventions takes more than just having the facilities to care for the delegates. It takes the cooperation of everyone in the community to make a convention click.

Reports from Roanoke and the American Legion convention last week indicated keen rivalry between Virginia Beach and the City of Norfolk for the 1962 meeting. Our convention sales director, Mr. William B. Lillyman, was on hand and along with tremendous help from local Legionnaires the convention delegates voted overwhelmingly to hold the 1962 meeting in Virginia Beach.

In a few weeks thousands of Shriners will be here for their convention. And, there are more on the schedule. It looks like convention business here is picking up.

WHAT OTHERS ARE SAYING

Quips And Clips

Gathered by KERWIN HOOVER

It's funny, says columnist and assistant publisher Justin Hammond of the Corona (Calif.) Independent, but when you work on a newspaper everyone expects you to know a little more about a story than appears in the paper: "Very often people ask me for the inside dope, but we usually print everything we know about a story

... frequently I find myself in an embarrassing situation. Someone will ask me for the inside story on something I haven't even read and know nothing about. When I profess ignorance a dubious look creeps into their eyes and I know they think I really am holding back the juicy part of the story."

The Tyranny of Taxation

The House Ways and Means Committee has tentatively vetoed cancellation of a provision of several years standing which makes the first $50 of dividend income exempt from the individual income tax, and provides a four per cent tax credit on any remainder of such income. It also has approved a plan for a withholding tax of 16 2/3 per cent on dividends and interest payments.

Many authorities continue to doubt the wisdom of the withholding scheme. It would inevitably involve a great deal of expensive bookkeeping and record-keeping, and would work a hardship on large numbers of people in small income brackets. At least there seems to be majority agreement that the dividend exclusion and credit provisions should be retained—and there are cogent arguments in favor of them being increased.

The reason for this is that dividend income is the only form of income subject to double federal income taxation. Profits are first taxed at the 52 per cent corporation rate, and any remainder distributed to the owners is then taxed at the individual income tax rates, ranging from a bottom of 20 per cent to a high of 91 per cent. The existing law simply provides a modicum of relief from this manifestly unjust situation.

Supporters of cancellation of the credit have said that the law as it now stands is of principle benefit to wealthy stockholders. President Keith Funston of the New York Stock Exchange pulled the rug from under that argument in a recent statement. More than half of all shareholders have total income of less than $7,500, and at least 3 million small-income people are relieved of all double taxation by the $50 exclusion. The many, not just the few, get the benefits. Regardless of numbers, double taxation of income represents a principle that can have but one end — injustice and oppression.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Editor, Sun-News:

Within the next 30 days, the schools will be open again and the highways filled with school buses. A bulk of the buses going to and from Lankhorn Park School pass the shopping center, on Lankhorn Road and Orkney Drive. Within the last ten days, there have been four auto accidents on the highway at the shopping center. Despite numerous pleas for either a stop light or a speed limit, the state authorities have seen fit to do nothing. Their reply has been continuously been that repeated traffic surveys indicate no light is warranted. I have never been quite clear why they never bother the speed limit to a lower one.

I would therefore like to take this means of asking all that pass or use this shopping center to drive with caution, especially when the buses from Lankhorn Park are on the road. Let us hope that the procedure utilized by the state will see a stop light before someone is killed.

Thomas A. Moore, Area Director in Norfolk for Tidewater, Division of War Veterans' Claims, a service officer for many years assisting veterans and their dependents, associated with the Virginia State Government (not Veterans Administration); which agency represents the claimant, operating under the Directorship of Harry F. Carper Jr., of Roanoke, located in the V. A. Building at 10th Street and Pacific Avenue (the "Dodge") on:

Thursday, August 24, 1961. Moore's house is located at 2401 1/2th Street, Norfolk, Virginia 23504. Moore can be contacted at his office, 305 McKevitt Building, 203 East City Hall Avenue, in Norfolk, telephone MAdison 2-4871. Under the Norfolk office is a branch in the Northampton County Courthouse in Elizabeth, which also services Accomack County Mondays and Thursdays.

Series E Savings Bonds issued in May 1961, held for 30 years, will return $150.04 on a $50 original investment. This cash value ranges upward until, on bonds issued in May 1940, it amounts to $204.00. Reason: interest yields have been raised twice and a second ten-year automatic extension granted. Those old bonds like other "antiques" grow more valuable with age.

Skating Teams Featured at Seaside Park

The Skating Rink, one of America's outstanding professional roller skating teams, will be the free attraction this week at Seaside Park, Virginia Beach. Starting August 14, they will be on view twice daily, at 2:30 and 10:00 p.m. on the outdoor stage, through Sunday.

There are now four teams playing for dancing in the Seaside Park ballroom. The newest attraction is the Uptown, led by a variety band, whose accomplishments include rock 'n' roll and western music. They play every Sunday night until the end of the season, and will also play for the Sunday afternoon jam sessions, beginning at 3:00 o'clock.

Other orchestra bands on a rotating basis on week nights and Saturdays are the Spectra of RPI, the Saints and the Harmonizers. Wild Bill Cody and his sharp-shooting, knife-throwing, whip-cracking family return to another week of free performances twice daily beginning August 21, shows go on at 2:30 and 10:00 p.m. Admission to Seaside Park is always free.

YOUR CONGRESSMAN REPORTS

By Thomas N. Downing

The recent country-wide reorganization of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers will have a significant effect on all water resources development projects in the First Congressional District.

In the future, all water resources development projects — construction of new dams, known as river and harbor navigation and flood control projects — will come under the supervision of the Norfolk District Engineer's Office.

Prior to the reorganization, engineering projects on the western shore of the Chesapeake Bay were handled by the District Engineer in the District of Columbia office; many projects on Virginia's Eastern Shore were processed by the District Engineer in the Baltimore Office.

Changes in the Norfolk District's boundaries mean that the District now includes the entire Eastern Shore area south of the Virginia- Maryland state line, with the sole exception of the Potomac River. On the Chesapeake Bay, the Norfolk District now includes all waterways of Smith Point, at the mouth of the Potomac River, with the exception that the Little Wicomico River will be under the Baltimore District's jurisdiction.

Here is the current status of water resources development projects in the First Congressional District:

The following seven active navigation projects, all or part of which are in the First District, have funds for Operation and Maintenance included in the Public Works Appropriations Bill now being considered by the Congress:

1. Atlantic Intracoastal Waterway North Landing River, Prince George's County, Dredging $ 98,000

2. Broad Creek, Middlesex County, Dredging 19,800

3. Broad Creek, Middlesex County, Dredging 47,000

4. James River, Dredging 519,000

5. Rappahannock River, Dredging 59,400

6. Waterway on the Coast of Va. (Eastern Shore), Dredging 68,000

7. Whidbey Island, Middlesex County, Dredging 14,850

Funds are also expected to be provided in the Appropriations Bill for the following functions which are important from the standpoint of preserving our waters for navigation:

1. Condition Surveys of 35 First District projects to gather information for planning future maintenance requirements $ 43,000

2. General Regulatory Functions, including issuance of permits for dredging, piers, bridges and other structures 70,000

3. Hampton Roads Drift Removal 44,000

4. Prevention of Obstructive and Injurious Deposits (Ank Pollution Law) 154,000

Dredging is either underway or will be started in the near future on the following additional five projects with funds that were made available during the last fiscal year:

1. Chincoteague Bay, Greenbackville, Accomack County $ 21,000

2. Deep Creek, Newport News City $ 120,500

3. Newport News Creek, Newport News City 68,000

4. General Regulatory Functions, Northampton County 35,000

5. Starlings Creek, Accomack County 30,000

The Corps of Engineers' Division Engineer has recommended that emergency funds be made available to correct the Metomkin Bay situation, which resulted from a breach through of the earlier beach in 1959. If funds are allotted, the section of the Inland Waterway on the Coast that extends through Metomkin Bay will be relocated farther west, away from the beach, to minimize future shoaling.

Work will continue this fiscal year on deepening to 42 feet the deep draft channels in Chesapeake Bay which are part of the Harbor and Channels project.

The tentative Engineer program provides for application of about $1,000,000 in the First District through June 30, 1962. It provides for completion of the new 800-foot wide channel through Rappahannock Sound and the deepening of the York Spit Channel. This will permit deep draft shipping to take advantage of the full depth on an interim basis.

Additional funds for completion of the ultimate works, the short 1,000-foot wide channel at Cape Henry was completed in the fall of 1959 with funds available last year.

With regard to the general investigation program, the following reports are now complete or under review:

1. Assateague Channel and Strickland Drain, Accomack County

2. Chincoteague Bay, Accomack County

3. James River

4. Lynnhaven Inlet and Connecting Waters, Princess Anne County

Funds are included in the Appropriations Bill this year to complete the following studies:

1. Hampton Creek, Hampton City $ 5,000

2. Widening Newport News

40-foot Channel and Deep Draft Anchorage off Newport News and Norfolk

(The Engineers did not include a survey of Queen Creek in Mathews County in its appropriations request. However, I have asked the Chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, Charles Cannon, to add $12,000 to the requested amount so that the Queen Creek survey can be accomplished during fiscal 1962.)

Resolution calling for review of previous reports on the feasibility of conducting dredging operations on Queen Creek was passed by the House Public Works Committee on February 24, 1960.

Funds in the amount of $43,000 are also included for study of the Inland Waterways, from Chesapeake Bay to Delaware Bay. This study involves rerouting of certain sections of the Inland Waterway on the Atlantic Coast. It provides for a continuous navigable Inland Waterway from Delaware Bay to Chesapeake Bay. An alternate route from Chincoteague Bay to Chesapeake Bay via the Potomac River is also to be studied. They have been combined with three other studies being made under Public Law 685, 84th Congress, adopted 11 July 1956, which authorizes the Chief of Engineers to approve and conduct control projects without further Congressional approval. Federal participation in each project is limited to $400,000.

The 80th Congress included in the River and Harbor Act of 1960, approved 14 July 1960, a new provision of particular interest in connection with our First District waterways. Section 107 of the Act gives the Chief of Engineers authority to approve small navigation projects, without further Congressional approval, but limits Federal participation in each project to a maximum of $200,000. Under this authority, the Chief of Engineers has approved a dredging project in Aberdeen Creek, Gloucester County, at a cost of $172,000 and has also authorized a study of the Inland Waterway at Salters Creek in Newport News City and Cape Charles Harbor in the Town of Cape Charles. This Appropriations Bill, which includes an item of $500,000 for Section 107 projects and studies for the entire country, if the Appropriations Bill is passed, it may be allotted to the Norfolk District Engineer for accomplishment of the work.

Another new and important program is covered in Section 206 of the Flood Control Act of 1960, approved 14 July 1960, which authorizes the Chief of Engineers, upon request of a State or responsible local governmental agency, to compile and disseminate information on floods for a specific locality, including a classification of areas at that locality that are subject to flooding, and to provide engineering advice to local interests in their use in planning to ameliorate the flood hazard. Family and Children Service Part of UCF

(To better serve the Virginia Beach - Princess Anne County area a new Community Service office was recently opened. This is the third article in a series describing services now available through Catholic Family & Children's Service.)

Catholic Family & Children's Service offers a professional service which seeks to give a helping hand to those in trouble. It is essentially a child care and counseling agency. Chief among its services are placing children for adoption, in foster homes or in institutions, counseling parents & children or husbands who wives who are having difficulties in living together, helping to plan for the care of the unmarried mother, the care of the handicapped child and the aging grandmother. It is not a financial assistance agency.

The agency considers adoption of children serious business. It requires time, understanding and hard work to select the right home for each adoptable child. For every child placed in a good home, the agency is interviewed. These homes do not need to be wealthy nor do the adoptive parents need to be college graduates. Most of the adoptive families are people who meet every day — young happily married Catholics couples with religious beliefs and a good health and with a real love for children.

Helping the unmarried mother involves more than just physical care given during labor. Most of the women need a refuge and medical attention. Our goal is also to build up the mother's confidence in herself and others and to help her to a happier, more secure person.

Families these days are beset with many problems. Perhaps one of the most serious is the father's going away on a Naval cruise and there are no relatives available to care for the children. Catholic Family & Children's Service can help out by placing Catholic children in a foster home or institution. This is a voluntary service and is requested by one of the parents.

It is a well understood rule in this country that children do not belong to the State but to their parents and that only if parents are cruel or neglectful may children be removed from their care. Such children are cared for by the child protective division of the Princess Anne County Department of Public Welfare and not by an agency such as Catholic Family & Children's Service. When a parent wishes help knowing that he or she is unable to care for a child and that the child's happiness will be served by placement, only then does Catholic Family & Children's Service step in and it is with full consent of at least one of the child's parents.

Any child is happiest and develops best in a home of his own. A good adoptive home gives a child as much happiness and security as if he had been born in it but a foster home or institution can help a child best if it is a temporary refuge. Catholic Family & Children's Service places a child in a foster home or institution for a limited period and makes every effort to return him to his family as soon as possible.

The main purpose of the agency is to work toward wholesome family life and to prevent family breakdown. In 1960 a total of 46 families were accepted for marriage counseling and 137 families for parent-child counseling. When a child's problems include difficulties in school, the agency's psychologist may administer psychological examinations to help in evaluating the youngster's difficulties. The psychologist and experienced caseworkers also use psychotherapy with the help of a trained counselor when family difficulties are of such nature that this kind of help is indicated. However for these specialized services, there is a waiting list since our staff is small.

In its 28 years of service in the Norfolk, South Norfolk, Norfolk

County and Princess Anne County areas, Catholic Family & Children's Service has placed over 1,000 children for adoption, over 300 children in foster homes and institutions and given services to over 10,000 families. During this time agency offices have been located at 203 East City Hall Avenue, the 6th floor of the McKevitt Building. Though the agency has extended its services to the people of Princess Anne County for the years of its existence, an agency representative will be located at Virginia Beach one day a week, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., to make service more convenient and available. Phone calls will continue to be serviced at the central office — MA 5-2550.

The Community Service office of the United Communities Fund is located at 21-10th Street. Appointments may be arranged by telephoning GA 8-102. The fourth story in this series will be on the Jewish Family Service.

BRIDGE BUILDERS AND FERRY THEY'LL REPLACE—Two members of the construction crew of the Chesapeake Bay Bridge and Tunnel are shown at work as one of the seven Little Creek Ferry ships comes into Norfolk for a landing. Passengers on the ferries, which operate between Norfolk and the Eastern Shore of Virginia on U. S. 13, now have an opportunity to see the world's longest bridge-tunnel being built. The 17.5-mile crossing will consist of 2 mile-long tunnels, low level trestles and bridges. It will cost $200,000,000 and is scheduled for completion in the fall of 1963. The project is being built as a joint venture by Tidewater Construction Corporation, Merritt-Chapman & Scott Corporation, Raymond International Inc., Peter Kiewit Sons' Co., and the American Bridge Division of United States Steel Corporation.

OVER THE FENCE

By NELLIE P. MATTHEWS

The American League All-Stars won the series with the National League All-Stars by taking the first two games, 10-9 and 4-2. These were great games providing an excellent climax to a fine season. Congratulations to all our players for games well played!

No matter how you view it, both games came up Fred Jordan! In the first game, it was the bottom of the 8th, score tied, two out, Mayo on 1st, and Fred singled through short to bring Bill speeding all the way home for the winning run. Of course, Fred's homer over right field in the 4th didn't hurt matters any. And then he gave a repeat performance with a two-run homer in the second game to make the difference in the score. Even "your favorite reporter" to a favorite ballplayer, all of the best in the future, Fred!

Both games were wonderful to watch, but that first one was rough on the spectators as well as the players. The first remembered 3-hour Little League game, tied up in the 5th, each pitch meant the ball game. The spectators gasping on those three-two counts and the on-deck men wondering if he'd be the third out. More like that and we'll be forced into bush league billywinkles! Cuth Dobbs sure carried his share of the load, and Mike Waller caught one of the finest games Monday night we've ever seen. Chip McQuibben and Billy Newton (corner) up to pitch some real fine ball, striking out 8 and walking only two. To all you All-Stars, a well done!

The National Leaguers might well call this series the "Rice Bowl." Brothers Gary and Willie put on quite a show. Gary with his head-up play at first base and Willie with his good bat. In the 6th, Willie topped his two singles and a double with a pretty home run over the center field fence.

New Furniture Design Makes Better Living

Man generally lives at the bottom of a box—four walls and ceiling—surrounded at floor level by his furniture. If we could undo the box, flatten it out, what a wonderful lot of open floor space we'd have!

In a way, the Danish Wall System designed by the famous designer Paul Caxovius does just that. This suspension furniture substitutes wall for floor, frees our floors and makes our rooms more spacious and far more comfortable. There are sixteen million possible combinations of this Danish System's units, which assures you that the basic arrangements you require can be combined with ease. You may start with a few book shelves, then later acquire a cabinet, desk, half unit or bar. Whatever your needs, present or future, these components will mesh and mount in a wealth of handsome, functional arrangements.

The system also features elegant floor-to-ceiling poles for mid-room suspension units as well as free-standing cabinet and shelf units. Whatever the combination, it can be rearranged or moved at will, assuring you of endless decorating possibilities.

The Danish Wall System is one of some sixty manufacturers from the Scandinavian Countries that are represented by Gustave and Harvey's Interiors International at 304-31st Street, Virginia Beach, Virginia.

Interiors International has been here since the first of May, and the community is getting acquainted with the beautiful representative group of furniture and drapery materials on display in their shop. The world's finest designers have contributed to this collection, and it is a pleasure to discover that the furniture is not expensive.

Linda Lee Croft Is Married To Russell A. Rhodes

The marriage of Miss Linda Lee Croft and Russell Allen Rhodes took place, Sunday, August 13, at 4:00 P.M. at the Bayside Presbyterian Church, Rev. Bland Dobbins, pastor of Aragona Village Presbyterian Church performed the ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl C. Croft, 121 Lakeview Road, Bayside. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Emory L. Knox of Ashland, Kentucky.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore silk organza over bridal tulle, fashioned with a bouquie bodice, chandilly lace scaled neckline, short sleeves with matching mits. The bouquie skirt featured lace motifs accented with sequins and seeded pearls and extended into a full chapel length train. The veil was finger-length of English illusion arranged from a lace crown high-top in a bouquie cascade.

Miss Candy Carnes of Bayside was maid of honor. She wore a pale pink with pleated cummerbund. The bridesmaids wore four rows of ruffles in center back accented with a rose of the same material. The dress was silk organza.

The bridesmaids were Miss McLean Craddock of London Bridge, Va., Miss Sandra Baxter of Norfolk and Mrs. W. F. Thornton, Jr., sister of the groom of Norfolk. They wore light blue dresses made in the same style as the maid of honor, with deep blue cummerbund and ruffles.

Little Diane Croft, Junior bridesmaid wore pale pink over tulle. All of the bridesmaids and Junior bridesmaid wore miniature crowns with drop pearls at the crown peak and netting.

Geary Croft, brother of the bride was ring bearer.

Emory L. Knox, stepfather of the groom was best man. The ushers were W. F. Thornton, Jr., brother-in-law of the groom, James Supton of Cherry Point, N.C., Carl Battles, uncle of groom of Richmond, California and John Ferguson.

The bridegroom's mother wore beige lace dress with pink accessories and a pink corsage of rose buds and carnations.

Following the double ring ceremony a reception was held in the social hall of the church.

Later the couple left for a wedding trip through the northwest as part of the state. The bride's going away costume was a two-piece print suit with black accessories and corsage of white roses touched with seeded pearls. They will reside in New Bern, N.C. where the groom is stationed in the Marine Corps.

The out-of-town guests were: Mr. and Mrs. Harry Steele and daughters Kathy and Patty of Springfield, Ohio; Mrs. B. L. Stearns of Washington, W. Va.; Mr. and Mrs. Carl Battles and daughter, Lori Lee of Richmond, California and Mr. and Mrs. Emory Knox of Ashland, Ky.

The princess paneled skirt, shadowed in lace, was draped into a bustle effect in back and extended into a chapel train. Her fingertip veil of imported illusion was arranged from a crown of petite pearls and crystal beads. She carried a semi-circular bouquet of white roses accented with English ivy.

Mrs. Leonard C. Barnes was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Ronald K. McLean of Washington and Miss Mabel Patricia Skipper.

Lt. George A. Vanhook of Norfolk was best man. Groomsmen were Lt. (j.g.) David D. Ebo Jr., Lt. (j.g.) William Judson Rogers Jr., Lt. (j.g.) Anthony Joseph Del Nix, Lt. (j.g.) Robert Earl Wall, Mrs. Olen Edwin Broth Jr., all of Virginia Beach; and Lt. (j.g.) Frederick Earl Smith Jr. of Richmond.

A reception was held at the home of the bride. After a wedding trip to the mountains of northern Virginia the couple will live at Virginia Beach.

Ruth R. Atwood Is Married To Ronald J. Halko

Chapel of the Immaculate Conception, Naval Air Station, was the setting for the marriage Saturday of Miss Ruth Roberta Atwood and Ronald Joseph Halko of Webster, Mass.

The Rev. Paul Lloyd performed the ceremony at noon for the daughter of Kenneth Clark Atwood and the late Mrs. Camille Hyland Atwood and the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Halko.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of organza with satin applique. She carried daisies.

Miss Camille Ann Atwood was maid of honor for her sister, Misses Lina Rogers Atwood and Cornelia Collier Atwood were their sister's bridesmaids.

The bridal attendants were gowned in green organza and carried yellow daisy bouquets.

Mr. Halko selected Joseph Russell Thomas of Williams-Beach, Pa. as best man. Groomsmen were David Philip Orsland of Sioux Rapids, Iowa, and Terry Spencer March of Edina, Minn.

A lawn reception at Virginia Beach followed the wedding. After a wedding trip to Bermuda, the couple will reside at 210-51st St., Virginia Beach.

Adams-Clarke Vows Spoken

The marriage of Miss Lynn Harrison Adams and Morton Hutchinson Clark took place Saturday at 6 o'clock in All Saints Episcopal Church. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. Charles E. Berger.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Francis Adams of Washington, D.C. The bridegroom is the son of Rear Adm. David Henderson Clark, USN, (ret.) and Mrs. Clark of Virginia Beach.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of pearly de sole applique with lace re-embroidered with pearls. The full skirt formed a chapel train. Her illusion veil was arranged from a lace cap embroidered with pearls. She carried a nosegay of white roses and lilacs of the valley.

Mrs. Russell M. King, Jr. of Charlottesville, Va., was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Jeremy Hardy, Miss Julie Cabaniss McMaster and Mrs. John Rasmussen, all of Washington; Miss Marie Louise Pickering of New York City; Miss Susan Willoughby Applepie of Cincinnati, Ohio; Mrs. David Clark IV and Miss Helen Gardner Chapman, both of Norfolk.

David Clark IV of Norfolk was his brother's best man. Groomsmen were Robert Lee Stevens of Irvington, Va.; Lt. Cmdr. John E. Rasmussen of Washington, Sidney Buford Scott and Evans Booker Brumfield, both of Richmond; John Hume Taylor, Jr. of Norfolk; Richard Ayers Reid of Towson, Md.; Harry Hudson Ware III of New York City, and Jefferson Davis Hamilton of Lancaster, S.C.

A reception was given at the Columbia Country Club in Chevy Chase, later the couple left for a wedding trip to Jamaica. They will live in Norfolk.

Virginia's Art

By Leslie Cheek, Jr.
Director, Virginia Museum of Fine Arts

The nationally known director of the State Museum describes the great masterpieces of art in the Museum's collections—the cultural heritage of all Virginians. This is one of a series of articles which will appear each week during the Virginia Museum's 25th Birthday year.

The Boy In Roman Clothing

"WILLIAM BYRD I AS A BOY"

One of the Renaissance concepts of England was to dress the figures in portraits in historic Roman costume. This was done not only in official, memorial sculpture but in portraits of living personages as well, as witness the series of canvases of the beauties of the court of Charles II, still hanging at Hampton Court, in their guise of Roman goddesses.

When the elder William Byrd was to be painted while he was still a child, his parents chose this same sort of costume for him. The painter added the romantic background of the wild landscape, the spear at his feet and the alert, intelligent dog. How appropriate and propitious these attributes of the young boy were became increasingly clear as William Byrd's career began to unfold. His successful life in Virginia brought the honors of the hunt, of war, of the wilderness and of the role of commander very much into his daily routine.

Perhaps the landscape in the painting was an allusion to his uncle's domains in Virginia, for William Byrd came to Virginia as a young man to help his uncle, Thomas Stree, administer his lands which were on both sides of the James at the present site of Richmond. Inheriting this vast tract at his uncle's death, Byrd soon became one of the Colony's largest exporters.

His export business in fur and his post as Commander of the Henrico County Militia with its duty of protecting the upper James from Indian raids brought him an enormous experience of Indian ways and customs. His knowledge of Indian affairs was so great that in 1685 he was sent to Albany with a party of Virginia Indians to negotiate a treaty with the Iroquois.

No more appropriate painting than this "Portrait of William Byrd (1653-1704) as a Child," given to the Virginia Museum of Fine Arts by Mrs. Edmund Randolph
Cocke, could be housed in Richmond. His civilizing influence, his energy, his qualities of leadership, his liking for the wilderness and his military powers, all so hopefully set down on the canvas by the anonymous painter, were gloriously realized during Byrd's majority in the Richmond area, and his death still reaps benefits from this extraordinary man.

CREMATION

Symbol of Enlightenment
and a Challenge to Thoughtful People.

This is the fifth in a series of seven articles on
Cremation

FINANCES AND CREMATION
In addition to its religious and cultural values, cremation offers still another definite advantage.
The nature of cremation is such that families of every circumstance can avail themselves of its benefits. Although modest arrangements are available, some of the most beautiful memorials in America, belong to families who have selected cremation. These families of every walk of life may have a beautiful, dignified memorial with the attendant advantages.
In most cases, of enduring care during the centuries to come.

Tombstones, with the remains placed in beautifully designed urns which hold within columbarium niches, affords the opportunity of memorializing several members of a family within one niche through selection of appropriate urns. Col-umbarium niches and urns are available in a wide range of prices, and often provide memorialization of two or more at no greater cost than the total amount of one complete cemetery burial or mausoleum entombment. When the family desires the memorial in an outdoor setting, a modest urn and lovely urn garden plot with an appropriate marker complete an attractive memorial.

The funeral service is identical for all forms of interment. Caskets, too, are essentially the same, being designed either by induced heat of cremation or by eventual consumption caused by natural forces in the ground.

THE FUTURE OF CREMATION
You may have questions which you would like to ask. As your local crematorium, we shall feel it a privilege to give you frank, honest answers without obligation of any kind. A personal visit may help you to understand better many of the things discussed in these articles, and we invite you to visit or consult us at your convenience.

Top 30 Star Revue Set For Center Here Sunday

A great array of Top Recording Stars will perform at the big WGH Top 30 Star Revue, August 19th through the 21st in Tidewater. Some of the biggest names on the popularity sheets will be singing their big hits to audiences in Norfolk, Virginia Beach and Newport News. Headlining the Star Revue is Bobby Lewis famous for his recording "Tossin' an' Turnin'". Del Shannon whose recording of "Runaway" was number one across the country several months ago—currently his big record is "Hugs Off to Larry". A big favorite with the younger set is "Bobby Vee" . . . his records include "Devil or Angel", "Since I Met You Baby", "Rubber Ball" and "Everyday". A star that adds a lot to life to any show is "Don" . . . he will fulfill requests to sing his current hit "Somebody Nobody Wants". His past hits were "Lonely Teenager", "Teenager in Love", "I Wonder Why", "Don't Pity Me", "Where or When".

Other stars in the big Star Revue Lineup are the "Mar-Keys", Barry Daryl Perry, Eddie Lee, Eddie Rambeau, Brothers Kennedy, James McClellan, JoJo and the Whalen Frets.

Fabulous Furys; Concertones. Several of these stars have previous commitments for Monday but will perform at the Saturday and Sunday shows. Performances will be in all parts of Tidewater to enable everyone to see this Big Show.

Saturday, August 19th . . . two shows, 3 & 8 p.m. in the Norfolk Municipal Auditorium; Sunday, August 20th . . . two shows at the Alan B. Shepard Convention Center, Virginia Beach; Monday, August 21st, two shows at the Newport News High School Auditorium at 7 & 9 p.m. . . . there will be Monday matinee at 3 p.m. at Huntington High School. WGH personalities will be on hand to MC the Top 30 Revue. Keith James, WGH air personality has worked around the clock to help bring this outstanding talent to the Tidewater area. It is hoped that this will be the start of a series of talent shows. WGH Radio believes that the Tidewater area is entitled to see the big name stars just as much as the big cities.

LOCAL MAN SERVING AT MARINE STATION

Serving with Patrol Squadron 26, operating out of the Naval Air Station, Brunswick, Maine, is Edson L. Henish, chief aviation electronics technician, USN, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred J. Henish of 313 Lynn rd., Virginia Beach.

The squadron which flies Lockheed "Nephele" aircraft, is deployed to the North Atlantic and Mediterranean, fulfilling vital anti-submarine missions to help maintain the Free World's control of the seas.

Measuring Oxygen Tension

Dr. Sami I. Said, Assistant Professor of Medicine at the Medical College of Virginia, uses a needle electrode to measure oxygen tension in the blood. He is shown here inserting it into a syringe containing a sample of arterial blood, but the electrode may also be inserted directly into the patient's artery. The electrode Dr. Said holds in his hand is connected to an amplifier and recorder—for both an immediate reading and a permanent record. This new instrument, which his research helped to test, is useful in studying certain types of heart and lung disease.

Excess Fat Definite Factor In Many Heart Patients

"He's fat and scant of breath." Hamlet's mother cried as her son fumbled his footwork in the last act of Shakespeare's play. She is expressing what everybody knows: fat people often have trouble breathing. In fact, the fatter they are, the harder it's likely to become.

But why? This is a question medical scientists would like to be able to answer—both to find ways of treating the breathing difficulties of the obese (and others) more effectively, and to learn more about the processes through which breathing is controlled.

One of the many scientists at work on this problem is Dr. Sami I. Said, Assistant Professor of Medicine at the Medical College of Virginia, who came to the United States from Egypt in 1953. In research conducted at his Department of Medicine, headed by Dr. W. T. Thompson, Jr., and aided by grants from the American and Peninsula Heart Associations and Richmond Area Heart Association, he has developed a theory to explain the breathing difficulties of the very obese. Here is how he described it in an interview:

"The chest wall is much heavier in the obese than in people of normal weight. This means that chest movement—breathing—demands greater effort. A man who weighs 400 pounds, Dr. Said said, may find it hard to catch his breath if he does nothing more strenuous than turn over in bed.

But although this extra effort is needed, it is not made. Dr. Said believes that the very obese "protect" themselves against it through some mechanism of the nervous system. Thus the characteristic breathing of the obese is shallow and irregular.

The shallow, irregular breathing results in uneven distribution of blood and air into capillaries and air sacs (alveoli) of the lungs. Some of these air spaces may collapse and cease to function. All this leads to incomplete oxygenation of blood circulating through the lungs. Inadequate amounts of oxygen in the blood mean that the vital organs of the body (heart, brain, etc.) do not receive all the oxygen they need to function properly; heart failure is one of the complications. In late stages, the carbon dioxide level in the blood rises as the oxygen continues to fall.

A few deep breaths made with conscious effort, will bring a fat person's blood oxygen up to normal levels, Dr. Said explained, and correct his respiratory difficulties, but a relapse usually comes soon.

At the recent meeting of the American College of Chest Physicians, Dr. Said reported on a new treatment for the breathing difficulties of the obese, a drug known as valium, which stimulates respiration. It has just been released for general use by physicians. Dr. Said believes it will prove useful in other conditions where breathing is depressed, such as barbiturate poisoning and breathing difficulties following anesthesia.

The most effective treatment for the very fat person is, of course, weight reduction. Most of Dr. Said's obese patients, he said, become excessively fat simply because they ate too much. "If the patients follow a very strict diet, they improve," he stated. "After they reduce these abnormalities in their breathing disappear. The trouble is that they often regain lost weight."

Local Scouts Enjoying Camp Philmont, N.M.

Boy Scouts of the Norfolk Tidewater Council on August 22 will exchange the rugged outdoor life of Philmont Boy Scout Ranch at Cimarron, New Mexico, for the comfort of an air conditioned chartered bus.

On that date the last of more than 150 boys from the Norfolk and Newport News area will return from 12-day expeditions at Philmont, a natural camping area of 127,000 acres located on the slopes of the Sangre de Cristo range of the Rockies. During their stay the Scouts do their own cooking, pack their own equipment, ride horses and burros, and generally test their camping and shooting skills for 10 days in the open.

An estimated 1,000 Boy Scouts have been transported this summer by Trailways buses, according to bus system officials in Norfolk and Washington, D.C. The exodus for Cimarron has been an annual one for Trailways companies on the east coast since 1950, when Boy Scout leaders decided chartered buses were more satisfactory than either the rail or air transportation attempted prior to that time. Literally thousands of boys have been transported in the ensuing decade.

Virginia Trailways, for example this summer alone carried more than 500 Scouts on a shuttle bus starting in June, according to Carl E. Harmon, Washington, D.C. Division manager.

"Transportation arrangements are closely coordinated with local Boy Scout Council officials," L. C. Hainsbrough, Virginia Division manager for Carolina Trailways explains. "The boys get 23 days of real adventure, including the trip out and back."

Overnight accommodations are provided at military bases, but Mr. Hainsbrough points out that this was not the case 10 years ago. At that time, the Scouts slept in YMCA quarters and gymnasiums, or "camped out" in parks and stadiums.

Veteran Trailways bus operators assigned to the tours become unofficial leaders along with Boy Scouts representatives and are asked back to be drivers, year after year. For example, Carolina Trailways operator who have each gone on the trip between eight and nine times include A. T. Stewart, R. J. Jackson, J. W. Spray, A. W. Moore, Cecil Bray, Robert Johnson and R. Stevenson.

Boy Scout groups transported by Trailways this year included, in addition to boys from Norfolk and Washington areas, groups from Winchester, Va.; Chesapeake City, Md.; Salisbury, Md.; Portsmouth, Va.; Suffolk, Va.; Virginia Beach, Va.; Elizabeth City, N.C., and Camden, N.C.

FOR AND ABOUT TEENAGERS

How Does One Make Conversation?

By C. D. Smith

THE WEEK'S LETTER: "I am 13 years old, and I like a boy who is 16. He used to like me, but I wasn't aware of this until it was too late. He is a real nice boy but we can't seem to get a conversation going. I am almost positive that he likes me again. I like him very much. How could we start a conversation and get to know each other better?"

OUR REPLY: When two people like one another, there is no reason in the world for them to have difficulty in making conversation. When they do have difficulty, it is usually because they are afraid of saying the wrong thing and consequently they say nothing. Anyone who can talk can make conversation. It's that simple. Conversation is nothing but talk. No one is born a master of the art of making conversation. It is an acquired skill. One must learn, just as one learns to swim, to ride a bicycle, to roller skate, to dance — to do anything.

Some teenagers are willing to take swimming lessons, to accept aid in learning to ride a bike or dance. They realize that there is a "training" period during which they won't be expected to perform like an expert. But, where the art of making conversation is concerned, they seem to think it terrible if they are not a natural-born conversationalist.

A conversation is simply two individual words, thoughts and ideas; it need not be complicated. One word ("hello") can start a conversation; one subject or one topic cannot keep it going.

Let us say that the problem at hand is the matter of making conversation with Bill. Now, we know that Bill was elected president of the boys' club to which he belongs; we know that he likes baseball; that he collects stamps.

Now, on the other hand, we don't know whether or not Bill belongs to any clubs, if he likes baseball, if he collects stamps or spiders. Where is the conversational approach here? Simply in finding out what Bill does belong to. What hobbies he pursues, the sports which he likes the best.

If you have a teenage problem you want to discuss, or are interested in, send your letter to FOR AND ABOUT TEENAGERS, NATIONAL WEEKLY NEWSPAPER SERVICE, FRANKFORT, KY.

Retired Persons Chapter Is Formed by Virginia Group

Mr. W. H. Bentley of 25 Glenbrook Cr., Richmond, announces the formation of the Richmond, Virginia Chapter of the non-profit American Association of Retired Persons. Residents of Strasburg, Warren County and Roanoke previously formed the first three AARP chapters in Virginia. Richmond thus becomes our 69th local chapter in the country.

All AARP Chapter members are 55 years old or over. Dr. Ethel Percy Andrus, President of the 300,000-member organization stated that the purpose of the local chapters is "to stimulate local action to help older people, to educate members on how the national organization can help them, and to encourage older people to actively participate in bettering their local communities."

At the present time, AARP offers members a mail-order drug service to lower costs of prescriptions, drugs and vitamins, a series of low cost group tours of Europe, and group hospital-surgical-medical insurance. Members also receive MODERN MATURITY Magazine and the AARP News Bulletin.

Mr. Bentley is temporary President of the new Chapter. Other temporary officers are: Vice President, Dr. Joseph Alexander, 5201 Cuthbert Avenue; Treasurer, Mrs. C. A. Jones, 2421 East Sherbourne Road; and Secretary, Mrs. Ruby B. Brooke, 2702 Kensington. All reside in Richmond, Va.

Past Winners In Darlington '500' Race Event

Buck Baker, Charlotte, N.C., three-wheel winner of the 1960 Southern 500, will attempt to become the second three-time winner of the nation's oldest stock car racing classic Labor Day.

The 42-year-old grandfather, who first won the historic classic in 1953, was one of four entrants filing today for the $90,000 event. The others, Buddy Baker, Charlotte; Tiny Lund, Crook, S.C., and Jack Smith, Atlanta, Ga., are all Southern 500 veterans.

Sixteen have now posted entries for the holiday event.

Baker, winner last year in a borrowed Pontiac "belonging to Smith," will team this year with his son, Buddy, in Chryslers. Lund, who will be indoctrinated into the Pure - Darlington Record Club this year, will drive a Pontiac while Smith's car, also a Pontiac, will have a driver named later.

In winning the closest of all eleven Southern 500s, Baker nursed his borrowed car near the front all day and with a one-step lead blew a tire one lap from the finish. The former national champion scraped the remaining distance on three wheels to complete the distance in 24 seconds in front of Rex White.

Five makes of cars are represented among the first sixteen entries. Pontiac leads with six followed by four for Chevrolet. Ford has three, Chrysler two and Mercury one. All are 1961 models.

Barbara Smith Festival Queen

Miss Barbara Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. B. Smith Jr., of Chesapeake Beach, was crowned "Miss Festival Queen of '1961" Saturday evening, August 12, at the Chesapeake Beach Community Center. Mr. Frank W. Cox, Sup't. of Schools for Princess Anne and Virginia Beach, crowned the Queen for the Woman's Club of Chesapeake Beach.

Miss Linda Radford of Thoroughton was first runner-up in the Queen Contest and Miss Christine Boyer was second.

The 11th Summer Festival netted the Woman's Club approximately $1100.00. The proceeds will be used for Club charities, which include the Princess Anne Memorial Hospital, the Bayville Scholarship Fund and the Chesapeake Beach Community Center, among others.

Mrs. Richard J. Veilmes, Chairman of the Annual Festival Art Exhibit announces the following award winners:

Oil Still Life, 1st—Mrs. Mason Gamage, Princess Anne Junior Woman's Club; 2nd—Mrs. Rita Veilmes, 3rd—Mrs. Virginia Whitefield, Kempsville Woman's Club. Oil Landscapes—1st, Mrs. Mary Ambrose; 2nd, Mrs. Susan Quackenbush; 3rd, Mrs. Marion Giles; 2nd, Mrs. Marion Giles; 3rd, Mrs. Mary Ambrose.

Honorable Mention in Pastels went to Mrs. Burton Smith. Best Abstract—Mrs. Marion Giles.

Judges for the Exhibition were Miss Margaret Johnson, President of Tidewater Artists and Mrs. Virginia Adams, Vice President of Tidewater Artists.

Attention! All weight-watchers! Summertime can be a dangerous time if you're trying to avoid extra pounds. All those cool, summer drinks you quaff so thirstily can add up to unnecessary calories - of course, it's important to drink plenty of liquids to replace the 2 1/2 to 4 quarts of water which the body loses on a hot day. But it's equally important to watch what you drink and choose beverages which are non-fattening, non-filling and thirst quenching all at the same time.

The Tea Council of the U.S.A. gives us some real helpful factors so I thought you would like to have them.

Fortunately, Iced Tea meets all the requirements, it's non-fattening, non-filling and is thirst-quenching. A refreshing 6-ounce glass adds only 3 calories to a daily total. Even with sugar and lemon added, a glass of Iced Tea contains only 20 calories.

Have Iced Tea on hand all day long, all summer long so the family can help themselves whenever they want a relaxing lift. Make a pitcherful in the morning using this simple method: Bring 1 quart of water to a full rolling boil in a saucepan. Remove from the heat and immediately add 1/4 cup of loose tea or 15 tea bags. Brew for 5 minutes. Then stir and strain into a pitcher holding as additional quart of cold water. The tea will keep its flavor and freshness for several hours at room temperature. When ready to serve, pour over ice cubes and add sugar and lemon to taste.

Speaking of weight - watching, here's a dessert to add to your file of low-calorie recipes. It's a moistened Lemon Foam, light and lovely and low in calories. . . about 68 per serving. Strawberries for garnish add about 3 calories. So for less than a hundred calories you can enjoy a luscious dessert and a glass of summer's best refresher - Iced Tea.

LEMON FOAM
(Makes 8 servings)
2 envelopes dietetic lemon-flavored gelatin
2 cups hot water
2 teaspoons lemon juice
1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
Dash of salt
2 egg whites
Whole strawberries
Dissolve dietetic gelatin in hot water. Add lemon juice, lemon rind and salt. Chill until slightly thickened. Place bowl in ice and water, and beat gelatin with egg beater until mixture is fluffy and thick. Beat egg whites until soft peaks will form and fold into whipped gelatin. Pour into large mold. Chill until firm. Serve with whole strawberries.

IT'S ICED TEA TIME again! As a matter of fact, it's always time for Iced Tea. . . but in the summer this American-borne beverage really comes into its own. Last year we quaffed over 11 billion tall, tinkling glasses.

Light, Lovely And Low-Calorie

Here's a low-calorie combination for summertime enjoyment: Lemon Foam dessert which contains about 68 calories per serving and refreshing glasses of Iced Tea (3 calories per glass).

CALORIE-COUNTERS date on Iced Tea. A six-ounce glass tastes this with the 45 to 120 calories contained in most popular summer beverages. (See calories-counter below.)

EVEN WITH SUGAR (18 calories a teaspoon) and a squirt of lemon (2 calories per segment), Iced Tea contains less than 1/4 of the calories in carbonated bottled drinks.

DRINK ALL YOU WANT . . . Iced Tea won't fill you up, dull the appetite, and cause you to cut down on essential foods important to good health.

THIRST-QUENCHER par excellence because it leaves no sweet cloying aftertaste, Iced Tea really satisfies. It perks you up without letting you down later.

EASY TO MAKE in quantity, it's smart to keep a pitcherful of Iced Tea on hand all day long. Iced Tea will retain its freshness and flavor for several hours if the pitcher is kept covered, out of the refrigerator.

AMBER IS THE COLOR of perfect Iced Tea. If the tea should "cloud," you can restore its jewel-like clarity with a little boiling water.

TYPICALLY AMERICAN, Iced Tea was "invented" during a heat wave at the St. Louis World's Fair in 1904. A tea merchant hit upon the idea of adding ice to his hot tea samples. . . and a new summer beverage was born.

IT'S IMPORTANT to drink plenty of liquids during the summer months when the body may lose from 2 1/2 to 4 quarts of water a day. Make up this loss with water, carbonated water with a dash of lemon, and Iced Tea - non-filling, non-fattening, thirst-quenching.

MAKE ICED TEA with loose tea or tea bags, using 50 per cent more tea to allow for melting ice. Or use the convenient instant, soluble teas now on the market.

ECONOMICAL Iced TEA costs about 2 cents a glass. . . including sugar and lemon. Serve it whenever you want to balance the budget, conserve calories, satisfy thirst.

TO MAKE 2 QTS. OF ICED TEA Bring 1 quart of freshly drawn cold water to a full rolling boil in a saucepan. Remove from the heat. Immediately add 1/4 cup loose tea or 15 tea bags. Brew for 5 minutes.

Strain and strain into a pitcher holding 1 quart of cold water. Pour over ice cubes in tall glasses. Add sugar and lemon to taste.

RECENTLY a local family of four people, the husband, wife, and two pre-school children, found they spent $22.90 for food during one week. This, of course, omitted such grocery store purchases as paper goods, soap, light bulbs, toothpaste and other non-food items. It did include an estimated retail cost

Meats Today Far Superior to So-Called 'Good Old Days'

The good old days! Every one often you run across an advertisement showing food prices of by-gone days. Or, you hear older members of the family sighing about the good old days. Or, you see or hear accounts of fine eating by our not-to-far-removed ancestors. It all makes you wish for the good old days, doesn't it?

Yet, were they really as good as all that? A favorite expression by one of my friends, is, "The best cure for the good old days is a good memory."

Look at the good old days in meat buying. What were they really like? Were they as good as we seem to remember?

The cuts you buy haven't changed much. You still buy chuck roast, round steaks, and ground beef. You still buy ham, pork chops, and pork roast. Leg of lamb, veal chops, and veal roasts are still in meat cases. The proportions of these cuts haven't changed much. You still get two hams for each hog. The number of steaks from a steer is the same as it ever was.

Yet, in many ways, the cuts are different. Quality now is quite different. Twenty years ago, chuck roasts, round steaks, and ground beef came from animals that graded out as U. S. Utility, U. S. Commercial, or U. S. Standard. Today most of the beef in retail stores is U. S. Good or U. S. Choice. Pork also shows quality differences. Today's pork has more lean and less fat than did pork in the good old days.

It's much easier to do your meat shopping today. Self-service meat cases let you see the meat as closely as you did before, they let you make a choice faster, and they let a little meat to stand in line while buying meat today.

Today's meat buying features the same cuts of meat but better quality and less work. How about the cost? Well, for years, we've spent one-fourth of our food dollar for meat. We did in the 'good old days.' We do today. We spend more dollars for meat now, but the proportion of our dollars, either of food dollars or of total income, going for meat, hasn't changed much. And, we're eating more pounds of meat.

Better quality and less shopping effort mark today's food shopping in other foods as well as in meat. The future promises even better things to come. Rather than thinking of the "good old days," we might better be discussing the "wonderful days to come."

How does your food bill stack up? Do you feel you're mighty thrifty or do you think it's running too high? The United States Department of Agriculture "Estimated Cost of One Week's Food," gives you a way to compare your costs with others.

These estimates are made for three levels, low - cost, moderate-cost, and liberal. They also are made for the United States as a whole and for four regions, the South, the Northeast, and the North Central, and the West. Let's look at the southern estimate more closely.

Recently a local family of four people, the husband, wife, and two pre-school children, found they spent $22.90 for food during one week. This, of course, omitted such grocery store purchases as paper goods, soap, light bulbs, toothpaste and other non-food items. It did include an estimated retail cost

GRAIN PAYMENTS Now Being Made

Final payments under the 1961 Feed Grain Program are now being made to the County of Princess Anne, Virginia, by the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee.

He said that most farmers accepted advance payments approximately to half of the total payment several weeks ago when they signed their contracts to participate in the program. At that time there were 280 farms in Princess Anne County enrolled in the program to divert 5,000 acres of corn and 10 acres of grain sorghum.

Mr. Dudley said that payments in the form of sight drafts have been made to the County of Princess Anne farmers in the amount of $93,000. When final payments are made there will be a total of around $200,000 in farmers' hands as a result of diverting 20% or more of their corn and grain sorghum acreage from the average harvest produced in 1959 and 1960.

Final payments are made as soon as it has been determined that a farm is in full compliance with the diversion agreement.

Total payments under the program in Virginia will amount to approximately $4,000,000.

CRIPPLED CHILDREN ENJOYING VACATION HERE; ENDS SUNDAY

A group of crippled children from West Virginia are now visiting Virginia Beach for the 13th consecutive year. The project originated with the Rotary Club of Huntington, W. Va., which club has sponsored the visit jointly with the Virginia Beach Rotary Club. The West Virginia club sends the children by train to Newport News, and the Virginia Beach club takes over at that point, for the week of entertainment and frolic. The Virginia Beach trek is known to the children as CAMP LIMP-A-LITTLE, for a majority of the children have been afflicted with polio.

R. L. "Buddy" Riggs is Committee Chairman for the Virginia Beach Rotary Club in charge of entertaining, housing, feeding and caring for the children during their stay. Riggs reports there are 49 children and 14 adults in the group this year, staying at the Dunes Motel, as they have for the past few years.

The annual trip to Virginia Beach was for 12 years under the direction of Don Jenkins, who died of a heart attack July 27th, as he visited in the home of one of the children, making plans for this year's trip to Virginia Beach. Don Jenkins was formerly West Virginia State Director for the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis and a member of the Huntington Rotary Club. He was dearly loved by the children, and his absence is keenly felt by all those in the group this year; however, another Rotarian from the Huntington club, Calvin Welsh, is in charge of the group.

Chairman Riggs said the Rotarians have planned a full week of activities for the children. Local businessmen are joining with the Rotarians in going "all out" to enable these children to enjoy themselves and have a wonderful visit. Among those cooperating is Grumpy's who was host to the children for lunch; Frontier

Supervisors Appointed To School Posts

PRINCESS ANNE—Four veterans in the Princess Anne County school system have been moved to "supervisor" positions in recent months.

The latest personnel shift came this week when the county School Board appointed Mrs. E. W. Hairston as supervisor for Negro elementary schools. She succeeds Mrs. Betty F. Williams, who left the post for health reasons.

Mrs. Hairston has been principal of Seatack School since 1951 and is a veteran of 30 years' service in the county system.

The school board elevated Miss Mary Johnson to the post of principal at Seatack, where she has taught the last 10 of her 25 years in the system.

At previous meetings, the School Board named Mrs. Mildred E. Wilson and Philip Meekins as elementary supervisors and Frank E. Taylor as secondary supervisor.

Continuing as supervisors this year will be Mr. G. Harrell, elementary, and R. H. Owen, secondary.

Mrs. Wilson was moved up from principal at King's Grant to replace Walter Carroll, who became principal of new Frank W. Cox High.

Meekins, former principal of Thalia, was named supervisor after Miss Louise Luxford was appointed full time director of instructional personnel.

Naval Officers To Hear "Caine Mutiny" Trial

Captain Queeg will get another chance.

Five ranking naval officers will lead an air of authenticity to the "Caine Mutiny Court Martial" as members of the jury in tonight's performance of the play at the Sandpiper Playhouse in Virginia Beach.

Wade Williams, the play's director, said for a number of years, military and civilian drama lovers have questioned the actuality of the final verdict handed down by the navy board in Herman Wouk's Pulitzer Prize winning novel from which the play is adapted.

"At the height of a typhoon at sea," Williams relates, "Commander Philip Queeg, in command of the mine sweeper, 'Caine,' is relieved by his executive officer, Lt. Stephen Maryk, who cites Navy regulations 184, 185 and 186 as the basis for his action."

"In effect," continues Williams, "these regulations make it possible for an executive officer to take over in an highly unusual emergency when the captain of a ship has become mentally deranged or physically disabled."

"These articles further state," he went on, "that no such relief can be made without authority from a higher command except in instances where it is impossible to obtain such authority. Such was the case in the novel when Maryk relieved Queeg, to quote from the play, 'had gone absolutely and hopelessly looney.'"

Williams explained that his reason for questioning the final decision from the court in the

WATER CONTROL BOARD ORDER ON SEWER TAP-INS IS NOT CLEAR

A new policy of the State Water Control Board, relating to future sewer tap-ins in the City of Virginia Beach and some other 40 odd localities in Virginia has caught city officials here by surprise.

The City was notified last week by the State Board that it should make no further sewer tap-ins without direct permission of the Board. The City had thought it was doing a good job of water pollution.

According to the Associated Press a total of 45 localities and three coal companies received notices to implement a board regulation aimed at localities which have done little or nothing to solve water pollution problems.

At Monday's city council meeting Mayor Frank A. Dusch is quoted as saying the city should have been notified before releasing the story to the press. Councilman Edward T. Caton said "it is an unusual way for a sister agency to act."

City Public Works Director A. Worth Pettit said the city has been fighting water pollution since before he came here 21 years ago. He noted the city's sewage disposal plant was built in 1938 and enlarged about 1951. He said it is in good condition.

An unconfirmed report out of Richmond indicated that all cities and localities receiving the notices received them because they had not filed pollution statement and sewage scheduled.

W. Russell Hatchett, when apprised of this, said he had never heard of such schedules and that if that was all that was needed the city can take care of it.

Some officials felt that the notice was aimed at localities dumping raw sewage into streams and tidal waters. They said they know of no sewage outfalls in Virginia Beach.

NEW TYPE

What you are reading here is the new body type face that was recently purchased by the Sun-News and is to be used each week in the straight matter, or general news columns of the Sun-News.

Technically, this new type is known as 9 point Corona, as compared to the old 7 point Paragon appearing in the column to the right of this.

OLD TYPE

What you are reading now is set in type that has been used by the Sun-News for the past several years. In technical language it is known as 7 pt. type.

This type has been discarded by the Sun-News starting with this issue. It has served well but it has reached the retirement age, both in years and in its comparatively small size.

So, we say farewell to this type. A new day has arrived.

NEW POLICE COURT ROOM FIRST STEP

A request for a new police courtroom has Virginia Beach city officials here eyeing space needs for all municipal departments.

Justice Roy Smith and Assistant Justice L. Travis Branch of Police Court said in a letter to City Council on Monday that the present courtroom is not adaptable to needs. They asked for "earliest consideration" of a new courtroom.

All councilmen had to do to get the judges' point was look around them. They meet in the small, whitewashed building on 19th Street which was converted from city garage to courtroom and council chamber in 1952.

Vice Mayor John R. McComb said the building is "entirely too small." He said there should be a comprehensive survey of building needs, and a new courtroom probably will be the first considered.

Mayor Frank A. Dusch, who counted the 60 seats in the courtroom where more than 100 persons appear for some court sessions, said McComb had a good idea. He asked City Manager W. Russell Hatchett to confer with Councilman E. T. Caton III, a lawyer, and the city attorney to determine specific court needs and get some cost estimates.

Hatchett said later he will look into all space needs. He had said at the council meeting that there are long-range plans for a new city hall and courtroom, but it takes money.

Some councilmen indicated after the meeting that they think it is the time for the city to schedule a building program, depending on the availability of funds.

Hatchett said he had considered the possibility of enlarging the police courtroom, but a reliable contractor told him it would be "very foolish."

Fennell Wins

AREA GOLFERS IN ONE, TWO FINISH IN NORFOLK MEET

Virginia Beach area golfers finished one, two in the Norfolk City Championship last Sunday when Earl Fennell, 30-year-old member of the Aero Pines Club, and young 16-year-old Charles McDowell, a Princess Anne Country Club member, finished in that order.

Fennell, a metalsmith stationed at the Oceana Air Station, topped the title with a 72-hole score of 295. He posted a final round 72 over the Stumpy Lake course. McDowell shot a 73 to finish second with a 296 score.

The new champion put together rounds of 76-72-75-72 for his winning total. Fennell is a native of Tulsa, Oklahoma, and is a former Oklahoma State champion.

McDowell, the whiz kid from Virginia Beach and the United States Junior champion, played consistently throughout the tournament and naturally won the junior division, but almost wrapped up the overall title.

The final day's play at Stumpy Lake was played in showery weather that made the going slow. Lee Brown, a member of the Norfolk police force, came in third. He plays out of the Ocean View golf course.

The Virginia amateur champion, Bobby Loy of the Kempsville Meadows club, finished ninth. He blew to a disastrous 81 in the third round played at the Sewell's Point club.

A surprise of the tournament was the showing of Bobby Burdon of London Bridge, an employee of the post office there. He fired 82-70-77-74 to finish in a tie for fourth. His 70 at the Cavalier in the second round was the lowest score of the tournament.

8,000 SHRINERS TO CONVENE HERE FOR MEETING NEXT MONTH

Approximately 8,000 persons are expected to attend the Mid-Atlantic Shrine Association Convention in Virginia Beach Sept. 7-10.

The turnout, with representatives from Virginia, Maryland, District of Columbia, Delaware, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, West Virginia and New York, may be an all-time high for Virginia Beach.

The high point of the convention will be a parade Sept. 9 at 2:30 p.m., featuring bands, drum corps, legions of honor, drill teams, "wrecking crews," clowns, chanters and mounted patrols.

Marshall M. Porter, imperial potentate of North America, is expected to be on hand as is Frank S. Mullen, president of the Mid-Atlantic Shrine Association; Harry L. Stinson, potentate of Khedive Temple, and Herman S. Nowitzky, general director of the convention.

Registration will be held Sept. 7. The following day at 10 a.m. a business meeting will be held at the Cavalier. Units of the Army, Navy and Air Force will put on an air show over the city. Competitive drills will be Friday at 7:30 p.m. in the Virginia Beach High School stadium. The president's banquet will be held Saturday at 7:30 p.m.

DEY P-TA

The John B. Dey Parent-Teacher Association will sell used school books at the school on Great Neck Road, London Bridge, on August 30, 31, and September 1st from 9:30 to 12:30.

Water Bills To Continue Each Month

The Virginia Beach City Council Monday read a letter from the Virginia Beach Real Estate Board requesting that the city go back to billing water consumers on a monthly basis.

Last April the city instituted a new system of billing water consumers every two months. The letter said monthly billing made it possible to learn quicker if there were any water leaks.

Council members said they had heard of no other complaints on the subject. Council failed to take any action so that water bills will continue to go out every two months.

Hurlburt-Kane Vows Exchanged

NORFOLK—The marriage of Mrs. William Richard Kane of Virginia Beach and Capt. Edward G. Hurlburt, MC, USN, took place Saturday at 4:30 p.m. in the Chapel in the Woods, Naval Air Station. The ceremony was performed by Capt. Samuel E. Bennett, (Chc), USN. The bride's attendants were Mrs. Paul Buie and Miss Christina Mary Kane, daughter of the bride.

Henry Cole Hurlburt of Chapel Hill, N.C., brother of the bridegroom, was best man. A reception was given at the Air Station quarters of Capt. J. Thatcher, (MC), USN, and Mrs. Thatcher. After a wedding trip the couple will live at Virginia Beach. In October they will move into Norfolk Naval Station quarters, when Capt. Hurlburt assumes command of the Naval Dispensary.

Recent Bride

Mrs. Garland Scott Taylor

Lois Fleming Collins Is Bride of Garland S. Taylor

The marriage of Miss Lois Fleming Collins to Garland Scott Taylor of Virginia Beach, was solemnized Saturday afternoon, August 5, at 4:00 o'clock in the Nashville Methodist Church.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William George Collins of this city. Mr. Taylor is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Garland Luther Taylor of Virginia Beach.

The Rev. Thomas Asa Collins of Rocky Mount assisted by the Reverend Meadie A. Taylor, III of Chase City, Va., officiated to perform the double ring ceremony.

The vows were spoken before the Chancel, decorated with palms and cathedral tapers burning in brass pyramid candelabra. The brass altar vases were filled with sun burst arrangements of frilly chrysanthemums, gladioli and daisy pompons. The music was presented by Dr. William G. Sasser of Rocky Mount, organist.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a formal gown of Italian silk fashioned with portrait neckline and long sleeves with points over the hands. Lace medallions, embroidered with sequins and pearls, were scattered over the bouffant skirt which was designed with back panel of lace ruffles extending into a chapel train. Her long veil was of French net and antique Rose-point lace and she carried a cascade of gardenias and ivy showered with satin ribbons.

Mrs. John William Collins of Fayetteville, sister-in-law of the bride, was matron of honor. Other attendants were Mrs. Milton Alvin Moore, Jr., of Taboro, cousin of the bridegroom; and Miss Matilda Strickland of Nashville, cousin of the bride. They wore bouffant skirted, street length, champagne satin dresses with matching petite pillbox hats. Their flowers were arm bouquets of bronze pompons and stylized emerald foliage.

Garland Luther Taylor was his son's best man. Ushers were John William Collins of Fayetteville and George Hunter Collins of Nashville, brothers of the bride; Charles Jerould Carpenter of Virginia Beach, and Dr. Matthew Thomas Wood of Chapel Hill.

The bride's mother wore an antique gold satin dress with matching accessories. She wore a corsage of white orchids. The mother of the bridegroom's dress was a café au lait silk chiffon sheath with an overskirt of white lace with matching accessories. She also wore a corsage of white orchids.

Later in the evening, Mr. and Mrs. Taylor left for a bridal trip to Sea Island, Ga. For travel the bride wore a gold costume suit of raw silk with a moss green velvet hat. Her corsage of gardenias was lifted from her bridal bouquet. After September 1st, they will be at 406-49th St., Virginia Beach.

Out-of-town guests from Virginia Beach were Mr. and Mrs. Halcy Webster Brown, Mr. & Mrs. Edwin A. Coyner, Miss Vernicia Wagner, Miss Margaret Foster Norflee, Miss Ruth Newell, Mrs. Charles Jerould Carpenter, Mr. and Mrs. Everett Hurl Irby, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Burks Withers, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Warfield Leeke, Mr. and Mrs. Howard E. Gill, Jr., and Lt. and Mrs. Alvise Pecori Giraldo and Dr. Hugh Crawford.

Phyllis Nieting Becomes Bride of
Kenneth C. Gimbert
Miss Phyllis Jeannette Nieting of Perry, Iowa, became the bride of Lt. (j.g.) Kenneth C. Gimbert of Virginia Beach on Sunday, August 6, in Saint John's Lutheran Church in Island Lake, Illinois.

The marriage ceremony was performed by the bride's father, the Rev. Otto Nieting, and the bride's brother, the Rev. Edmund Nieting. The bride was given in marriage by another brother, the Rev. Lorenz Nieting.

A reception was held in the church parlors following the ceremony. The couple went to Canada on their honeymoon and to Virginia Beach. They will make their permanent residence in Laurel, Maryland.

Among the out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Orian Gimbert, grandparents of the groom, and Miss Margaret C. Gimbert of Lynnhaven.

Mattern-York
Vows Exchanged
In Salem, Va.
SALEM — Miss Betty Louise Mattern became the bride of James Wesley York Jr. of Raleigh, N.C., on Saturday at 8:30 o'clock at First Methodist Church. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. C. Ambrose Turner, assisted by Dr. Wilmer Blankenbaker.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Guilford Lee Mattern. She is a granddaughter of Mrs. George E. McCloud of Baylake Pines, Bayside. The bridegroom is a son of Mrs. Mary Poyner York and James Wesley York, both of Raleigh.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of ivory peau de soie with a deep spoke of point de calais lace sprinkled with pearls. The deep inverted pleats, paneled with matching lace, fell into a court train. Her bouffant veil of French illusion was attached to a miniature pill box of matching point de calais lace. She carried a lace covered prayer book topped with an orchid, fleur de moir and stephanotis.

Miss Virginia Lee Mattern was her sister's maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Misses Lucy Johnston Russell, Martha Claire Tarter, and Elizabeth Gordon Davis, all of Roanoke; Miss Mary Poyner York of Raleigh, sister of the bridegroom; Miss Harriet Ellen Jackson of Cartersville, Ga.; Miss Sarah Jane Bruce of Greensboro, N.C.; Miss Ruth Grantham Whitely of Murfreesboro, N.C.; and Miss Julie Joyce Thomas.

George Smides York of Raleigh was best man for his brother. Groomsmen were John Henry Isenhour Jr. of Salisbury, N.C.; James Thornwell Spence III of Greensboro, N.C.; Grady Thurman Ferrell, Richard Haywood Mason Jr., William Marshall Dunlap, George Heyward Dunlap Jr., and James Bristol House, all of Raleigh.

A reception was held at the Hidden Valley Country Club. After a wedding trip to Sea Island, Ga., the couple will live at 5014 Tanglewood Dr. Raleigh.

Mr. George T. Murrench,
National Executive Survey,
219 Flatiron Building,
Norfolk, Virginia

Dear George:
I wish to thank you and the National Executive Survey for the outstanding work which led to the procurement of the fine job I now have. The personal interest in my case and the hard work done by you and your staff is greatly appreciated by me and my wife.

I have received many compliments on the outstanding appearance of my resume and I now realize just how important a first class resume is when it is the first impression that the company has of an individual as a potential employee. My Personal Manager told me that this was what brought me into contact with your firm. In other words, the resume was my key to the many interviews I had.

George, please tell me to use my name as a reference in the future. I will be more than happy to aid you in your first week in any way I can.

Thank you again and I will keep you posted on my progress.

Sincerely Yours,

EDITORIALLY SPEAKING

A Board Order That Puzzles City Officials

An unfair directive is the only way we can describe the recent order of the State Water Control Board which has placed Virginia Beach, along with several other areas in Virginia, in a position that would indicate to the general public that the city has not handled its water pollution in a proper manner.

Those of us here know that nothing could be further from the truth. In fact, the City of Virginia Beach and its officials charged with matters of this kind have jealously guarded its fine reputation in this field through the years.

In 1938 Virginia Beach constructed a sewage disposal plant, a first among towns in Virginia, and in 1951 the plant was enlarged. The City has always prided itself in this plant and its operation. Officials from other localities have, from time to time, visited here to view this operation. In other words it has been a model.

As one member of the city council pointed out this week the manner in which the citation was publicized "seems strange for a state agency." Apparently no one connected with the city was aware of the Board's action until it appeared in the press. Virginia Beach and its officials have, in the past, constantly fought water pollution and the city has been a leader in this field. City Manager W. Russell Hatchett and Public Works Director A. Worth Petty have both been cited for their good works in this area of sanitation.

It is inconceivable that the State Board would, in the height of the summer season here, release an order reflecting discredit on this community in view of the outstanding record it has established in the area of water pollution and sewage disposal. It is particularly difficult to understand the fact that the city was not notified prior to the matter being made public, or at the same time it was made public.

At this point the reason for the order applying to Virginia Beach is not clear. As far as is known to officials all sewage passes through the sewage disposal plant here and there are no open sewage outfalls in the city.

Maybe, in time, the exact meaning of the unexpected order will be clarified. Officials here are puzzled as to why Virginia Beach was included. We are, too.

WHAT OTHERS ARE SAYING

A Different Kind of Advertising

Advertisements prepared by Mobil Oil Company won a George Washington Honor Medal from the Freedoms Foundation at Valley Forge. The ads in question weren't designed to sell a product. They are part of a community relations program being conducted by the company's refineries, and appeared originally in local newspapers.

One, for instance, showed pictures of the mayor and councilmen of Augusta, Kansas, described the progress and the salaried officials who apply time and talent to city government. Another, which appeared just before election day, showed two refinery employees, one a Republican and the other a Democrat, shaking hands.

The Freedoms Foundation chose these advertisements for high honors on the grounds that they helped to "bring about a better understanding of the American Way of Life." That understanding is vital to every business and industry, as well as to every individual. The whole future of this country depends upon it. It would be good indeed if more and more businesses would devote a part of their advertising dollars to fostering industry-community relations and the preservation of our freedoms.

A Bear In The Air

Soviet and American delegations are meeting to discuss a commercial air treaty between the two countries. Two airlines are involved—Pan American World Airways and Aeroflot, the Soviet state airline.

Both of these enterprises fly modern aircraft—and that's where any similarity ends. Pan American, which pioneered international air service and more recently inaugurated jet service under our flag, is a free enterprise corporation, owned by 40,000 stockholders, which must pay its own way and try to make some kind of a profit. Aeroflot is a department of the Soviet government, and a part of the Red Air Force. It is not concerned with operating costs, much less profit. Whatever funds are needed to keep it going are doled out by the Soviet government.

Atom No Excuse For Socialism

Throughout this country the investor-owned electric utility industry is proving that there is no need for the proposed government program of producing electricity from nuclear energy, a program which would cost the taxpayers billions.

Take, as one example, New York State.

Last December the seven major investor-owned electric utilities serving the state jointly announced two new steps designed to speed the availability of atomic energy as a commercial source of power. Step one was authorization of a multimillion dollar research and development program along two very promising avenues of atomic power reactor improvement. Step two was formation of a nonprofit corporation to implement the program.

The program is now moving steadily ahead. Its aim is to establish a sound basis for the design of a full-scale atomic plant that will operate reliably at high temperature, thereby achieving high efficiency in converting heat into electricity.

Elsewhere other utilities and groups of utilities are deeply involved in comparable work. Some atomic plants are in operation, some are under construction, some are in the design stage. And constant, intensive research is being carried on in search of the answers to difficult questions.

The problems of nuclear power generation vary somewhat from place to place. Economically, it is presently most feasible where the costs of generating electricity from convention fuels is relatively high. But every effort is being made to bring costs down, and notable progress has been chalked up. Most important the taxpayer electric industry is demonstrating its ability to maintain leadership in supplying the nation's power. Nuclear energy should provide no entering wedge for those who advocate a socialized, tax-supported power industry.

'TWIXT LOVE AND DUTY

SOD HOUSE SURVEY
Box 686
Petersburg, Virginia

Editor, Sun-News:

Dear Sir:

I am currently engaged in research on SOD HOUSES and DUGOUTS, the unique dwellings once very common during the pioneer homestead days on the treeless prairies of the vast Great Plains area of the United States and Canada. In my study, I hope to determine the number of former frontier and pioneer homestead dwellers who are still living in various parts of the country and also to gather data concerning the location and construction of the early pioneer buildings.

There are no doubt many people living in the Old Dominion who could furnish me with some information. I am interested in having your section of Virginia, represented in the findings of my research and should like very much to hear from any SUN-NEWS readers who have lived, attended or taught school, etc., in a SOD HOUSE, DUGOUT or LOG CABIN anywhere and also anyone who can give some information on this subject. This will aid me in obtaining the data I need for my survey to be a success.

As you can readily see, this project is quite an extensive undertaking and any help your publication can give me in contacting the proper people will be most appreciated. Perhaps this letter published in an early edition of the SUN-NEWS will reach those people with information who will be willing to reply directly to me. Thank you for your kind considerations and your prompt action on this matter.

Sincerely yours,
Ronald E. Thiel

Deaths

JAMES VERNON CAFFEY
James Vernon Caffrey, U. S. Coast Guard, retired, 66, husband of Mrs. Bertie Richardson Caffrey of 2300 Mediterranean Ave., Virginia Beach, died in a Norfolk hospital Friday at 11 p.m., after a short illness.

He was a native of Beaufort, N.C., and had been a resident of Virginia Beach since 1943. He was a son of the late James S. Caffrey and Mrs. Margaret Harrell Caffrey.

He retired from the U. S. Coast Guard in 1948.

Mr. Caffrey was a member of A.F. & A.M. No. 109, Beaufort and the Retired Officers Assn. In addition to his wife he is survived by four sons, James V. Caffrey of Frankfurt, Germany, George M. Caffrey of Gaithersburg, Md., David Stewart Caffrey of Elizabeth City, N.C., and Thomas H. Caffrey of Richmond; one daughter, Mrs. S. W. Morse of Virginia Beach; four sisters, Mrs. C. K. Howe of Beaufort, Miss Fannie Caffrey of Washington, D.C., Mrs. George E. Taylor Jr. of Severna Park, Md. and Mrs. John Dill of Beaufort and 13 grandchildren.

A funeral service was held Monday at 2 p.m. Burial was in Rosewood Memorial Park.

lighted with it. There was a full house, and the rest of the audience seemed to enjoy it as much as we did.

She was asked if she had seen any of the other shows being done at Sandpiper Playhouse this season. "Oh, yes," she said. "We saw 'The Caine Mutiny Court Martial' last week. We had house guests from Pennsylvania and took them with us. We all thought the performances were fine. And we saw 'Marriage-Go-Round' in July. We were charmed with that, too."

Mrs. Kellam volunteered other comments. "Usually my husband has to be dragged to the theater, even in New York," she said. "But it's been no trouble to get him to see these shows. He's enjoyed them as much as I have."

Asked for her opinion of the new theater in the round in general, Mrs. Kellam said that it has surpassed her expectations in every way. "And," she added, "everyone I've talked to has the same comment to make."

She said that she and Mr. Kellam will be out of town for a week but hope to see the remaining shows when they return.

'Caine Mutiny'

novel was that Maryk was charged under the specification that he willfully, without proper authority and without justifiable cause, relieved Queeg from his duty as commanding officer. In the trial itself, Williams cited, two psychiatrists who had Queeg under observation, testified that he (Queeg) is (at the time of the trial) and was on the day of the mutiny in complete control of his faculties. "In other words," emphasized Williams, "not mentally ill!"

"This has been a moot point since the novel was first published in 1947," states the director. "That is, whether or not Maryk was justified in relieving his commanding officer. Navy records show, incidentally, that no skipper of any United States vessel has ever been relieved of command under these articles."

Early this week Williams contacted the five local ranking naval officers and asked them if they would sit in as the jury in place of the regular actors assigned to those roles. He asked them to concentrate on the testimony presented at the trial in the play and base their verdict solely on that testimony. They agreed and their decision might change the ending of one of the theatre's most popular and most controversial plays.

In any event, Williams will be ready for the decision, whatever it is. He has prepared his cast for two endings based on the verdict made by the five naval officers, who tonight, are cast as authentic actors.

Navy Wives Begin New Fall Season

Oceana Officers' Wives Bowling Group will begin a new season on Sept. 11 at 1 p.m. at the Thunderbird Bowling Lanes, Laskin Road.

The group named Mrs. L. M. Satterfield as president for the coming year. Other officers elected were Mrs. J. S. Herman Mrs. John P. Currie and Mrs. Bryla.

Persons interested in joining the group may register by calling Mrs. Satterfield at HO 4-2103 and Mrs. Currie at GA 8-2827.

Al Crosby On Two-Week Duty At Ft. Benning

Captain Albert V. Crosby Jr., whose wife Constance lives in Virginia Beach, Virginia is enrolled as a student in the Infantry Officer Career Course of the 2073d, Pittsburgh, United States Army Reserve School currently on two-week annual active duty training period at Ft. Benning, Ga.

The Infantry Officer Career Course conducted by the Pittsburgh USAR School, which began August 14, includes instruction in weapons, supply, day and night tactics, communications, guided missile familiarization, policy and operational procedures. The course will conclude August 25.

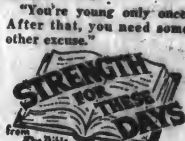

Officers attending the Pittsburgh USAR School take classroom instruction in the course in their hometown Reserve school during regular meetings throughout the year. The two-week summer camp completes their year's instruction. The two-week training period at Ft. Benning is in addition to the field-training period of organizations to which the officers are regularly assigned.

Army Reserve Officers and enlisted men serving on the staff and faculty of the school number 136. Students enrolled number 595 and represent 25 states and the District of Columbia. Commandant of the school is Colonel Hiram A. Carpenter Jr., Pittsburgh. Reserve personnel are being supported by the staff and faculty of the United States Army Infantry School, Fort Benning.

Capt. Crosby, regularly enrolled in the 2066th USAR School in Norfolk, is a manager for Crockett Pender theatres. In an interview he stated: "I believe this to be the best encampment I have ever attended."

The Old Timer

PEUGEOT

John Bond, publisher of the authoritative magazine Road and Track, has again selected Peugeot as one of the world's seven best-made cars. Why? The steel in a Peugeot is 9mm thick. You could overturn the car and remain unscathed. Not that we recommend it, but Peugeots at the factory are tested this way. Every part in a Peugeot 403 is inspected, gage and bolts included. Every Peugeot made is road-tested. Why? Pride. After 160 years, this is still a family business. The oldest car still running in America is an 1891 Peugeot. No one knows the lifespan of a Peugeot 403. Call now for an appointment to test drive the remarkable Peugeot 403.

News for VETERANS

Under the new pension law all pension payments being made to a veteran being furnished Veterans Administration hospital treatment or domiciliary care are reduced to $30 per month, beginning the first day of the third calendar month following the admission. This reduction is made regardless of the number of dependents the veteran may have. If the veteran has a wife or children, the VA will pay them the amount by which his pension is reduced. In the case of a veteran with no dependents the amounts withheld in excess of the $30 are never paid to him at any time. This is one important reason why so many veterans drawing pension under the old law have not elected benefits under the new.

Under the old pension law a veteran with a wife, child, or dependent parent who is furnished VA hospital or domiciliary care has no payments withheld. If he has no dependents then he is reduced on the first day of the seventh calendar month after admission to one half his payments or to $30, whichever is greater. Upon discharge or release from the VA institution for approved reasons withheld are paid to him at once.

REGISTRATIONS FOR SWIM CLASS TODAY

Registration for boys & girls who wish to participate in the swimming program to be offered by the Virginia Beach Princess Anne YWCA will be held today from 3 to 5 P.M. at the Community Services Building, 19th & Pacific. Mrs. T. Cornell Berry, chairman of this project, reminds parents that only children ages 6-12 & those that have paid their registration fees of $3.50 will be eligible to begin classes at the Olympia Club on Laskin Road, Monday, August 28. P.A. Gun Club Wins Tourney

Princess Anne Gun Club won the five-man team event Sunday in the annual Bull Run Open Skeet tournament. Breaking 485 out of a possible 500 targets for the win were Len Bauer and his son, Joe; Charles Hornsby, Charles Brown and Reuben Trant.

Trant scored again in the Class D event, breaking 99 out of 100 for first place.

In the two-man team, Trant helped Hornsby shoot 196x200 for first, while Len and Joe Bauer finished second with 194 x200.

Without his father's help, Joe Bauer did just as well: winning the Junior championship with a 97x100.

Haycox Rebels Win Loop Title

The Rebels, sponsored by the Fred A. Haycox Company, are the new 1961 champions of the Lynnhaven Pony League baseball season. The team recently captured the title.

The new champions, runners-up to the title last year, posted an impressive 11 won, three lost and one tie for the season.

Six teams made up the league this year. Two teams were added from last year. Each team was sponsored by an individual or a business firm in the area.

One of the best games of the season was between the champion Rebels and the Eagles. The teams played to a scoreless tie after nine innings and the game was called due to the time limit. The Rebels won in a replay of this game.

CREMATION

Symbol of Enlightenment
and a Challenge to Thoughtful People.

This is the sixth in a series of seven articles on
Cremation

THE FUTURE OF CREMATION
As a community becomes more metropolitan in character, the advantages of cremation become increasingly apparent. With urban centers insistently demanding more and more land for normal expansion, cemeteries are turning to cremation in order to obtain maximum usefulness of the land they occupy. For through the medium of columbarium buildings and small urn garden plots, vast populations can be accommodated within a small area.

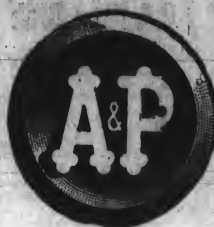

Thus the process of cremation—Nature's own way—meets the challenge of intelligent reasoning while fulfilling all the requirements of reverence for man and his creator. On its merits it becomes increasingly attractive to men and women of discerning viewpoint who appreciate the enlightened means by which cremation accomplishes its sacred purpose.

Virginia State Fair Readies For 1961 Event Sept. 22-30

Preparations are well under way for the 1961 State Fair of Virginia, to be held on the 270-acre showgrounds on the outskirts of Richmond, Va., Sept. 22-30. It is the Old Dominion's greatest annual event from the standpoint of attendance and participation.

Last year the attendance was 492,642; just short of the half-million goal. With good weather, officials expect this year's attendance to top all other years. Exhibitors come from 11 states and participants in contests are from 22 states along the Atlantic seaboard. Live-stock will number over 1,600.

Premium offerings in 11 departments for 1961 total $45,836.80, the largest in the history of the State Fair of Virginia. Of this amount $33,606.30 has been allotted for open class competition and $12,230.50 for the junior division. The awards offered to individual exhibitors in all classes are comparable to premiums offered at other large fairs.

The State Fair of Virginia is basically an agricultural exhibition, operated by the Atlantic Rural Exposition, Inc., a non-profit corporation, directed by many public spirited agriculturalists and businessmen who give of their time and talents to insure its success.

Many of the fair's programs and events spotlight the rural areas, with particular emphasis on activities of the 4-H, FFA & related junior groups. An outstanding example is the Eastern U.S. 4-H Tractor Operators Contest to be held on Tuesday, September 26. This contest, with candidates from 22 states, is planned and supervised by a committee of State 4-H Club agents, state agricultural engineers, farm equipment dealers, the American Oil Foundation & the Atlantic Rural Exposition. The program for contestants & coaches includes an educational tour of Jamestown, Williamsburg, and Yorktown and official banquet.

Ramblers Top Seaside Shows

Ron's Ramblers are the newest sensation at Seaside Park ballroom at Virginia Beach. They may be heard, along with four other bands performing in rotation, through the remainder of the season.

Ron Pearson is the leader, a former professional performer who joined the Sunday afternoon jam session at the ballroom several Sundays ago. Called back into active service and stationed at Fort Story, Pearson played his guitar and sang many of the songs he has recorded on the West Coast.

As a result of his instant popularity, he was persuaded to collect a group of local and out-of-town musicians, now designated as Ron's Ramblers, to take a regular turn on the bandstand. The orchestra has won the favor of the dancing patrons, and takes its place alongside the other popular orchestras heard there—the Upturns, the RPI Specks, the Harmonizers and the Saints.

Wild Bill Cody and Company, a western trio of sharpshooters, rope spinners and knife throwers, are thrilling audiences with their free demonstrations on the outdoor stage this week. They may be seen daily through Sunday at 2:30 and 10:00 p.m.

Beach Students Listed on Rolls At Longwood

Longwood College's 78th session will begin September 17th with an orientation program for new students. Classes for the session will start on September 22, with a capacity enrollment of 1,122 students. The entering freshman class will number approximately 400.

Five additional faculty positions have been established in the history, art, natural sciences, and education departments, and three new courses in philosophy (history of philosophy, aesthetics, and logic) have been added to the curriculum. Fourteen new members have been appointed to the faculty.

Approximately 96% of the students will be residents of Virginia. The remainder includes three foreign students, natives of Japan, France and Mexico. The students from France and Mexico will also serve as part-time instructors in the modern language department.

Students from Longwood will do student teaching in the Danville, Roanoke and Richmond city schools, and in Appomattox, Cumberland, Buckingham and Charlotte county schools.

Southern '500' Beauty Pageant History Making

Nationally famous visiting beauty queens, Navy officers, the famed Blue Angels in person and an "Outer Space" theme marks the ninth Miss Southern 500 beauty pageant prior to the Labor Day stock car race, that will make this auto-racing spectacle the most glamorous and eye-catching in history, according to Vera Marchette, the pageant director.

With the Blue Angel flyers as escorts, four former finalists in the Miss Southern 500 contest will occupy the role of honor. They are, the outgoing Miss Southern 500 Bunny Hembel, Saluda, S.C., Miss International Tobacco Queen, Emmalee Gaddy, Kingstree, S.C., Miss South Carolina Universe Yvonne Quick, Bennettsville, S.C., and Miss North Carolina Universe Marie Clyburn, Bishopville, S.C. Carroll Godwin, WCSC, Charleston, S.C., master-of-ceremonies for the South Carolina Miss Universe contest will emcee the race pageant.

The beauty queens will make appearances all week before the preliminary judging starts at the Friday social functions. A press bathing suit reception will be held in the evening with the contestants making their final public appearance, before the contest, in the Southern Festival parade Saturday morning.

The winner represents Darlington Raceway as Queen of the race during both the Southern 500 and Rebel 300 events at Darlington. Among her prizes will be an all expense trip to the Florida Keys this winter.

The book clubs of this country sell more than 80 Million copies of books by mail a year. FORT STORY TELLINGS

POST INSPECTOR GENERAL PROMOTED

Lt. Col. Robert C. Courain, Post Inspector General, recently received his promotion from Major.

Lt. Col. Courain entered the service in May 41 at Plainfield, N.J.

A graduate of Union Junior College, he arrived at Ft. Story in December 1959 from the Tripoli Terminal Detachment in Libya.

His decorations include the Bronze Star Medal and the Air Force Commendation Medal.

Lt. Col. Courain, his wife, Dorothy, and their three children reside in Virginia Beach.

870th BEST COMPANY FOR THIRD STRAIGHT MONTH

The 870th Transportation Co., commanded by Captain Hoover Alexis, the only company to be selected "Best Company" for three consecutive months in September, October and November 1959, has done it again in May, June and July, 1961.

A large revolving plaque in that it does not become a personal possession of any company, is presented to the "Best Company" for the one month period for which they received the award. However, any company attaining the distinction three months in a row receives a miniature replica plaque as a permanent fixture.

Major William H. Rutledge, acting Commanding Officer, 10th Transportation Battalion, presented the award in behalf of Lieutenant Colonel Robert W. Larson, Commanding Officer, 10th Transportation Battalion, who is taking part in operation SWIFT STRIKE.

13 GRADUATE FROM LEADERSHIP COURSE

At 1300 hrs. 3 August, two weeks of intensified work were climaxed by the graduation of 13 students from the Non Commissioned Officer's Leadership Course.

Guest speaker, Colonel William P. Pope, congratulated the group on their fine work, and expressed his best wishes for the students when they attend the course at Ft. Eustis, Col. Pope also stressed the value of the training the men had received, especially in these troubled times.

Diplomas were awarded to the grads by Col. Pope, who congratulated the men individually at this time. Present on the speakers platform were Lt. Col. Lennart Y. Ohlsson, Lt. Col. Patrick M. Cronin, Lt. Col. Ernest K. Bremer, Major William H. Rutledge and Lt. George W. Mudd.

Named honor graduate was Specialist Fourth Class Calvin R. Rickie, 155th Transportation Company with a score of 94.42%. Sergeant Ernest Wallace, 870th T Co., Sp4 Claude R. Fahringer, Headquarters Detachment 14th and Sp5 Rodolfo Eugenio, Headquarters Company 4th TC (TC) were No. 2, 3, and 4 men with scores of 92.42, 90.03 and 89.38 respectively. Other graduates were: Sp4 Samuel C. Wagner, 344th T Co., Sp4 Carl A. Amundsen, Jr., 554th T-Pil, Sp4 Max K. Hill, 347th T Co., Sp4 Albert N. Maxwell, 461st T Co., Cpl. Ocie Anthony, 155th T Co., Sp4 James E. Cotton, 566th T Co., Sp4 William M. Day, 566th T Co., Sp4 Ned Thombly, 347th T Co. and Sp4 Ray Trussell, TATA.

HEADQUARTERS COMPANY HAS BEST MESS

Headquarters Company, 4th Transportation Command, Terminal C, was selected "Best Mess" for July. The Company last attained this award for November, 1960.

The certificate was awarded to Hqs. Co. for having attained the highest standards of mess operation at Fort Story for the month of July. Mess Sergeant Samuel Dowdy received the award on behalf of Captain Irvin W. Wright, Commanding Officer of Headquarters Company, Colonel Walter D. Swank, Deputy Commanding Officer, 4th Transportation Command, Terminal C, presented the award.

The cooks are: Specialist 5th Class Owen Briles, Specialist Fourth Class James Jacobs, Joseph Wethington and Walter McNeal and Privates First Class Richard Dechowit and Kendall Hall.

NEW DEPUTY CO AT FORT STORY

Colonel Walter D. Swank was recently welcomed to Ft. Story as he assumed duties as Deputy Commanding Officer, 4th Transportation Command (term C).

A 1940 graduate of the U. S. Military Academy, Col. Swank arrived at Fort Story from the U. S. Army Transportation Terminal Command Gulf, New Orleans, where he served in the capacity of Chief of Staff.

Colonel Swank has seen duty in England, France, Belgium & Germany.

WW II he served with the 1st Army as the Commanding of a Quartermaster Truck Battalion. From 1953-55 he also served with the North East Air Command.

Colonel Swank is a 1956 graduate of Syracuse University where he received his Masters in Business Administration. He resides on Post with his wife, and family, Sandra and Larry. The new Deputy CO replaces Col. George L. Oliver who has been assigned to Taiwan as a Deputy Chief of Staff for Logistics (DCSLOG) with the Army Military Assistance Advisory Group (MAAG).

VA. BEACH SOLDIER IN ARMY EXERCISE

Army Pvt. Richard P. Cook, son of Mr. and Mrs. Pinkney S. Cook, 103 Kamichi st., Virginia Beach, is participating with other personnel from the 101st Airborne Division in Exercise Swift Strike, a massive Army-Air Force maneuver being conducted in North and South Carolina. The two-week exercise, designed to provide training under simulated warfare conditions, is scheduled to end Aug. 20.

Regularly assigned as a radio operator in Company A of the division's 501st Infantry at Ft. Campbell, Ky., Cook entered the Army last November and completed basic training at Fort Benning, Ga.

The 20-year-old soldier is a 1959 graduate of Princess Anne High School in Lynnhaven and attended Wake Forest College in Winston-Salem, N.C.

These stirring words of the Twenty-Third Psalm
He made me to lie down in green pastures . . . He led me beside the still waters . . . He restored my soul!

The psalmist must have known the turmoil of life, even though he lived three thousand years ago. At least he had experienced the peace which comes upon a man when he escapes the bustling world and rests in the quiet stillness of nature's scene. And he caught its spiritual meaning!

A man's soul, like his body, needs to be restored. Just as sleep and recreation rebuild our physical strength, prayer and worship re-vitalize our spiritual being.

Thoughtfully, our forefathers taught us to spend part of each day in spiritual pursuits. Wisely, they set aside one day of the week for worship.

The Church provides opportunity for Sunday worship, and guidance in every-day devotion to God.

Treat Your Family to Crab 'N Cheese Filled Tomatoes

Looking for something different to serve the family? Delight them with tomatoes filled till plump with a savory mixture of crabmeat and cheese. They're hearty and OH! so good.

Why should the "girls" have all the breaks? The "girls" being your friends from the bridge club, who delight in such sumptuous dishes as Crab 'N Cheese-Filled Tomatoes.

Your family would love this main dish, too. Don't reject the idea because it isn't hearty enough—when you combine vegetables, evaporated milk, crabmeat and cheese in a single recipe, there's no denying it's substantial!

Creamy, rich evaporated milk forms the nutritive filling—chopped green pepper and celery, sautéed till golden brown in butter, add crispness. There's the delicate flavor of flaked crabmeat, and the zest of protein-rich sharp Cheddar cheese lacing all together. Fill tomatoes plump with this luscious filling, and while they bake to a tender turn, toss together a salad and fill a basket full of rolls. When the dinner bell rings, you're eating that's pure bliss.

CRAB 'N CHEESE-FILLED TOMATOES

6 servings

Baking dish, 9x13 inch.

If summertime appetites are lagging, the distinctive goodness of dried beef may tempt them. It goes well with a variety of foods. So if the Crab 'N Cheese Filled Tomatoes doesn't tempt them, try dried beef recipes. They're mighty good.

One interesting casserole teams this handy meat with chopped celery, canned peas and cream soups. With layers of chow mein noodles to add crunchiness, this main dish is one to be remembered with pleasure.

A baked stuffed green pepper is another favorite which takes kindly to a filling made with dried beef. This is an un-

Preheated 350° oven
6 large, firm tomatoes salt, pepper, dash of lemon juice
1 1/2 tablespoons butter
3 tablespoons chopped green pepper
3 tablespoons chopped celery
1/4 cup chopped onion
1 1/2 tablespoons flour
1 1/2 cups evaporated milk
1/4 teaspoon salt
Few grains cayenne
2 teaspoons Worcestershire sauce
1 7/8-oz. can flaked crabmeat
1 cup shredded sharp Cheddar cheese
Carefully hollow out center portion of each tomato and turn upside down to drain on absorbent paper. In saucepan, melt butter, sauté green pepper, celery and onion. Blend in flour. Add Evaporated Milk and cook, stirring constantly until sauce is smooth and thick. Add seasonings, crabmeat and cheese. Cook until cheese melts. Put tomato cases in baking dish, add salt, pepper, and lemon juice; fill tomatoes with crab mixture. Add enough water to cover bottom of dish. Bake 15-20 minutes or until tomatoes are cooked.

Layered Dried Beef Casserole

Yield: 6 servings

1/4 pound package sliced dried beef

1/2 cup chopped celery

8-1/2 ounce can peas

10-1/2 ounce can condensed cream of chicken soup

10-1/2 ounce can condensed cream of mushroom soup

1/4 teaspoon garlic salt

1/4 teaspoon pepper

5 ounce can chow mein noodles

Parsley, optional

Ripe olives, optional
Cut dried beef into pieces. Cover with boiling water. Drain immediately. Mix with combined celery, peas, soups, garlic salt and pepper. Arrange alternate layers of noodles and beef mixture in 1-1/2 quart casserole, beginning and topping with noodles. Bake in a moderate oven (375°F) for 30 minutes. Garnish with parsley and pitted ripe olives, if desired.

Dried Beef Stuffed Green Peppers

Yield: 4 servings

1/4 pound package sliced dried beef

4 medium green peppers

1/4 cup chopped celery

1/4 cup chopped onion

1 tablespoon butter

10-1/2 ounce can condensed cream of mushroom soup

2 teaspoons prepared mustard

Dash of paprika

1/4 cup water

Cut off tops of peppers and remove cores and seeds. Place peppers in baking dish. In a skillet, pan-fry celery and onion in butter until tender. Remove from heat. Cut dried beef into pieces. Cover with boiling water. Drain immediately. Mix together celery, onion, beef, soup, mustard and paprika. Fill green peppers with this mixture. Pour water into bottom of baking dish. Cover. Bake in moderate oven (350°F) 30 minutes. Uncover. Continue baking 15 minutes. Serve hot.

Cooke School Registration Set

Registration for pupils who will enter Willoughby T. Cooke Elementary School for the first time this fall will be held from Monday through Friday, Aug. 28-Sept. 1, from 9:00 A.M. until noon. The school building is still under construction, therefore, registration will be held at the Virginia Beach School Board Office, 19th Street near Arctic Ave., in the rear of the Health Center.

Parents are asked to bring the pupil's birth certificate, health records, last year's report card, and any other records available from the school last attended.

Pupils who fail to register on these days will not be permitted to register until Thursday, Sept. 7, between 2:00 and 4:00 P.M.

Lanin to Play Tobacco Festival

The Lester Lanin Travelers will play for the Grand Ball of the 13th Annual National Tobacco Festival at the Arena in Richmond, Va., September 23.

The well-known band, under the direction of Willis Kelly, will provide the music for the opening event of the Tobacco Festival, through the courtesy of Philip Morris Inc.

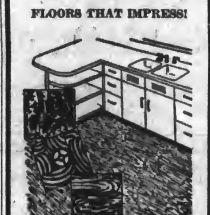

The ball, sponsored by the Lee District Junior Women's Clubs, will benefit the philanthropy of the clubs, Camp Easter Seal, a summer therapy camp in the Shenandoah Valley operated by the Virginia Society for Crippled Children and Adults.

Highlight of the Grand Ball will be the selection of the Official Hostess of the 13th Annual National Tobacco Festival, who will be chosen from twenty-seven nominees from member clubs in Lee District. The winner will receive many handsome gifts as well as the privilege of serving during Tobacco Festival week as hostess at all events and assisting the chaperones of the Tobacco Festival princesses. The Official Hostess will ride on a special float of the Retail Merchants Association of Richmond in the Grand Illuminated Parade September 29 and the Tobacco Bowl football game at Richmond City Stadium September 30.

Lester Lanin's music will be played against a decor, provided by a nationally known firm, emphasizing a Civil War theme, in keeping with the Centennial which began this year.

Dance enthusiasts will remember many of the popular Lester Lanin arrangements, which have helped to build the orchestra's reputation: "Have Band, Will Travel," "Lester Lanin Goes to College," "Lester Lanin Play Latin" and many others.

The 13th Annual National Tobacco Festival, following the Grand Ball, will continue through Saturday, September 30.

A NEW RESPONSIBILITY

The United States Department of Agriculture has been assigned the responsibility for conducting a continuous and comprehensive educational program in Rural Civil Defense. Secretary of Agriculture Freeman has, in turn, assigned principal responsibilities and leadership for this program to the Cooperative Extension Service. This is a rather new responsibility to the Extension Service in Virginia.

Developments within the last week or two have emphasized the need for a strong educational program in informing rural people of the seriousness of the situation and what might be done to protect themselves their livestock, and crops in case of a national emergency.

There are four phases of the program which we in the county will stress and give major emphasis to. These are (1) Family Protection and Survival; (2) Protection of food supply; (3) Protection of Livestock; (4) Use of crops in case of nuclear attack. It is evident that our educational program in rural civil defense in this county must be a continuous one. This certainly cannot be a one shot deal. Therefore, we are going to make Civil Defense education another real part of our already full schedule. We will use all present facilities, such as meetings, radio programs, news articles and meetings with local organizations, such as general farm organizations, civic groups, P. T. A.'s community groups and so on in getting the Civil Defense story across.

To do this properly is going to require an extra heavy load upon our staff, however, since this will be a program which we will place extra emphasis on, every attempt will be made to keep our people informed in an effective educational program. As each week goes on, please check this page for pertinent information relating to Civil Defense.

AGENTS AWAY

Blacksburg, the land of VPI, seems to be calling a lot of people this summer. This week, all of the agents in Princess Anne County are attending the annual Extension Agents Conference at VPI. We will all be back in the office Monday, August 28, to take your calls.

The primary theme of this year's conference will be "Virginia's Changing Agriculture", a topic which has caused considerable discussion over the last year.

While at the conference the agents will receive new and up-to-date information in ways of getting this information to the county people. We believe that our program will progress more rapidly and more effectively because of the influence of this conference.

4-H Steer Purchases Complete

We have just completed making arrangements for all of the steers that the 4-H boys and girls will be feeding in the 1961-62 4-H Junior Steer Program. We have truly purchased a splendid line of twenty steers for these boys and girls to feed. These are an outstanding group of calves of which ten are Angus and ten are Hereford. The calves were purchased from some of the outstanding herds in Virginia in order to provide the boys and girls with the finest possible steers to start with. The distribution of steers will be to 4-H Club Members on September 16, at a place to be later designated.

4-H PIG CHAIN PROGRESS

Last week Keister Evans, Assistant County Agent, purchased for the 4-H Club boys in the Pig Chain Program, an outstanding boar from Hawthorne Brothers, at Hylas, Va. This is a magnificent boar which will be used to breed the five gilts in the Pig Chain Program. The gilts are owned by Jimmy Brickhouse, John Osmundson, Thomas Conboy, John Moulton, and Jerry Moulton.

The gilts will be bred in September and we are looking forward to a fine group of pigs three months, three weeks, and three days later.

Marketing Association Progress

The Board of Directors of the Princess Anne Marketing Association are busy making plans for the 1961-62 operation of the Association. The Board is busy studying marketing outlets for the green crop and the Number two potatoes which will come out of storage. Members are being contacted to determine their needs and desires in operation of the Association this coming year.

WINTER PASTURES

Every dairyman, beef cattleman, and sheep producer, pay attention! Now is the time for you to see that winter pasture for the good fall, winter and early spring grazing you will need so much. There is nothing quite like some green forage going into the tummies of our animals during the winter. A mixture of Crimson Clover and Small grain or rye grass is very good, or just seeding rye alone is a very good winter grass. Whatever you use, be sure that you use more than enough seed in order to guarantee a good stand and fertilize heavily. The amount of grass you will get per acre determines more by the amount of fertilizer that you applied than any other factor. Three points to remember for sufficient fall, winter, & spring grazing are: (1) Seed early; (2) seed heavy; (3) fertilize heavy.

FERTILIZE FESCUE NOW WITH NITROGEN

Now is the ideal time for you to take cattle off of a good fescue pasture that does not have much clover in it and fertilize it with fifty to sixty pounds of pure nitrogen. After fertilization, take the cattle or livestock off of the pasture until all other pasture or forage is gone. This should be sometime around late December or early January before this fescue is needed for pasture. The fescue responds very well to nitrogen application in that it will grow up and fall down and grow up again, and actually provides a hay crop in the field where the cattle will do their own cutting, raking, baling, and feeding. It is cheap hay!

GET READY NOW

Now is the time to make last minute plans for getting your beef calves ready to go in the Petersburg Feeder Calf Sale on October 11. All calves, both steers and heifers, must be nominated for the sale by September 11.

Now is the time to be sure that all calves are properly dehorned, stimulate them for greater weights and grades with the addition of grain in a creep feeder, and most important, be sure that you call your veterinarian right away to have your cattle tested for T.B. and Bangs. Within thirty days of the sale you will want to call your veterinarian again and get the vaccinations which are required to enter your calves in the sale.

IT'S ON THE INCREASE

Grain storage bins are on the increase in Princess Anne County. It seems that almost each month there are a new set of green metal bins going up on our farms. This is one of the nicest investments that I can think of for a farmer to put on his farm because it will insure him of many things. First of all, he will be able to market his crop at a time when the market is not flooded, and in some instances he will be able to receive loans on his grain because it is in proper storage.

Tremendous economical loans can be secured through your ASC Office for the purchase of grain bins and dryers.

Bayville Again Has Winner

PETERBOROUGH, N.H. — Dinmore Majestic Jan, registered Guernsey bull, owned by Bayville Farms, Inc., Norfolk, Virginia, has become a Reumarmized Sire, according to The American Guernsey Cattle Club. "Jan" now has 12 daughters with 30 official production records. Their average production is 10,145 pounds of milk and 487 pounds of fat, when converted to a twice-daily milking, 305-day, mature equivalent basis.

This fine Guernsey bull was bred by Dinmore Dairy Company, Dinmore, Fla. This bull's sire was Dinmore Noble Majesty and its dam was Dinmore Mayroyal Janis, that posted an official production record of 14,785 pounds of milk and 638 pounds of fat.

"Jan" also has 11 of his registered daughters classified with an average rating of Desirable.

Duck Season Starts Nov. 10th

The season on ducks, coots, geese and brant in Virginia this year will open at noon standard time on Friday, November 10, as a result of action taken by the Virginia Game Commission in Richmond on August 21.

The open season on geese and brant will run 60 days, ending on January 8. Because drought in the prairie states this summer drastically reduced duck breeding success, however, the duck and coot season will run only 40 days, ending on December 19.

Bag limits will be as follows: Ducks, 3 a day (not to include any canvasbacks or redheads, 2 black ducks, or 1 hooded merganser); 6 in possession after first day (not to include any canvasbacks or redheads, and no more than 2 wood ducks, 4 black ducks or 1 hooded merganser); coots, 6 a day and 6 in possession; Canada geese, 2 a day and 4 in possession; and brant, 10 a day and 10 in possession.

Shooting hours after opening day will be from sunrise to sunset.

In other action, the game commission approved the purchase and development of two acres of land on the South Fork of the Shenandoah River, five miles south of Front Royal, for a public boat landing and sportsman access area.

Golf Champion

CLAUDE KING WINS FIRST START AS PRO

Professional Claude King of Virginia Beach made an auspicious debut among the ranks of the play-for-pay boys last Sunday as he copped the Virginia State Open golf championship.

King, who recently resigned as head football coach at the Virginia Beach High School to enter the professional golf field, won the coveted title in a sudden death playoff with young amateur Ronnie Gerringer. Each had completed the 54 holes in 217 strokes. King masterfully parred the first extra hole to become undisputed champion of the fourth annual tournament sponsored by the Virginia State Golf Association.

With the victory the 28-year-old professional collected his first check, one for $750. So King is batting 1000 percent with a victory in the only tournament he has played as a professional.

Going into the final 18-hole round King was trailing Jordan Ball by one stroke. Ball and King were in the final threesome Sunday and the new champion quickly pulled ahead of Ball, who faded badly in the final round.

King lost two strokes to par on the second hole Sunday but by the 12th hole he had regained those strokes with birdies and was even par at that point. He slipped two over with successive bogeys at the 14th & 16th holes. His putt for a bird at 16 barely missed and he parred 18.

Going to the par 5 18th hole King needed a par to sew up the championship. Thinking he needed a birdie to win King played the final hole boldly and sent his third shot over the green. It took him three more shots for a bogey six which brought on the tie and the sudden death play-off.

King played the first extra

Beauty Pageant Highlight of Southern "500"

The ninth annual Miss Southern 500 Beauty Pageant to be held at the Darlington Raceway this Saturday night, September 2, will be the greatest in the nine year history of the Darlington Police Department, sponsored event.

Forty of South Carolina's most beautiful girls, a 1961 Ford Fairlane 500 4-door sedan as a door prize, Boyd Hicks as featured vocalist, and Carroll Godwin of WCSC-TV Charleston, as Master of Ceremonies will be featured in the two-hour program that starts at 8 P.M.

The forty young ladies that will range in age from 16 to 21 will be judged in swim suit competition for the coveted Miss Southern 500 crown.

Tickets for admission to the Pageant which will sell for $1.00 can be bought locally from members of the Beach American Legion Post.

Dr. Pearce To Be Speaker

Understanding and dealing with the emotionally disturbed child will be the subject for court officers and agency social workers to be conducted by Dr. Patricia R. Pearce on September 27th and repeated on October 4th. The workshop, sponsored by the Tidewater Virginia Association for Mental Health will take place on each date at the Norfolk Public Health Center from 1 P.M. to 3:30 P.M. It is announced by Mrs. Francis X. Rafferty, chairman of the Association's project.

Dr. Pearce currently is psychiatrist-director of the Atlantic Mental Hygiene Center at Virginia Beach and came to this area from the Mobile Psychiatric Clinic, Richmond, after five years as director. She will speak to the court officers and agency workers from broad experience with juvenile delinquents, lecturing and then conducting discussion on recognizing the child who is unable to be handled by usual methods and on resources available for handling the chronic juvenile offender.

Welfare workers, court officers, probation officers, police and agency workers likely to be dealing with children are to be invited to attend. Any worker in this field who may not be known to the Association may receive an invitation by calling the office of the Tidewater Virginia Association for Mental Health after September 1st.

EDITORIAL SPEAKING

Beach Produces Sports Champions

Virginia Beach is blessed with the world's most beautiful sand beach, we know, but it is rapidly becoming known as the "golf capitol" of the state and is producing winners and champions in many sports fields.

Aside from the wonderful beach Virginia Beach, this year, has produced the United States Junior Golf Champion in young Charlie McDowell, who whipped the best junior golfers in America in the 14th annual tournament played in upstate New York.

Prior to young McDowell's tremendous victory in a national tournament Virginia Beach produced the state men's amateur golf champion in Bobby Loy, who is a teacher at Princess Anne High School.

Then, last week in still another golf tournament Claude King of Virginia Beach won the fourth annual Virginia State Golf Association open championship in Newport News. It was King's first venture into the professional ranks of golf.

Turning from golf Virginia Beach can point with pride to the accomplishments of Miss Kathleen Watson, 17-year-old equestrian, who returned Wednesday from England. Miss Watson was a member of the United States pony team that defeated a British team in a return match last week. This young lady has won many laurels in horse shows throughout the country.

Virginia Beach also has its share of fine young tennis players. Probably topping this list is Miss Holly Winters. This young lady is one of the state's most outstanding tennis players.

The list could go on and on. Certainly Virginia Beach is a sports capitol of the first order.

The Housewife Knows Best

People in government, as well as out of it, are always seeking new controls of one kind or another over business, on the theory that this is necessary to protect the public.

So an editorial appearing in the Portland Oregonian is very much in point. It observes: "The U.S. Senators who have given themselves the assignment of protecting American housewives against the wiles of packagers and labelers of food-stuffs ought to visit our supermarket."

"The housewife we know best doesn't need a senator to help her. With her beady, little robin eyes missing nothing, she moves from shelf to shelf, hefting packages and studying labels and prices. Click, click, goes her electronic brain, as she discards the odd-sized package with the flamboyant label, and tucks another into her car. She is the acme of caution and perfection."

A "Profit Economy"

Ours is a "profit economy". It is the hope of profit that causes people to put their savings into productive enterprise, to create the plants and all the other facilities that provide goods and services along with mass employment at high wages.

But comparatively few of us realize how small the profits usually are, in the light of the total amounts of money involved.

Take, as a salient example, meat packing—a big and essential industry. Last year its sales reached the huge figure of $13 billion 250 million. On that volume it had earnings of $110 million. That represents only 8/10ths of one per cent of sales—a profit so tiny that no consumer would be able to notice the difference if it didn't exist at all.

This percentage of profit marked a decline from 1959, when the figure was one per cent. And the earnings decline occurred during a year in which the volume of meat processed soared to an all-time high of 27.6 billion pounds. This rather emphatically refutes the often-heard theory that the industry always does better when livestock supplies are more abundant. History seems to be repeating itself—so far this year supplies have been fairly abundant, but mid-year reports do not indicate any major upward trend in the earning picture.

Yes, we live in a "profit economy". But, as a rule, the profits made by enterprise add up to one of the smallest of items so far as the family budget is concerned.

Clifford Herzer Adds Teacher To Piano Staff

Mr. Clifford Herzer, concert pianist and teacher of Norfolk and Virginia Beach announces the affiliation with his Piano School of Mr. Walter Noona.

Mr. Noona has an extensive educational and professional background. He received his degree at East Carolina College in Bachelor of Science in Music Education and Bachelor of Music degree at the University of Illinois.

His professional appearances include concertos with the Norfolk Symphony Orchestra, Edgar Schenckman conducting, the North Carolina Symphony, the University of Illinois Orchestra, and the New Orleans Symphony. Solo appearances have been at the Norfolk Museum of Arts & Sciences, the University of Illinois, Baton Rouge and New Orleans, La., and many radio and television performances.

Happy Days to Hold Open House

Happy Days School on Laskin Road will hold an open house and registration day next Tuesday, it has been announced.

The hours Tuesday are from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. and pupils and parents are invited to visit the school, look over the facilities and meet the members of the faculty.

Regular school at Happy Days is scheduled to begin on Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gleason and 4 children of Baltimore, Md., are spending some time with Mrs. Gleason's parents, Mr. & Mrs. Glenn Dill of Highpoint Ave.

Mr. Noona has taught piano at the University of Illinois and was chairman of the Piano Department at Xavier University in New Orleans. He also attended the College of William and Mary, Norfolk Division.

Mr. Noona has now returned to the Norfolk area to make his home. He is married and has two children.

Leach Is Top Life Producer

James A. Leach, III, a representative of the Connecticut Mutual Life Insurance Co. with the D. Conrad Little Agency of Norfolk, ranked fourth among the company's top 50 agents in sales volume for the month of July.

A native of Richmond, Mr. Leach attended the University of Virginia and is a graduate of the University of Richmond. He is a member of the Tower Investment Club, the Maritime Club and the Princess Anne Country Club.

He, his wife and two children live at 306-47th St., Virginia Beach.

PA County DAR

The Princess Anne County Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution will be guest of Mrs. Bruce A. Parlette for a pot luck luncheon, Sept. 16, 12:30 P.M., 21st and Ocean Front.

The program will be on "Constitution Day."

Home Society Local Campaign To Be Conducted Next Month

She is turning her back on the past and is looking to the Children's Home Society of Virginia for her future. The Society is a State-wide adoption agency and finds homes and loving parents for many little girls and boys. You can help! Now! By making a contribution during the campaign which is now being conducted in Virginia Beach, Princess Anne County and Norfolk.

Mrs. A. P. Randolph and A. Gordon Stephenson of Virginia Beach will again head this year's campaign in the Virginia Beach - Princess Anne County area for the Children's Home Society, according to word from the Society's headquarters in Richmond.

Barron F. Black will head the Norfolk drive.

The campaign in both areas will be conducted from September 11 through 30.

"Although the Society" can show a steady growth for the last ten years," H. Merrill Pasco, president of the organization, said, "The need is also increasing. Last year 293 parents came to the Society asking us to find homes for their babies. In 1958 there were 206 and in 1959 there were 220. We were able to receive 151 babies and place 140 in adoptive homes during 1960.

"However, it looks as if we are going to have to do more if we are going to meet the challenge of the homeless baby who is potentially a good future citizen or a casualty in today's world—depending on what happens to him in the first few months of his life."

Last year the Princess Anne-Virginia Beach campaign, which is conducted each year by letter solicitation, raised $1,560. Norfolk contributed $3,437.50 last year.

Kathleen Watson

Beach Horsewoman Member Of Winning U. S. Pony Team

A young Virginia Beach equestrian is a member of the winning American team in the International Pony Team competition held in England on August 25.

She is Miss Kathleen Watson, 17-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Watson, who reside at Great Neck Point near Virginia Beach.

Miss Watson was selected as a member of the United States International Pony Team after a series of elimination meetings. The final selection to make the trip to England resulted in four large and four small ponies with their riders making up the United States team.

The event held in England was a return match between the British and Americans. The British came over to this country two years ago and defeated a U.S. team in New York.

The American team was sponsored by the American Horse Show Association and funds raised for the trip to England came through private contributions.

All of the ponies making the trip to England are privately owned and were loaned for the competition. The pony Miss Watson rode is owned by Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Taylor of Hampton, Va.

Miss Watson and other members of the all-victorious team were due to land in New York Tuesday and Miss Watson was scheduled to be back in Virginia Beach on Wednesday.

State Police Chief Issue

Labor Day Weekend Advice

"Each one of the 555 people who died on the nation's streets and highways last Labor Day weekend died thinking it could not happen to him."

With this statement, Colonel C. W. Woodson, Jr., Supt. of State Police and Chairman of the Governor's Highway Safety Committee, strove to bring home to all who expect to travel by automobile or afoot the fact that traffic death spares no one and can strike immediately and when least expected.

"The 'it can't happen to me' attitude," he said "is perhaps our most fatal traffic fallacy. If we could only realize that any of us could well be one of these fatality statistics that will consistently be brought to our attention during the holiday, I feel that we could see a drastic cut in types of crashes."

Last year, Virginia saw 12 deaths of which three were pedestrians. This was the lowest toll since the 10 of 1959.

Colonel Woodson went on to say that analyses of official reports of holiday deaths reveal haste, alcohol and exhaustion to be the main factors. "By haste," Colonel Woodson added, "we do not simply mean violations of posted limits but speed too fast for existing conditions, improper passing and other actions arising from 'in a hurry' complexes."

In conclusion, he asked not only for safe individual driving but for an alertness against the reckless driver who can involve others in crashes.

The weekend will close the national "Slow Down and Live" campaign which runs annually from Memorial Day through Labor Day.

Thomas Grand Knight In KofC

The Virginia Beach Knights of Columbus Council No. 4632 recently held its installation of officers under the able direction of Dr. Vincent Cornetta, K of C District Deputy. Mr. Anthony Thomas of 235 Bell Haven Rd., Lynnhaven, Va., succeeded Mr. Edward J. Earley as grand knight. Mr. Thomas, a native of Norfolk, was a charter member of the Beach Council and had held several subordinate offices prior to his election as grand knight. Mr. and Mrs. Thomas and their two sons are members of Star of the Sea parish at the Beach. Mr. Thomas is also an active member of the parish Holy Name Society.

Other officers of No. 4632 for the coming year are: Deputy Grand Knight, Joseph A. Gawry; Chancellor, Joseph Benkert; Recorder, Harold J. Clutey, Sr.; Treasurer, Joseph Garra; Lecturer, Joseph F. Cancer Society Fellowships In Va. Awarded

American Cancer Society Fellowships for clinical training in cancer have been awarded to two Virginia medical institutions, the Virginia Division of the Society announced today.

The ten grants are among those made to institutions throughout the United States for a year's additional training of young and promising physicians in the diagnosis and treatment of cancer. Each Fellowship carries a stipend of $3,600.

The recipients of Fellowships effective July 1, 1961 to June 30, 1962 are: Dr. William Hollister, Jr., who is specializing in surgery at the Medical College of Virginia in Richmond; Dr. James A. Wilkerson, III, specializing in pathology; Dr. Thomas N. Rucker, specializing in radiology; and Dr. Donald P. Stacks, specializing in surgery; all at the University of Virginia, School of Medicine, in Charlottesville.

Four grants have been made to the University of Virginia for the year July 1, 1962 to June 30, 1963. The Fellows for the grant will be selected later by the University, and their fields of specialty will be pathology, radiology, and surgery, which will have two Fellows. The Medical College of Virginia will receive two fellowships, in pathology and surgery, for the same period.

In announcing the awards, Dr. John R. Kight, Virginia Division President, said, "The long-range goal of the Fellowship Program is to assure that all communities throughout the country will have physicians and dentists with special skills and knowledge in the cancer problem, leading to improved diagnosis and treatment of the disease. The more such clinicians, the more lives can be saved and more patients relieved of suffering from the disease."

Since 1948, when the program was started, the Society has provided additional training for 1,222 physicians and dentists at a cost of $5,519,813.

Cavalier Hotel Built In 1926

The Cavalier Hotel built in 1926 has long been an identifying landmark of Virginia Beach, just as the man behind it, Sidney Banks, has been a motivating force in the progress of this community.

It was built by community funds (stock in Tidewater and to transportation interests) to encourage the developments of the Beach.

In 1930 a beach club was built to be replaced by the present Beach & Cabana Club after storm damage in 1933.

The Cavalier Inn and Lodge were added in 1952 and 1946 respectively while The Cavalier Yacht & Country Club was developed in 1926.

Colonel Stover, Lou Winholtz, Richard Cooke and David Pender were presidents of the Cavalier prior to 1945 when The Cavalier-Jefferson Corporation bought all the stock and assumed ownership of The Cavalier properties consisting of the hotel proper, The Beach & Cabana Club, The Yacht & Country Club, The Inn and Lodge.

The navy leased The Cavalier and The Cavalier Yacht Club from 1941 to 1946 when it was turned over to its new owners, The Cavalier-Jefferson Corporation, and reopened as a resort hotel the spring of that year.

Banks was president, owned, improved and expanded the property until 1960 when Sidney Banks and Kyanite Mining Corporation (Gene Dixon, president) purchased The Cavalier proper, The Beach Club, Inn & Lodge.

"This constitutes the third sale of the property since it was built."

one year respectively), Thomas J. McGarvey, Nicholas R. Vomero, Edwin B. Kane, Financial Secretary, Robert E. Amba.

District Governor Fred Troy Visiting Beach Rotary Club

The Rotary Club of Virginia Beach will be host on Thursday to Fred W. Troy, Governor of the 760 District of Rotary International, who is making his annual official visit to each of the 44 Rotary Clubs in Virginia. He will address the local club and confer with President Lee Chambers, Secretary W. J. Dekker, and committee chairmen on Rotary administration and service activities.

Mr. Troy is Executive Director, Masonic Home of Virginia in Richmond, and is a member and past president of the Rotary Club of Sandston. He was elected as a district governor of Rotary International for 1961-62 at Rotary's 62nd annual convention in Tokyo, Japan, last May. He is one of 269 district governors supervising the activities of more than 11,000 Rotary Clubs which have a membership of 509,000 business and professional executives in 123 countries throughout the world.

Wherever Rotary Clubs are located, President Chambers asserted in discussing the governor's visit, their activities are similar to those of the Rotary Club of Virginia Beach because they are based on the same general objectives—developing better understanding and fellowship among business and professional men, promoting community betterment undertakings, raising the standards of business and professions, and fostering the advancement of understanding, good will and peace among all the people of the world.

Each year, this world-wide service organization continues to grow in numbers and in strength. President Chambers added. During the past fiscal year, more than 300 new Rotary Clubs were organized in 43 countries and four geographical regions were added to Rotary's membership roster: Gabon, Nigeria, Reunion and Somalia.

eral manager of Princess Anne Country Club. He went to The Cavalier as general manager in 1930 and held the post until 1935, when he headed a new management at the Chamberlin Hotel, Old Point Comfort.

Banks was president of the corporation which in 1946 acquired the Cavalier properties, used as a naval communications center during World War II.

He has had hotel, resort and realty interests in Richmond, where he owned and operated the Jefferson Hotel, and at other points in Virginia, Delaware, Georgia and Florida.

Banks said as far as current Cavalier business is concerned, "it never has been better. June, July and August were record months."

Sunnybrook Re-opening

Sunnybrook Day School, located across from Princess Anne Plaza will begin its fall term offering Nursery, Kindergarten, Grades 1 and 2.

Mrs. Janice Ferguson will again teach dancing. Mrs. Edna Wiener, who has been added to the staff will direct music in the Kindergarten. Mrs. Wiener is a graduate of Mary Washington College where she majored in music.

Before the actual opening, parents and children are invited to Open House on Tuesday and Wednesday, September 5th and 6th from 9:00 A.M. until noon. This opportunity to visit the school helps eliminate any first day feelings of insecurity and uncertainty and enabling the child to become acquainted with his teacher and his new surroundings. Tuition and Workbook money is taken at this time so that on the first day of school the teacher can devote all of her time to her class thus eliminating undesirable traits of good citizenship.

Special Show Slated For Bayne Theatre Here

An entirely new form of entertainment, guaranteed to the very 'yell out of you', will be presented for one showing only at the Bayne, at 12:00 Midnight, Sept. 2, by Ghost Master Dr. Orloff, and His Teen-age Monsters.

Much of the show is presented on the stage, but when the lights go out and total darkness envelops the theatre, the real fun begins. Amid the audience, and all over the theatre are dozens of ghosts, skeletons and vampires. Steve Dworkin, the headless monster, is a character you will long remember.

Whether you believe in ghosts or not, you will meet a vast array of these 'lifeless' characters at the Bayne Theatre, when Dr. Orloff presents his 'Night of Terror'. On the stage will be dramatized one of the strangest, true ghost stories on record... still an unsolved mystery.

Advance tickets are now on sale at the box office.

Oceana Air Group Gets Top Safety Award For 1961

Attack Carrier Air Group SIX, with NAS Oceana as its home port, has been awarded the fiscal year 1961 Safety Award by the Chief of Naval Operations. The award is based on records of achievement in operations as related to the accidents which occurred during the year. Thus, nine months of duty flying from the USS INTREPID, while maintaining the lowest accident rate of any Air Group in the Navy, produced the winning tally for the Oceana group. CVG-6 is commanded by Commander J. L. Holbrook who resides at 205-60th Street, Virginia Beach, with his family.

The Air Group is composed of Oceana-based Fighter Squadron THIRTY-THREE led by Commander E. H. Doolin, Jr., of 171 Britton Lane, Virginia Beach. Attack Squadron SIXTY-SIX commanded by Commander J. S. Herman of 1154 Windward, Shore Drive, Virginia Beach. Attack Squadron SEVENTY-SIX with Cmdr. L. M. Nearman, 103 Woodhouse Road, North Alan-ton, London Bridge, as its Commanding Officer, and Attack Squadron SIXTY-FIVE led by Cmdr. M. O. Rishel, of 8800 Clintwood Lane, Lynnhaven. Jacksonville-based Fighter Squadron ONE SIXTY TWO and a photo reconnaissance detachment of Fighter Photo Squadron SIXTY-TWO make up the remainder of the group.

"We recognize that safety, of itself is not a goal; no one can plan to not have an accident. Rather, it is the result of careful maintenance of aircraft and strictest supervision of all facets of day-to-day squadron activities by those in charge. It is the result of intensive and continuing training of the pilots in all phases of their aerial missions. Lastly, it is the result of the 'can do' attitude that has long pervaded this entire group," said Commander Holbrook when asked the reasons for his Air Group's outstanding safety record.

CVG-6 is now aboard the USS INTREPID as a vital part of the U.S. Sixth Fleet having left Norfolk earlier this month for the Mediterranean.

N&W Plans To Retain Names Of Merged RR's

Plans to retain both the "Wabash" and "Nickel Plate" names in the proposed consolidation of those railroads into the Norfolk & Western Railway Company were announced jointly today by Stuart T. Saunders, president of the Norfolk and Western, Felix S. Hales, president of the Nickel Plate Road, and Herman H. Pevler, president of the Wabash Railroad System.

Noting published reports that the two midwest rail lines might lose their identity, the rail presidents said that after merger the properties would be known as the Nickel Plate and Wabash Regions of the new N&W.

"For over 80 years 'Nickel Plate' has been both the popular and official name for a great railroad — the New York, Chicago and St. Louis. Mr. Saunders said. "For even longer, the name 'Wabash' has stood for another fine, dependable line. We do not intend to let these respected symbols of reliable railroad disappear from the scene."

Mr. Saunders said that for operating reasons, portions of the present Wabash would be included in the Nickel Plate Region, and vice versa, but stressed that the names would remain.

The Interstate Commerce Commission has been asked to approve a detailed merger-lease-purchase plan which would combine the N&W, Nickel Plate and Wabash and link them together through the 11-mile Sandusky Line of the Pennsylvania Railroad, to form a 7,400-mile system serving 14 states and extending from the Atlantic Seaboard to the Great Lakes, Mississippi and Missouri rivers.

The nationally known director of the State Museum describes the great masterpieces of art in the Museum's collections—the cultural heritage of all Virginians. This is one of a series of articles which will appear each week during the Virginia Museum's 25th Birthday year.

A Birthday Present

Are the baby blanket, the knitted jacket and the booties still the accepted gift to the newborn child? They were not always so and indeed the mother, rather than the baby, was sometimes the recipient of the gift.

During the Italian Renaissance it was the custom, although it must have been a special and expensive custom, to give the new mother a "nativity salver." Since the surface of the salver was painted with an appropriate scene, its use as a ceremonial.

Such a ceremonial use has been painted on a salver having a picture of the birth of John the Baptist. Women are shown coming into the room of the

Traffic Law Obedience Could Reduce Rear-End Accidents

There is a traffic law on the statute books that, if obeyed, could cut drastically the No. 1 cause of deaths and injuries on expressways and turnpikes — rear-end accidents.

But the law — the one that forbids following too closely — is not obeyed and police have been unable to find a way to enforce it, according to an article in the summer 1961 issue of Home & Highway, 4,000,000-circulation policyholder publication of the Allstate Insurance Companies.

The article, "The Traffic Law They Can't Enforce," points out that hitting another car from the rear—a consequence of following the car ahead too closely—is a major safety problem, accounting for nearly one of every 10 traffic smashups.

The Uniform Motor Vehicle Code says that motorists should keep between-car distances that are "reasonable and prudent, having due regard for the speed . . . and the traffic upon and the conditions of the highway."

"As translated in most states," says writer Alfred Balk, "this means at least one car length (15 feet) for every 10 miles an hour of speed."

Balk quotes James Stannard Baker, director of Research and Development for the Northwestern University Traffic Institute, as authority for the statement that these intervals are "almost never" enforced, except by arrests made after collisions.

"Police, frankly, lack a practical way of enforcing them," said Baker.

"What probably will be required," he added, "is some mechanism on the order of that now used to check speeds. Meantime, we also need to study the problem in considerable depth from other angles."

One of these is the bunching tendency of motorists on expressways. The article cites the common experience of drivers who try to keep a proper interval, only to have another car cut in front of them from an adjoining lane, halving the car-to-car distance.

Even so, it's squarely up to the motorist to adjust his driving so he always has plenty of room to stop. To help solve the rear-end crash problem, the article offers the following driving tips, gathered from experts on the subject:

—Know your stopping distances under varying conditions.

—Know where you are in relation to traffic at all times; avoid getting into traffic packs.

—Use hand signals freely in dense traffic; relay signals of those ahead to those behind. Signal continuously well in advance of a maneuver; a quarter-mile on high-speed roadways.

—When stopping, flash your stoplights by pumping brakes; if pulling over, get completely off the roadway.

—If unavoidably halted on the highway, or at the scene of a traffic crash, run at least 100 yards back along the shoulder and warn traffic with flares or a flashlight by night, or circular waving of a scarf or handkerchief by day.

VEPCO Reports Revenue Rise

The Virginia Electric and Power Company today reported operating revenues for July of $14,187,000 and a net income for the month of $2,623,000, according to H. McDowell, Jr., Vepco President.

For the first seven months of 1961, operating revenues totaled $99,154,000 and net income amounted to $18,802,000, compared with operating revenues of $93,052,000 and a net income of $17,567,000 during the same period last year.

Per share earnings on the company's common stock for the current twelve months amounted to $1.94, based on 14,910,000 shares outstanding July 31, compared with $1.83 on the same number of shares outstanding July, 1960.

Vepco gained 21,700 customers during the past twelve months—18,200 electric and 3,500 gas. The company now has approximately 772,400 electric and 102,700 gas customers.

The company has spent over $49 million on new construction this year of its record 1961 construction budget of $85 million. Large portions of this amount have gone toward a new steam generating unit at the Portsmouth and Possum Point Stations, and a hydroelectric station on the Roanoke River, about eight miles upstream from Roanoke Rapids, N.C.

CREMATION

Symbol of Enlightenment
and a Challenge to
Thoughtful People.

This is the seventh in a series of articles on Cremation

Pre-Arrangement For Your Family's Peace of Mind

For those who understand cremation, it is easy to take the next logical step which will relieve the family of one of life's most difficult tasks. This step is Pre-Arrangement of all matters pertaining to selection of the memorial space in accordance with the wishes of the family. The decision is shared by both husband and wife while both are in good health and anticipate many years of happy life ahead. The Pre-Arrangement decision is based upon calmly considered judgment rather than upon sudden emotion, and is made with full knowledge of the family's desires and financial resources.

Payment for such arrangements usually may be made in convenient monthly installments. Then, when the need arises, the difficult decision has been made with memorial arrangements selected and paid for years in advance of actual need.

This is one decision that can be postponed, but it cannot be avoided. Like lifting a heavy burden, Pre-Arrangement—the act of love and consideration—makes the task infinitely easier for families of every circumstance.

Educational TV Growing

A record number of television stations in the United States, more than have ever before carried an educational course, will be presenting "The New Biology" on "College of the Air," it was announced today by the CBS Television Network and Learning Resources Institute.

To date 176 CBS Television Network affiliates throughout the nation are scheduled to carry the program, with additional educational and commercial stations still to be added.

Dr. John W. Taylor, Acting President of Learning Resources Institute, said that "we are delighted, on behalf of the national educational organizations we represent, to be able to announce this new peak of station coverage. Our wholehearted thanks go to the 176 CBS Television Network affiliates who are contributing time for 'College of the Air.' We believe that 'The New Biology' will be an important contribution to college level education in the United States."

The biology course, which will be taught by Professor Ray Koppelman of the University of Chicago, will be transmitted on the CBS Television Network beginning September 25, with stations scheduling their own time periods for the program.

A whopping total of 180 new classrooms will be open in Princess Anne County Schools on September 7 when approximately 20,000 county youngsters are expected to start the fall term, according to school officials at Princess Anne.

These new classrooms will be provided in new buildings and an addition to an existing school facility in the county.

Should the enrollment in county schools reach the 20,000 mark this year it would represent an increase of 2,000 students over last year.

Five new schools will be opened this year in the Princess Anne County school system, according to Supt. Frank W. Cox. Parts of some of these buildings may not be completed by September 7, but they will be able to handle students, he pointed out.

The 180 new classrooms to be opened will set some sort of record in Virginia, it is believed. The system has also grown so large that it probably ranks third in the entire state in size.

The new schools to be opened this year are the Plaza Elementary School at Princess Anne Plaza, the Betty F. Williams Elementary School on Route 652, the Louise Luxford Elementary School on the same road, the Frank W. Cox Junior High School at Great Neck and Kempville Meadows Elementary school at Kempville.

In addition to the new schools new rooms have been added at (Continued on Page 5)

Supervisors Appointed To School Posts

PRINCESS ANNE—Four veterans in the Princess Anne County School system have been moved to "supervisor" positions in recent months.

The latest personnel shift came this week when the county School Board appointed Mrs. E. W. Hairston as supervisor for Negro elementary schools. She succeeds Mrs. Betty F. Williams, who left the post for health reasons.

Mrs. Hairston has been principal of Seatack School since 1951 and is a veteran of 30 years' service in the county system.

The school board elevated Miss Mary Johnson to the post of principal at Seatack, where she has taught the last 10 of her 25 years in the system.

At previous meetings, the School Board named Mrs. Mildred E. Wilson and Philip Meekins as elementary supervisors and Frank E. Taylor as secondary supervisor.

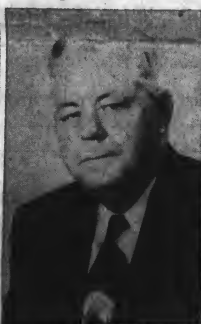

Continuing as supervisors this year will be Mr. G. Harrell, elementary, and R. H. Owen, secondary.

Mrs. Wilson was moved up from principal at King's Grant to replace Walter Carroll, who became principal of new Frank W. Cox High.

Meekins, former principal of Thalia, was named supervisor after Miss Louise Luxford was appointed full time director of instructional personnel.

Superintendent

Frank W. Cox, above, is the superintendent of Princess Anne County and Virginia Beach City Schools. Cox has offices in the new school administration building located at Princess Anne.

COX HIGH SCHOOL MOST MODERN IN P.A. SYSTEM

The new Frank W. Cox Junior High School on Great Neck Road in Princess Anne County will open on September 7 and students attending that school will be housed in the most beautiful and modern school in the Tidewater area.

Complete educational facilities are to be found in this latest addition to the county school system. The plan, at present, is to utilize the Cox School as a junior high school but eventually it may become a high school.

A cool blue ceramic tile hallway branches from the front entrance into several beige hallways leading to sections of the seven-unit building.

A glass front office, located on the left of the entrance hall, is completely air-conditioned and houses several conference rooms, principal Walter Carroll's and assistant principal J. W. Dent's office, a separate entrance and mail slots for teachers, and a fireproof vault for the safekeeping of school records.

The only other air-conditioned rooms in the school are the music and band rooms. Here the students will have individual soundproof practice rooms, tiered choral stands and a large joint band practice room.

A guidance department, with its own conference rooms, will assist students in college preparation. The enormous library will have a check-out table separate from the book section, a glass-enclosed magazine room, reading tables and large offices for the librarian.

Each of the several science rooms features its own preparation section, sinks and complete facilities that may later be expanded for chemistry. The art room has large sinks and storage cabinets and off to one end is a glassed-in section for ceramic and clay work. Here there are insulated cabinets, sinks and kilns.

The physical education department features two gymnasiums; a large one for all activities and a smaller auxiliary gym to relieve congestion and offer extra facilities when needed. The locker rooms have individual shower and dressing sections, an automatic water control system that eliminates the danger of scalding, ventilated basket lockers for gym apparel and larger lockers for quick changes.

Girls studying home economics will have the advantage of learning to cook on electric or gas stoves, preparing food in a modern kitchen and "setting up house" in simulated living, dining, bed and bath rooms. There are even showcases to exhibit the sewing work.

The shop building has facilities for wood work, a graphic arts division for photography and printing, metal craft equipment and a mechanical drawing (drafting) section.

An all-stainless steel kitchen will serve the large cafeteria and three serving areas will speed up the distribution of meals. Two will serve hot plates, one will offer a-la-carte items for students bringing their lunch.

The entire building, designed by architects Oliver and Smith and Hope, is electrically heated and operated.

County Schools To Be Dedicated

Two new schools located in Princess Anne County are planning dedication ceremonies with the new Frank W. Cox High School program set for Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Next Wednesday, September 6, the Louise Luxford Elementary School on Route 652 is to be dedicated. Both of the school facilities have recently been completed and will begin the school year on Thursday, September 7.

Degree, Certificate Not Only Requirements in Selecting Teachers, Princess Anne Officials Say

What are the requirements for a competent teacher? A Bachelor's Degree and a Virginia Teacher's Certificate? The Princess Anne County School officials say the degree and the certificate are requirements, but there are additional requirements that determine teacher competency. A teacher must have a love for and an interest in children, a willingness to work, a well-rounded background, an imagination and a desire to grow professionally before he earns the title, "competent teacher."

Princess Anne County had to locate and employ two hundred and twenty-five teachers for the opening of the 1961-1962 session. Eighty-five of this number were additional staff members over the preceding year. The remaining one hundred and forty were appointments to fill vacancies due to resignations and transfers. These 225 teachers bring the total educational staff membership of Princess Anne County to 739.

To secure 225 competent teachers is no small undertaking. The movement slowly begins immediately after the Christmas holidays, by inquiries received from college seniors who desire placement and from experienced teachers who desire a change. This method of locating prospective teachers gains momentum as the winter and spring months advance. This entails countless hours of interviewing at the School Board Office.

The latter part of January finds the teacher recruitment program moving into action which continues through March. During this period twenty-two college campuses are visited in Virginia and North Carolina.

Approximately 100 teachers were secured through this source for the 1961-1962 session. Much time and effort are devoted to the screening of references. A teacher is never offered a contract until there is satisfaction in this respect.

Written communications, personal interviews, and campus visitation encourage school officials as the applicants manifest interest and enthusiasm. Let it never be forgotten that these same applicants apply to many other school systems, have numerous interviews and secure from three, five, or seven contracts from which they may choose the one to sign for the ensuing school year.

After the School Board has negotiated with the teachers, then comes the task of securing the Virginia Teacher's Certificate for each new person. Registrars of colleges have to be contacted as well as former superintendents, in the case of employing an experienced teacher from another division.

The 225 teachers new to this school division for the 1961-1962 session come from twenty states and represent sixty-seven different college campuses. The Princess Anne County School Board proudly presents the names of the new teachers and the colleges from which they received their training.

STOP!

We make an urgent appeal to every driver to keep the kids in mind by knowing and practicing the ABC's of safe driving at all times. You can prevent disaster by watching out for children near schools. As the youngsters head to class, safe driving is especially important in school zones. But remember, on any street, there may be children on the way to or from school or at play.

Do your part by making every day, safe-driving-day. Above all, expect the unexpected! As a further reminder, we urge you to be safe and not sorry—be always ready to STOP for kids on the go.

HER LIFE CAN BE EASIER

Rolling Meadows

We all know a woman's work is never done! But at Rolling Meadows the architect designed homes have been built to make her daily tasks easier and more enjoyable. A good example is this Rolling Meadows step-saving, fully equipped, Westinghouse appliance kitchen, which includes the waist level, built in oven and range — ceramic tile wall for ease of cleaning — Nutone exhaust hood and fan and so many more built in features, they are too numerous to mention. To see the home that can make your wife's life easier and your whole family's existence more enjoyable, come out today and inspect Rolling Meadows at King's Grant. Homes from $15,200, approx., minimum down payment of $78. (which includes all closing costs, VA loan) your payments are $95.15 monthly.

Drive down Virginia Beach Blvd. to Little Neck Rd. Turn north and follow the signs to Rolling Meadows.

New Cooke School Nearing Completion for Fall Term

Virginia Beach city schools will welcome old and new students on September 7 as the fall term begins at the W. T. Cooke Elementary school and the Virginia Beach High School.

Students at the Cooke School will find a brand new school building when they report for classes. The old school building has been completely renovated and new classrooms have been constructed.

At the Cooke school ten new classrooms have been built and 16 classrooms have been completely modernized. For all intent the school building is completely new. It would be hard to recognize the old part of the building.

The two city schools are expecting an enrollment about equal that of a year ago, according to Elmer Tarrall, assistant superintendent of city schools. That would place the total for the two schools at about 1600 students.

The Virginia Beach High School expects an enrollment of School Safety Theme of AAA Club Poster

With the opening of school, the Tidewater Automobile Association today urged motorists to remain alert for youngsters crossing the streets on their way to and from classes.

Pointing out that 15 per cent of all pedestrian deaths and 38 per cent of all pedestrians injured are school-age children, the AAA Club reminded motorists that youngsters seldom are sufficiently aware of traffic dangers and consequently take unnecessary chances in crossing the street.

"It's up to the motorist to watch for these youngsters, many of whom are just learning the fundamentals of traffic safety," said the Tidewater Automobile Association.

The AAA Club said that a safety poster on the theme "School's Open—Drive Carefully" will soon be displayed on telephone and light poles by State Highway Department, and motorists were urged to heed its advice.

Throughout the nation, the Motor Club said, over 145,000 copies of the poster will be distributed and posted by Clubs affiliated with the American Automobile Association.

The new poster, designed by Robert Heimlich, age 14, a student at Oak Grove Junior High School, Clearwater, Fla., was a first-prize winner in the AAA's National Traffic Safety Poster Contest. The prize was awarded by a panel of nationally-known educators and art experts.

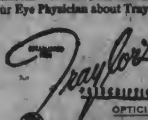

Director

Miss Louise Luxford, above, is the director of instructional personnel in the Princess Anne County School system. Miss Luxford's office is located in the school administration building at Princess Anne.

The book clubs of this country sell more than 80 Million copies of books by mail a year. Other cultural items brought to our attention by third-class mail are magazines, classical records, reproductions of famous paintings, educational courses, encyclopedias, and many more.

Some folks talk as though they want life to be a downhill race without obstacles.

But God, who made man in His own image, never meant it to be so. For the muscle becomes helpless which is never tensed; the mind grows dull which is never challenged. There is no courage without threat of battle.

This life was meant to be a succession of goals . . . each the more inspiring because of the hazards along the way. And who among us, worth his salt, would want life any different.

It is the uphill, the hazardous, course of courageous living that makes spiritual strength a must. You and I need the Church. We need the Church because we see divine as well as human purpose in our existence.

Life—as we like it—gains deeper meaning with each new discovery of our need of God.

The MIXING BOWL... IT'S Fun TO COOK

By LUCILE CLARK
SUN-NEWS FOOD EDITOR

practical, down-to-earth recipes that please both palate and pocketbook, read the "Mixing Bowl" by Lucile Clark each Thursday in the Sun-News.

THE TIME-TESTED AMERICAN WAY TO AN ELEGANT FRENCH DESSERT

For de Creme is a justly famous dessert. To produce this elegant dessert, French chefs beat eggs, melt chocolate very slowly, add precisely the right amount of cream, then beat, stir, bake, and chill the ingredients.
The American homemaker, however, has a much quicker way to make a smooth, rich Chocolate Creme. And it's time-tested by the makers of Royal Puddings and Gelatin to take only 10 minutes of preparation plus two hours of chilling. The secret is custard flavor dessert mix which eliminates all the separating, beating, and folding in of eggs. No baking is needed either. But the result is a Chocolate Creme as cool and light and perfect for a dessert as any direct from Paris.

FRENCH CHOCOLATE CREAM

1 package Royal Custard Flavor Dessert 1/2 cup semi-sweet chocolate bits
2 1/4 cups milk 1/4 cup heavy cream, whipped

Combine Royal Custard Dessert, milk, and chocolate bits. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, until mixture comes to a full boil.
Pour into bowl and chill. Beat with rotary beater until smooth. Fold in whipped cream. Chill thoroughly. Serve topped with shaved chocolate.
Yield: 6 servings.

Here are some outdoor favorites for your summertime entertaining. It's hard to realize—summer is almost gone, so I hope these suggestions will help you in planning your final summertime menus.

Butter-Barbecue Burgers are everybody's outdoor favorite.
Mix 1 pound ground beef with 1/2 cup instant nonfat dry milk,
1/2 cup water, 1/4 cup chopped onion, 1/2 teaspoon salt. Shape into 6-8 rolls; spear with skew-ers. Meanwhile make Butter-Barbecue Sauce. In large skillet blend together 1 stick melted butter, 2 tablespoons prepared mustard, 2 teaspoons Worcestershire sauce. Put Burgers in skillet with Butter-Barbecue Sauce; cook over hot coals, rotating burgers occasionally, until of desired doneness. Serve on warm wiener buns. For variety: stick cubes of sharp Cheddar cheese into burgers. Shape into small meat balls and put 3 on a skewer alternating with cubes of fruit or vegetables.

Deutsch Cheeseburger makes a dandy summer meal-in-a-minute. Butter 1 thick slice pumpernickel; fork on a generous portion of canned sauerkraut;
top with a slice of salami, Swiss cheese, salami, and Cheddar cheese. Heat under broiler to slightly melt the cheese. Garnish with a slice of apple and green pepper skewered on a relish kabob. Serve with well-chilled milk.

Serve garden-fresh green beans with butter-browned water chestnuts for a vegetable treat.

Heat 1/2 cup sliced water chestnuts, 1/4 teaspoon salt, 1/8 teaspoon pepper and 2 teaspoons lemon juice in 1/4 cup melted butter until butter just begins to brown. Toss lightly with 1 pound cooked drained green beans. Serves 4-5.

Outdoor chefs will welcome butter baked zucchini. Cut 2 medium zucchini squash lengthwise into 6 wedges; spread with 4 tablespoons butter. Sprinkle with 1/4 teaspoon salt and 3 tablespoons grated Parmesan cheese. Individually wrap in heavy duty aluminum foil; seal edges tightly. Grill over hot coals 20-25 minutes.

Sweet & Sour Fried Potatoes taste extra good when cooked and eaten indoors. Here's a good recipe for the camper.

In 1/2 cup butter, saute 1/2 cup chopped onion, 1/3 cup chopped green pepper. Add 3 pounds potatoes which are pre-cooked and sliced; sprinkle with 2 teaspoons salt, 1/4 teaspoon black pepper. Brown potatoes slowly, turning occasionally.
When browned, add 1/4 cup vinegar mixed with 1 tablespoon water, 2 teaspoons sugar, 1 teaspoon dry mustard. Serve warm to 6.

Use cottage cheese to dress tossed greens.

Blend well with rotary or electric mixer 1 cup creamed cottage cheese, 1/4 cup light cream, 3 tablespoons minced onion, 3/4 teaspoon celery seed, 1/4 teaspoon salt, 1/8 teaspoon dried thyme, few grains pepper.
Makes 1 cup.

California Salad is tasty in any State of the Union.

Combine 1 cup drained pineapple chunks, 1 cup drained orange segments, 1 cup shredded coconut, 8 quartered marshmallows and 1 cup dairy sour cream. Refrigerate 24 hours; serve on crisp greens to 8.

Snack a shake when you need a late afternoon pick-up.

Mix 1/3 cup chocolate milk and 1 scoop peppermint ice cream in bottom of glass. Fill glass 2/3 full with milk; stir until blended. Top with 2 scoops ice cream.

What's so satisfying as a Lemon Refresher on a summery day? For a party of 5-6: combine 4 cups cold milk, 1-1/2 cups fresh lemon juice, 8 tablespoons sugar and 1 pint vanilla ice cream. Beat until smooth.

Pour into glasses, topping each with a scoop of ice cream.

Delicious for outdoor dipping is this Sour Cream and Cheddar Chip Dip. Mix 2 cups dairy sour cream; 1-1/2 cups shredded sharp Cheddar cheese; 1 medium green pepper, chopped; 1/2 cup chopped stuffed olives; 1
small onion, minced; 2 tablespoons lemon juice; 1 teaspoon salt; 1/4 teaspoon paprika; 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
Yield: 4 cups.

For variety, serve zesty Cottage-Blue Chip Dip with assorted crackers. Beat 1-1/2 cups cream; 1-1/2 cups shredded
sharp Cheddar cheese; 1 medium green pepper, chopped; 1/2
cup chopped stuffed olives; 1
small onion, minced; 2 tablespoons lemon juice; 1 teaspoon
salt; 1/4 teaspoon paprika; 1
teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
Yield: 4 cups.

Shrimp Creole makes a simple but elegant patio dish.

Saute 1/2 cup finely chopped green pepper; 1/2 cup chopped celery; 1 medium sized onion, chopped, in 1 stick butter in blazer pan of chafing dish. When vegetables are tender, add 1 can condensed tomato soup, 1 teaspoon vinegar.
Simmer 10 minutes. Add 2 cups canned or fresh shrimp, season to taste and heat thoroughly.
Serve over beds of fluffy buttered rice. 6 servings.

Try this zippy Hot Buttermilk Mustard Sauce over grilled ham steak. Slowly heat 1 cup buttermilk. Mix 1/2 teaspoon dry mustard, 1 teaspoon flour,
1/4 teaspoon salt. Beat into 2 egg yolks, slightly beaten. Blend into buttermilk; cook until sauce thickens, stirring constantly. Serve as sauce for 1 center slice ready-to-eat ham cut 1-inch thick. To broil ham, either indoors in a broiler or outdoors over coals, brush both sides of ham steak with buttermilk and baste occasionally with buttermilk while grilling.
This gives an attractive glaze to ham.

Local Men In Plebe Training

all of Virginia Beach, Va.

The class, which was sworn in, June 28, is receiving the training in preparation for entering the academy's Brigade of Midshipmen in the fall.

The two-month military indoctrination includes marching, correct wearing of the Navy uniform, Navy terminology and some academic work.

Midshipmen undergo four years training at the academy including three summer training cruises. Their curriculum, consisting of 160 semester hours, leads to a Bachelor of Science degree.

Upon graduation from Annapolis, midships receive a commission of ensign in the Navy or second lieutenant in the Marine Corps, Army or Air Force.

FOR THOSE WHO CAN'T AFFORD A $3000 SPORTS CAR

Your budget probably can't stand a $3,000 sports job right now, no matter how much you'd like a car with some spirit for a change. But there's a sneaky way out of this dilemma... a way to get a car with performance and economy in the same package. You see, there's a new car on the streets of Tidewater these days... the hot new Renault Gordini. One road-tester summed up the Gordini in two words "a tigeress." Appropriate. The Gor-dini is graceful. It pounces forward on command. It cuts its own path through the jungle of city traffic. It races across open country. Yet, the Gordini is a kitten when it comes to cost. The complete delivered price is $1,636. After a normal down payment, you pay $36.30 a month. Slip behind the wheel and test drive a Gordini tomorrow at Eastern Auto... you'll see what a tiger it is.

HOGS HOT ITEMS IN VA. AGRICULTURE

Hogs are the hottest items in Virginia agriculture today, according to Dr. Paul D. Sanders, editor of the Southern Planter in Richmond.

Speaking at the second annual Virginia market hog show and sale at Courtland recently, Sanders noted hog prices have been good for a year and the outlook is favorable for another 12 months.

The speaker said, "Hog numbers are climbing, but so is industrial activity and consumer buying power. Moreover, the housewife is looking for more lean meat and less fat in her pork. Virginia hog raisers have some of the finest meat-type breeding stock in the U.S. and have set up a system for grading and selling feeder pigs second to none in the nation. Our hog raisers are in ideal position to tap this new and growing market for lean meat."

Last year Virginia produced 557,000 market hogs. However, more than two million hogs were slaughtered in Virginia. For every Virginia hog sold last year, three were shipped in for slaughter! In addition, 85 percent of the choice beef consumed in this state rolls in from the west.

Says Sanders, "Two-thirds of the meat in this country is produced west of this Mississippi River; two-thirds is consumed east of the Mississippi. The average cut of meat travels 1,000 miles from producer to consumer. Cattle and hog feeders along the Atlantic Seaboard can cut that distance in half."

Numerous long-range studies point to the area of U. S. highway 1 as the corn-hog-beef cattle belt of the east. Acre yields of corn in many of these coastal plain counties exceed those in the middle west.

According to Sanders, "There is not a community in this area that has not produced 100 bushels of corn to the acre. If we can raise corn, we can raise hogs. The only difference in hogs and corn is five or six months. The land is light and level, lending itself to complete mechanization. Small grain and pastures abound in this region of heavy rainfall, mild winters, and long growing seasons. The market for meat in the nearby industrial east is the biggest and best in the world.

"As we industrialize in the south, local markets for meat will skyrocket. This will open a new outlet for pork, one of tremendous proportions. And we are industrializing at a breathtaking clip. We have all of the ingredients of industrialization—water, workers, and weather."

Selling Cattle Calls For Psychology and Philosophy

Folks selling feeder cattle need to delve a little into psychology and philosophy. Merchandising feeder cattle depends on six customer buying motives. These are: Profit, comfort, and confidence, performance, safety or protection, pride and appearance or style.

The merchandising program that uses the greatest number of these motives and has cattle to honestly back up the claims, will last longest and serve best. The profit motive applies to cattle which reduce expense, speed up production, increase turnover, or save labor. Convenience or comfort can be claimed for organized cattle sales in general. They can be set in series where many cattle can be seen in a minimum of time and where more numbers are present to choose from. Saving the troubles and worry in assembling cattle from many different farms should greatly appeal to buyers.

Performance can be increased by using gain-tested parents of cattle for sale. Bulls with feed test records are not yet available for everybody, but farms and herds that do use them can band together into performance tested sales.

Safety or protection for the buyer will be automatic from healthy, well-managed, growing calves. Associations must be more mindful of credit sources and attend to their education. Bankers unaccustomed to making cattle loans have every right to know complete details and these should be furnished by the sellers.

Pride from "reputation" cattle will appeal to buyers. These outstanding qualities, must be jealously guarded by producers as they buy bulls in the future, adapt new technology, and select replacement heifers.

Grading cattle into uniform lots by size, sex, and breed will quality under the motive of appearance or style. This is a good place to increase attractiveness of the cattle for sale, and this is an approved selling aid.

As in other businesses, the products or services must meet the needs of prospective customers. If they do, the application of "horse sense" through these six buying motives will get the job done.

Two New Grain Varieties Released by VPI Station

Two new small grain varieties—Roanoke oats and James barley—are being released by the Agricultural Experiment Station at Virginia Polytechnic Institute. Dr. T. M. Starling and C. W. Roanoke, small grain plant breeder and plant pathologist, respectively, say both of the new varieties offer the farmer additional protection against disease damage, as well as increased yielding ability.

Roanoke oat, developed cooperatively with the North Carolina station and the U. S. Department of Agriculture, is similar to the old and familiar Arlington oat, which it is expected to replace. Field tests have shown that Roanoke consistently out-yields Arlington. Roanoke oats are resistant to Victoria blight, and are more resistant to crown rust than Arlington. Victoria blight has severely reduced forage and grain yields of late some years in Virginia.

James barley is similar to the popular Wong variety in many plant characteristics. It has been slightly superior to Wong in yield, but its greatest advantages are its resistance to leaf rust and moderate resistance to scald. Both of these diseases have seriously reduced yield of Wong when conditions were favorable for their development.

Roanoke & James are adapted to the Coastal Plain and Piedmont areas of Virginia. Neither variety will be recommended for planting west of the Blue Ridge, except in the lower areas of Lee and Scott Counties.

No seed is available for this fall, but limited amounts of certified seed will be available to farmers in the fall of 1962.

POULTRY SERVICEMEN'S SCHOOL SCHEDULED

Poultry business management will be stressed at a series of schools for poultry servicemen in September.

Sponsored by the department of poultry science at VPI, the schools will be held: September 11, at the Jefferson Hotel in Richmond; September 12, at the Belle Meade restaurant in Harrisonburg; and September 13, at the Hotel Patrick Henry in Roanoke.

The committee in charge of the 1961 schools is composed of D. D. Bragg, Dr. P. B. Siegel, and Dr. E. L. Wisman, chairman.

Dr. C. E. Howes, head of the poultry science department, will preside at the schools, which will include discussions on proper use of facilities, records and cost accounting, evaluation of experimental and field data, marketing practices, and other topics.

VPI Staff members who will serve as discussion leaders include Dr. Howes, Bragg, R. K. Reynolds, R. H. Burner, Dr. H. S. Siegel, Dr. E. O. Essary, Dr. A. T. Leighton, Jr., and Dr. L. M. Potter.

Culling Practices Change in Today's Poultry Flocks Culling practices in egg laying poultry flocks have changed in recent years, says Denver D. Bragg, poultry specialist at VPI. The need for culling the laying flock, especially at the start of the production period, is becoming less important management practice for Virginia producers, according to Bragg.

With new commercial strains most all of the birds will give a good account of themselves. Going through a flock of Leghorn type hens to remove culs, especially early in the production year, may frighten the birds and cause considerable drop in egg production. Bragg also notes that today there is a little greater difference between cost and salvage value of a mature bird, thus there is considerable loss when a hen has to be culled early in the laying season.

Runt or crippled birds should, of course, be removed when the flock is housed. The pullets should be reared in clean surroundings away from older birds to help prevent leucosis. They should be debarked about the time they are put in a laying house to prevent cannibalism. If a few birds do not develop as fast as the rest, put them in a pen to themselves to see if their condition improves. A still better practice is to keep them together in a separate pen throughout the laying season.

Once the flock is placed in the laying house, the chances for maximum profit are greatest if heavy culling is left until after they have been in production at least nine or 10 months.

In many instances, birds that start laying for a little while early in the production year will come back in a short while and still make a profit for their owner. However, if birds stop laying after nine or 10 months, they should usually be culled since they will not have time to come back into production and pay for their late vacation.

Broody hens should be culled when noticed. Egg laying flocks show that more than 80 percent of the cross breeds and leghorns that went broody during the first four months of production repeated their broodiness and laid below the general flock average. Broody birds also cause broken eggs and are a nuisance to keep.

From where I sit... by Joe Marsh

No "Bones" About It

Folks thought it was a big joke when Shorty Johnson came back from Center City with a new St. Bernard for his kids.

And the truth was, Shorty did look kind of funny. The peech practically filled the whole back seat of Shorty's car, and when he let it out, it stood darn near as high as Shorty did!

But Shorty didn't mind the ribbing. As he explained, "I know I look pretty silly with a dog like this. But when you've got eight kids like I do, and you get 'em a dog, you get one big enough so they can all play with it at once!"

From where I sit, folks should "size up" a situation before jumping to conclusions. For example, because Shorty likes coffee, I used to feel he'd disappeared when I'd have a glass of beer. But after I got to know him, I realized he was a tolerant man—one who'd never think of challenging his neighbor's right to his own opinion. This attitude is typical of most of the folks in our town—one of the things that makes them so "dog-gone" wonderful!
